TAFT SMASHES PLAN TO PERMIT BOYCOTTS

Drives House Into Surrender on Proposal to Exempt Unions from Sherman Law.

SENDS MESSAGE TO UNION

Declares Himself Opposed to Such Class Legislation—House Heeds His Wishes by a Majority of Eight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—President Taft used the big stick again to-day. In consequence the labor unions met with defeat in the effort to have themselves exempted from the provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust law. A provision put into the Sundry Civil bill by the House, forbidding the Department of Justice to use funds appropriated for prosecutions in cases where unions would be concerned, was dropped by that body by a vote of 138 to 130. Previously the House had instructed its conferrees to insist that the Senate should accept the provision.

President Replies to Union.

An emphatic statement of his position was made by the President to-night in a telegram to the convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, meeting at St. Paul. For several days past the White House has been fairly bombarded with letters and telegrams from labor organizations in favor of the House amendment, and he chose the one from the St. Paul convention for his reply. The two messages were as follows:

> St. Paul, Minn., June 22, 1910.
> The President: Press reports of to-day indicate that you favor using the people's money to prosecute labor in their efforts to better conditions. The 798 delegates attending the twelfth biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen at St. Paul instruct me to protest against this unjust policy.
>
> W. S. CARTER,
> President Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

> White House, Washington, June 23, 1910.
> W. S. Carter, President Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, St. Paul, Minn.
>
> Your dispatch of June 22 received, in which you say that press reports to-day indicate that I favor using the people's money to prosecute labor in their efforts to better conditions, and you protest against such a policy. I presume you refer to the proposition now before Congress that money appropriated for fiscal year 1911 for enforcement of anti-trust laws and acts to regulate commerce shall no part of it be expended in the prosecution of conspiracies in the nature of boycotts to increase wages, shorten hours, or better the condition of labor.
>
> The Supreme Court has decided that such a boycott is a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and this proposal is an attempt to withhold the means of prosecuting that law when it is violated by a particular class thus to be made privileged. I am entirely opposed to such class legislation. If it were proposed to amend the language of the Sherman anti-trust law itself so as somewhat to narrow its scope that would present a proper question for consideration, but so long as the present anti-trust law remains upon the statute books an attempt to modify its enforcement so as to render immune any particular class of citizens, rich or poor, employers or employes is improper legislation and in my judgment ought to be opposed by your brotherhood.
>
> The laboring man and the trades unionist, if I understand him, asks only equality before the law. Class legislation and uuequal privileges, thougl expressly in his favor, will in the end work no benefit to him or to society. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

When the Sundry Civil bill was before the House that body tacked on to it an amendment by Mr. Hughes of New Jersey, a Democrat, providing that no part of the appropriation for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws "shall be spent in the prosecution of any organization or individual for entering into any combination or agreement having in view the increasing of wages, shortening of hours, or bettering the condition of labor, or for any act done in furtherance thereof not in itself unlawful."

The Senate struck out the amendment. The House instructed its conferrees to stand firmly by that provision and the Senate conferrees then refused to consider the item.

Taft Uses All His Influence.

President Taft spent the entire day and bent every energy toward the defeat of the House amendment. He threw his whole influence into the fight, sending for many Representatives and urging them to defeat the provision. Mr. Taft declared that if it cost him the support of every laboring man in the country he would not approve such a provision of law.

The President's attitude may be attributed in a large measure to an accidental meeting on the Speedway yesterday afternoon between Mr. Taft and Speaker Cannon and Chairman Tawney of the Appropriations Committee. The story is that Speaker Cannon and Mr. Tawney were taking a spin along the Speedway when the President's machine came in sight. Mr. Taft halted the House leaders and expressed his pleasure that things were shaping themselves for an early adjournment. He signified his willingness to assist in bringing the session to an early close if his services were needed.

Mr. Tawney then unburdened his troubles concerning the Hughes amendment. He told the President that there seemed to be no immediate prospect for adjusting the deadlock, the House having instructed its conferrees to stand firm, and the Senate being equally obdurate. Mr. Taft had been interested in this proposal and had taken a stand against what he believed would be a legalization of the boycott. So he took up the matter to-day and it was not long before word had gone about that he was determined to eliminate the Hughes provision even if adjournment had to be put off.

When the roll was called this afternoon in the House the effect of the President's attitude was seen. It was found that many members who Mr. Hughes thought would stand securely hitched had been paired or that they were marked "absent." Accordingly the House by the narrow margin of eight votes decided to concur in the Senate amendment, striking out the Hughes provision.

Peculiar Showing on Vote.

On this vote twenty-one Republicans, most of them recognized insurgents, voted with the Democrats, and three Democrats voted with the large body of Republicans.

Representatives Sherley of Kentucky, Bartlett of Nevada, and Page of North Carolina cast the three Democratic votes. The Republicans who voted for the labor unions were Representatives Carey, Cooper, Lenroot, Nelson, and Stafford of Wisconsin, Hubbard, Kendall, and Woods of Iowa, Lundin, Rodenberg, and Wilson of Illinois, Fecht and Reynolds of Pennsylvania, Austin of Tennessee, Davis of Minnesota, Fish of New York, Greene of Massachusetts, Hayes of California, Kronmiller of Maryland, Murdock of Kansas, and Poindexter of Washington.

Representative Rodenberg had previously stood with the organization day in and day out, and only recently appeared as a most ardent champion of Speaker Cannon. He comes from East St. Louis, a

LAUNCH AND MAN SINK.

Would-Be Rescuer Too Late and They Are Lost in Hell Gate.

Passengers on the Ninety-second Street Ferry at Astoria yesterday afternoon saw a white twenty-foot launch of the dory type caught in the strong ebb tide, racing through Hell Gate. The stern of the boat was submerged, and some of the passengers thought they could see a hole in the side as if the launch had been in collision or an explosion.

Across the bow of the boat they could see the figure of a man stretched, apparently helpless, and able only to wave one arm weakly above his head for help. The swift ebb was drawing the disabled boat as in a race down stream.

At the foot of Broadway, Astoria, lay a fleet of launches and rowboats, among them the launch Edith, owned by Capt. Thomas H. Rogers of 384 Hopkins Avenue, Astoria. With Otto Mattes of 333 East Ninety-second Street, he jumped aboard her and started toward the disabled boat.

Just off Blackwell's Island he got near the launch, and could see that it was sinking fast at the stern. The man across her bows still waved feebly for help. They were then little more than 100 feet from it, but could not make out the name of the boat or see the face of the man on it. Just as they turned toward it a heavy freighter, bound upstream, cut between the two launches, apparently without noticing either.

Capt. Rogers was forced to stop his launch until the freighter passed. Then he shot under her stern toward where the disabled boat should be. The river was clear all around him and there was no trace of the launch. Only a few bubbles, breaking the ridge of the freighter's furrow, showed where the boat and its single occupant had gone down.

The launch cruised around at the spot for some time, but could find no trace of the launch or the man who had been in it. How or where it had suffered the damage that finally caused it to sink could not be discovered. The water at the point of its sinking was sixty feet deep and the current was so strong that there was little likelihood that the man's body would come up near where it had sunk. Nevertheless half a dozen rowboats and launches, joined later by a launch of the Harbor Police, dragged the river with grappling hooks for several hours. Some of the hooks were lost in the swift current, but the body was not recovered.

MAY DRIVE OUT TENTERS.

Health Inspector Objects to Vacation Dwellers at Rockaway Point.

There will be much excitement on Sunday at Rockaway Point if the threat of Chief Inspector Russell Raynor of the Board of Health is carried out. He declares that unless tent dwellers at Rockaway Point get permits from the Health Department by Sunday they will be arrested. To obtain such a permit it is necessary for the tent-dweller to show the Health Department offficals a written authorization from the owner of the property to use the land.

The estate of Edward H. Harriman and the United States Government are both claimants of the beach at Rockaway Point, consisting of hundreds of acres. Neither the estate of Harriman or the United States has displayed any disposition to give written authority to tenters to establish temporary homes on the beach.

Thousands of persons are occupying tents there. For the most part the tent-dwellers live there from one to four weeks, spending their vacations beside the ocean. Further east on the beach the tent cities are owned and controlled by companies which have piped the tent streets with gas and water pipes, and arranged other sanitary measures. But the tents on Rockaway Point, to the presence of which Inspector Raynor objects, have no such provisions. Many of those who live in them get their meals at near-by hotels.

KNOX CONTROLS IN PITTSBURG

His Man to Replace Penrose Adherent as County Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, June 23.—That Secretary of State Knox has taken control of Republican politics in the great Pittsburg industrial district out of the hands of Senator Penrose, known for years as the political boss of Pennsylvania, was shown to-day when it was announced that Robert J. Cunningham, Chairman of the Allegheny County Republican Committee, would retire at the next meeting and that a man named by Mayor William A. Magee of Pittsburg, right hand man of Mr. Knox, would succeed him.

It is understood that one of the conditions on which Knox recently decided not to be a candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination was that Penrose should not seek political control hereafter in Knox's home territory.

It was also learned to-day that the Chairmanship of the Republican State Convention was offered to Mr. Magee as a sop to the Knox contingent. After a long-distance telephone talk with Mr. Knox, Magee declined to accept anything that looked like a favor from Penrose.

"HANDS OFF" TO ROOSEVELT.

Barnes Declares Legislature Does Not Take Orders—Also Names Taft.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 23.—Resentment of expected interference by President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt in the direct primaries situation was voiced to-day by the machine leaders here when they learned that Gov. Hughes had been invited to visit Mr. Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill and that he had accepted the invitation.

William Barnes, Jr., the Republican boss of Albany, sounded the note of defiance in a double-leaded article which, under the caption of "Hands Off," led the editorial page of his newspaper to-day. It said:

"The Legislature of the State of New York does not take its orders from Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Taft, or Mr. Hughes. The Governor's pride of opinion has simply disclosed the intemperance of his character and his ambition to grasp the very power which he claims he is endeavoring to destroy."

One of the legislative leaders said today that even the interference of Mr. Roosevelt would make no difference and that the Cobb compromise bill was doomed to defeat now, as it was at the regular session.

The news of Mr. Roosevelt's invitation went a long way, however, to encourage the advocates of direct nominations in and out of the Legislature, although it was admitted that Mr. Roosevelt's invitation did not necessarily mean that he would come out in support of applying the system in whole or in part to this State.

It was learned here to-day that Mr. Roosevelt's letter was written before he landed from the steamship which brought him from Europe, and that the invitation was such as to make it plain that he had not asked the Governor to come to Oyster Bay to discuss direct nominations or the extra session. Doubt was expressed here to-day of the possibility of the Governor's making the visit before the adjournment of the Legislature.

ROOSEVELT WON'T DIP INTO POLITICS

Says He Has No Idea of Making Political Speeches at This Time.

HAS ANOTHER BUSY DAY

Attends to Many Business Matters, Holds Conferences, and Has Luncheon with Rough Riders.

Before returning to Oyster Bay last night after two strenuous days in town, Col. Theodore Roosevelt gave an interview to reporters at The Outlook office, and for the first time since his return from Africa touched lightly on his political position. A question as to the probable date of the first political speech in his coming tour brought it out.

"I don't know that I shall ever make another political speech," declared the Colonel emphatically, looking as surprised as possible.

"What, never, Colonel?" asked THE TIMES reporter.

"Well, I don't say never," replied the ex-President with a smile, "but I don't know when it will be. I have no such idea in mind at present. The speeches I am going to make in the West are not political and will have no reference to either Republican or Democratic politics. I am going to deliver addresses before associations like the Cheyenne Society and the Hamilton Club in Chicago, in which I may touch on various subjects, but certainly not on politics."

This declaration was in line with the reported utterances of Col. Roosevelt at the private dinner given to him by Robert J. Collier, owner of Collier's Weekly, on Wednesday night. At that dinner, to which reporters were not admitted, the Colonel declared unequivocally, according to some of those present, that if any one had any idea that he would interfere in any way with the Taft Administration that person was mistaken. The people had elected Mr. Taft President, and he ought to be let alone to run the affairs of the Nation; the people had chosen him for that work. This, it was said, was a fair summary of the purport of Col. Roosevelt's remarks.

"When do you expect Gov. Hughes at Sagamore Hill?" was asked at the interview yesterday afternoon.

"I don't know for certain," the Colonel replied. "The Governor in his letter to me said he would be pleased to come, but could not fix a date for a few days, because he was so very busy."

"Are you coming to the city again before going to Harvard?"

"No," said Col. Roosevelt, "I don't think so. I have so much to do at home. There were many things to be attended to after I left the White House which I had to neglect, as I was preparing for my African trip, and they must be looked to now." He added that Gifford Pinchot and James R. Garfield would dine with him to-day and spend the night at Sagamore Hill. Two Rough Riders were coming to luncheon to-day. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Heany of San Francisco were invited to dinner and to stay the night. Henry L. Stimson, who as United States District Attorney prosecuted the Sugar Trust, was coming to luncheon to-morrow, he said, and Col. W. R. Nelson, editor of The Kansas City Star, was to pay him a visit on Sunday. There were two or three other visitors coming on Saturday and Sunday, said the Colonel, whose names he had forgotten.

In the course of a hot day Col. Roosevelt, clad in black silk coat and a Panama hat and perspiring freely, managed to do all this:

Leaving the home of his brother-in-law, Douglas Robinson, in Madison Avenue shortly after 10 o'clock he took an automobile to The Outlook office, went through two bags containing 1,000 letters with his English secretary, held a long conference with David Mulvane, a Republican State Committeeman from Kansas, followed by an educational discourse with Brander Matthews, Professor of English Literature at Columbia University, on "Simplified Spelling," and what other people thought of it; gave brief audiences to less important callers until nearly 1 o'clock, when Col. Brodie took him away to luncheon with the Rough Riders at the Harvard Club.

There the Colonel told some of his African adventures, while the Rough Riders sat around and drank beer from its native keg.

After luncheon he drove to The Outlook office again and dictated several letters, saw the Abernathy children, gave an interview to the reporters, then rode out to Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, in his automobile, stopping for a few minutes to see Mrs. Mary Ledwith, the old family nurse, at her home, 334 East Thirty-second Street, on the way.

When Col. Roosevelt arrived at the Harvard Club just after 1 o'clock with Col. Brodie in the automobile the yellow flag of the First United States Volunteer Cavalry was suspended over the entrance, but there were no Rough Riders in waiting to give their old leader a welcome. This was explained by the fact that a fine cold keg of beer had been broached a few minutes before, and the Spanish-American war veterans, who were suffering from thirst, had succumbed to its allurements.

There were ten policemen and a sergeant on duty in front of the club to keep the crowd in order, but their services were not needed. The block in West Forty-fourth Street, from Sixth Avenue to Fifth, is so cheerless in its aspect that even Col. Roosevelt's appearance, the sergeant said, could not arouse enthusiasm in its residents.

As he stepped out of the motor car a well-dressed woman who was passing, bowed to the Colonel, who raised his Panama hat and shook hands with her before entering the club. The luncheon was given in the big dining room, where the 100 guests were seated at ten tables, with Col. Roosevelt at the head on the right hand of Col. Brodie.

The former President received a rousing welcome on entering the room. While the orchestra played "What's the Matter With Father?" the Rough Riders sang "What's the Matter With Teddy?" After the luncheon Col. Roosevelt received a flag from the G. A. R. men of Guthrie, Okla., which had been brought to New York by L. D. Muxlow.

He had only intended to spend an hour with his old comrades, but when the yarn spinning started the Colonel forgot his engagements and it was 3:30 before he got away.

Among the guests were Henry P. Fletcher, Minister to Chili; Hoffman Philip, First Secretary to Constantinople, and Craig Wadsworth, Secretary to the Legation at London; Gen. Sherman H. Bell, Adjutant General of Colorado; George H. Curry, ex-Governor of Oklahoma; Capt. Thomas Leynning of the Texas Rangers and Major W. H. H. Lewellyn of New Mexico.

HOW TO SLEEP IN HOT WEATHER.

Advice on this very timely subject, from experts, will be one of the features of next Sunday's New York Times.

Be sure to order next Sunday's Times early.

HOTTEST DAY YET CAUSES FIVE DEATHS

Temperature at 4 P. M. Reached 91 Degrees, but a 16-Mile Breeze Brought Relief.

COOLER WEATHER PROMISED

Many Sleep in Parks and on Roofs and Fire Escapes—City Hurrying Floating Baths Into Place.

New York fretted yesterday through the warmest day of the year. The temperature got up to 91 degrees.

The mercury began its upward climb with the coming of the sun. At 8 A. M. it was 77 degrees, and by noon it had reached 87. At 2 P. M. 90 was recorded and at 4 P. M. it was 91, the maximum for the day.

One man died of heat, and two others, being overcome, received falls from which they died. There were thirty-four prostrations.

Patrick J. Fuhry of 546 Forty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, died in his home.

Two more deaths due to heat were reported last night. The victims were Mrs. Lifkowitz of 132 East 109th Street and Herman Lipschitz, 6 weeks old, 40 Essex Street.

William Fargeant, 60 years old, was ascending the stairway in his home, 1,005 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, when he was overcome and fell, fracturing his skull.

Edward Kraft of 416 Van Brunt Street, Brooklyn, overcome by the heat, toppled through an opening in a new building at Forty-third Street and Broadway. He was killed instantly.

There is promise of slight relief in the forecast issued by the Weather Bureau last night. The weather will remain fair for at least two days, but there is coming a moderate north to west wind which will cause a lowering of temperature. "Not quite so warm" is the official language conveying the good news.

The humidity at 8 A. M. yesterday was 69, much higher than at the same time Wednesday, but as the day progressed the wind increased and the humidity lessened. The eight-mile western breeze of the early morning increased to a comforting sixteen-mile wind by 3 P. M.

The city officials are hustling to help the city withstand the heat. Borough President McAneny is hurrying to get the floating baths in commission.

Fire Commissioner Waldo yesterday ordered that the fire horses returning from fires must not be driven faster than a walk or trot and upon their arrival at the fire houses proper attention must be given to them immediately. In Central Park Bill Snyder gives all the animals shower baths three times a day. All those with heavy coats have been sheared.

With the coming of evening many thousands crowded to the parks and, as on Wednesday night, many spent the night there rather than sleep in crowded tenements shut in from the air. Others perched upon fire escapes or roofs.

14 DEATHS IN PHILADELPHIA.

Man Overcome by Heat Falls in Front of a Train—Temperature 100.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—Excessive heat here to-day caused one man to end his life with a bullet from a revolver and another was overcome and fell in front of a train which killed him in the presence of hundreds of travelers. In addition a dozen deaths were directly due to the weather.

This was the third day of the hot wave, the mercury reaching 94 degrees, according to the official report, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The street thermometers registered as high as 100 degrees.

Four Die of Heat in Newark.

Four deaths were charged up to the hot wave yesterday in Newark, N. J. The victims were John H. Van Eck of 1,182 Broad Street, Dorothy E. Hartman, 1 year old, of 61 Ridgewood Avenue; Helen Krupinski, two months old, of 14 Van Buren Street, and Patrick J. Bellow, foreman in the Weston Electric Works.

Heat-Stricken, Falls Beneath Train.

PASSAIC, N. J., June 23.—Apparently overcome by the heat as he was walking over the Monroe Street crossing of the Erie Railroad this afternoon, Roger Ryan of Passaic Street fell in the path of an out-bound express train and was cut to pieces. The train continued on to Jersey City and its crew did not hear of the accident until they reached the terminus.

PROF. HIDALGO ARRESTED.

Well-Known San Francisco Author and Society Man Accused by Woman.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—José Hidalgo, Professor of Spanish at the University of California, former Consul for Guatemala in Japan, author of works on aerial navigation, President of the University Aero Club, Director of the Pacific Aero Club, and member of many other social organizations, was placed under arrest at the Hotel Navarre at 4 o'clock this morning by detectives from Police Headquarters.

He will be held pending the investigation by the Grand Jury and the police of a story told by Mrs. Grace B. Ellifritz, known also as Mrs. Grace Carter, 24 years of age, a magazine writer, and once a reporter on a Chicago newspaper. She states that she was approached by Hidalgo as she was tramping the streets penniless, and that he struck a bargain with her whereby he was to send money to her and she was to go to him so.

The woman told her story to Richard Barry, a magazine writer who is on the Coast investigating the white slave traffic, and Barry told it to the police. It was arranged that the woman should make an appointment with Hidalgo for last night. Detectives, together with Barry, secreted themselves in an adjoining room. Hidalgo arrived promptly, and it is said that his entire conversation with the woman was recorded by a stenographer.

GEORGE V. CREATES SEVEN NEW PEERS

HARMSWORTH BARONETCY

Brother of Lord Northcliffe Honored—Knighthood for Quiller-Couch, the Novelist.

LONDON, June 23.—Seven peers were created to-day in honor of the birthday of King George, which will be celebrated to-morrow, although the King was born on June 3.

The new peers include Sir Walter Foster, a noted physician, and Member of Parliament for the Ilkeston Division of Derbyshire; Sir Weetman Dickinson Pearson, and Sir Christopher Furness.

Sir Christopher Furness is the great shipowner, who, as a Liberal, represented the constituency of Hartlepool in Parliament since 1900. He was unseated last month by the court, and his recent election was declared void on the ground that illegal payments had been made through his agents. The court stated that Sir Christopher was not personally guilty of corrupt practices, but that he must suffer for the acts of his agents.

Among the Baronets created to-day is Harold Harmsworth, brother of Lord Northcliffe.

A long list of Knights includes A. T. Quiller-Couch, the author.

To Americans the most interesting among the King's birthday honors will probably be the Baronetcy conferred upon Harold Harmsworth, who is almost as well known here as is Lord Northcliffe.

Of all the amazingly successful Harmsworth brothers—sons of the late Alfred Harmsworth, barrister of the Middle Temple—Harold is said to be the greatest financial genius. Although he differs politically from his eldest brother, Lord Northcliffe, Harold Harmsworth is closely associated with him in business, and is a familiar figure at Caremlite House, London, the home of The Daily Mail and of a large number of the other Harmsworth publications, which altogether number between seventy and eighty, and provide employment for something like 15,000 persons. Harold Harmsworth, indeed, is said to be practically the chief financial director of these various undertakings, and it is also said that his personal fortune is at least as great as if not greater than that of Lord Northcliffe.

In this connection it may be interesting to mention that another of the Harmsworth directors, Kennedy Jones, who is also a millionaire, is said to be "slated" for a baronetcy, and afterward for a peerage, when the Unionist Party regains power.

Among the new peers, Sir Balthazar Walter Foster is among the most distinguished, and is one of the few famous physicians who have also taken up political careers. For a time he was Parliamentary Secretary to the Local Government Board, and for four years was Chairman of the National Liberal Federation.

Sir Weetman Pearson is the head of the great contracting firm, and Sir Christopher Furness is head of the Furness Line of steamers, and one of the richest men in England.

Mr. Quiller-Couch is one of the best-known English novelists. "Dead Man's Rock," his first successful book, was published in 1887, and a long series of works have followed it. Among his most highly praised writings is the completion of the late R. L. Stevenson's "St. Ives." The maner in which he imitated Stevenson's style in the work is regarded as marvelous.

BROOKLYN WOMAN SELF-SHOT

Wife of N. F. Murray, Druggist, First Tries Chloroform—Recovery Doubtful.

Special to The New York Times.

LIBERTY, N. Y., June 23.—Mrs. Susan Murray, the young wife of N. Francis Murray, druggist, of 210 Sixteenth Street, South Brooklyn, shot herself three times this evening in the Garrett sottage, where the Murrays have been staying for several weeks. Mrs. Murray has been suffering from nervous trouble for several years, and her husband brought her here, thinking that the change would do her good.

When her husband left her after luncheon she went down to the village, procured a four-ounce bottle of chloroform, and drank the contents on returning. Afterward she obtained her husband's .32-calibre pistol.

One of the bullets whic hhad entered her abdomen was removed by Dr. A. B. Sullivan, who was called in. Two bullets which penetrated the left lung he would not attempt to remove for fear of internal hemmorrhage. Dr. Sullivan says there is no chance of recovery.

Mrs. Murray, before firing the fatal shots, wrote the following note to her husband:

> To My Dear Husband:
>
> Frank, hope you will forgive me for for doing this, as you have been good and kind to me, but I am tired of life and cannot stand this nervous trouble any langer. Good-bye,
>
> Your loving wife, SUE.

Mrs. Murray is 26 years old and has been married nine years.

CENTENARIAN SURVIVES FALL.

Drop of Two Stories Only "Shook Up" Solomon Levy.

After surviving a fall from the roof of a house, Solomon Levy, a Brooklyn centenarian, left the Jewish Hospital in that borough yesterday with an ambition to wrest the long-life championship from Methuselah. As he was still well, despite the accident, Solomon felt encouraged in his aim to break the old-age record.

"A fall like that would have crippled or killed a boy of 60 or 70 years or a young fellow of about 80," said he, with pride, "but it only shook me up."

Mr. Levy lives at 2,267 Pitkin Avenue, Brooklyn. He says he is 106 years old. Comparatively old men in his neighborhood, who have known him all their lives, say that he was a gray-haired man when they were boys.

On June 6 last Mr. Levy fell from the roof of his home, dropping two stories. At the hospital it was found that he was suffering from shock, but that not a bone had been broken. Because of the man's great age the physicians feared that his experience might prove mortal. The centenarian astonished everybody by mending rapidly, and yesterday he was discharged from the hospital. Unassisted he walked two blocks to a trolley car, on which he rode to his home.

A June Day on the Hudson River Day Line steamer is a restful pleasure.—Adv.

JAPAN TO POLICE KOREA.

Convention by Which Empire Gets New Powers Practically Concluded.

TOKIO, Friday, June 24.—A convention between Korea and Japan has practically been concluded.

By it Korea delegates to Japan the entire police administration. The unified police system will be placed under the authority of a commander of gendarmes.

MRS. TAFT AT BEVERLY.

She and Her Children Reach Their Summer Home in Massachusetts.

BEVERLY, Mass., June 23.—Accompanied by Miss Helen Taft and Charles Taft, Mrs. Taft reached her Summer home late in the afternoon, coming from Boston in a big touring car.

The Yale-Harvard game proved too strong an attraction for Robert A. Taft, who proceeded to Cambridge on arriving in Boston.

FALLS ON WHITE HOT INGOT.

Workman Is Cremated in Pit at West Penn Steel Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, June 23.—John Mitchell, a steel worker, was cremated in the West Penn Steel plant, on the outskirts of Pitsburg, this morning. He had charge of one of the soaking pits. He called to a fellow-workman to perform some regular task.

The man pulled the wrong lever, opening a great door at the feet of Mitchell, who fell forward into the seething pit and upon a white steel ingot which he had just placed there.

In two minutes not a trace of Mitchell's body remained.

STOLE A RIDE, THREE KILLED.

Harvest Hands in Kansas Caught in a Freight Wreck.

WICHITA, Kan., June 23.—Three men, probably five, were killed and ten were injured to-day in the wreck of an extra St. Louis and San Francisco freight train east of Haverhill.

All the killed and injured were harvest hands from Missouri, who were stealing a ride. Thirteen men were riding on top of a carload of bridge timbers just back of a box car. When a broken flange caused the wreck the timber car ran through the box car, and the men were wounded by splinters.

NO MILLION FOR CORNELL.

Executor of Goldwin Smith Estate Says There Are Other Large Bequests.

TORONTO, Ontario, June 23.—"There is a bequest to Cornell University of the residue of the estate after other bequests are deducted," said Larratt Smith, executor, to-day speaking of the announcement that the bulk of Prof. Goldwin Smith's estate will go to Cornell. "But there are many other large bequests.

"A million dollars has been suggested as the amount Cornell will receive. That is a wild guess. The amount will not be so large as some people think."

BROKE HIS BABY'S PAROLE.

Flynn, Saved by Its Wail in Court, Is Up on Another Charge.

Judge Foster in General Sessions will have before him to-day a young offender, who has violated a parole given under unusual circumstances. It is believed that severity awaits him.

James Flynn was one of three convicted of robbery. The fruits of their crime were six loaves of bread and a cheap watch. Flynn's associates in the enterprise, men each with a police record, got heavy prison terms, but just at the crucial moment, when Flynn himself was about to be sentenced, a loud and inspired wail from his baby in the rear of the courtroom led the court to suspend judgment on the grateful father.

That was in January, and yesterday Judge Foster learned that Flynn was pleading guilty before Judge Swann to an assault charge.

SAYS POLICEMAN TOOK CASH.

Davis Is Arrested, His Prisoner Charging Extortion Against Him.

On complaint of Dominick Cipolloni of 223 East 111th Street, who is out on bail on a charge of assault, Policeman John G. Davis of the West 125th Street Station, who arrested him on May 21, was arrested himself in full uniform in front of his station last night by Central Office Detectives Cain, McLoughlin, and Cook, on a charge of extortion and of having promised for a consideration to quasn the complaint against Cipolloni.

Cipolloni told Pasquale Perrino, a saloon keeper, of 226 East 111th Street, that the policeman had directed him to meet him in front of the West 125th Street Station last night if he wanted the charge against him quashed. Perrino reported the matter to Headquarters last night.

The three detectives say they watched Cipolloni meet and talk to Davis in front of the station at 9 o'clock, and finally raise his hat as a signal that he had passed to the policeman a marked ten-dollar bill which they had given him. Then they arrested Davis. When searched, however, there was no trace of the ten-dollar bill about him. He refused to say anything.

Later Deputy Commissioner Walsh was notified, and Davis was ordered suspended. Davis has been in the department three years.

BEREAVED GIRL MISSING.

Sixteen-Year-Old, Despondent Over Father's Death, Gone from Home.

A general alarm was sent out by the police last night for sixteen-year-old Tillie Keeshan, a daughter of Mrs. Anna Keeshan of 551 West 125th Street, who has been missing from her home since Sunday morning, and who, her mother fears, may have been kidnapped.

The girl had been a close companion of her father, Patrick Keeshan, who died a month ago, as a result of a fracture of the skull suffered on May 20, when a man pushed him from the sidewalk at 129th Street and Broadway. She was a home-loving girl, and never left the house after dark, and according to Mrs. Keeshan, she had stayed at home more than ever since her father's death, brooding and crying most of the day, and unable to sleep at night.

On Sunday morning, dressed in heavy mourning from head to foot, she went to church at 124th Street and Broadway, returning home at 10 o'clock. She left the house a little before noon, to go to the home of a friend, Helen Katch, at 132d Street and Amsterdam Avenue, with whom she had made an appointment to go walking in the afternoon. She never reached the friend's house and has not been seen or heard of since.

Mrs. Keeshan said last night she feared her daughter, who was very good looking, might have been intercepted midway between her home and her friend's home and induced to go aboard one of the boats leaving the pier at 129th Street and the Hudson River. The mother and her other child, Anna, aged 8 years, have been searching for her ever since, seeking her in vain at the home of every friend and at several houses where she had worked as a maid since she left school three years ago.

CATCH CHARLTON HE CONFESSES

Brother of Woman Killed at Lake Como Causes Arrest of Her Murderer.

TAKEN ON HOBOKEN PIER

Youth Says He Hit Her on the Head and Sank Her Body in Lake Como.

WILL HE BE EXTRADITED?

Italy Declining to Return Her Citizens, Washington May Decide Not to Let Him Go—He Can't Be Tried Here.

Porter Charlton, the young American who fled from Lake Como, Italy, after the murder of his wife there, was caught here yesterday. He landed from the Italian steamer Prinzess Irene yesterday afternoon and was pointed out to detectives on the pier by his brother-in-law. After sharp questioning at Police Headquarters in Hoboken, Charlton confessed that he had killed his wife, put her body into a trunk, and sunk the trunk in the lake.

The murder took place on June 8, and the body was found on June 10. Since then the police of Italy and other European countries have been searching for the missing husband.

Extradition May Be Refused.

Last night the most interesting question remaining in regard to the crime was where the self-confessed murderer would be tried for it, if at all. Italy declines to surrender her fugitive citizens to the United States for crimes committed on American soil; there is no precedent here for the trial of an American for a crime committed in foreign territory, and it may be contrary to public policy in this case to grant a demand for Italy which Italy refuses to us. Meantime the Italian Consul General is preparing to make formal demand upon our Government for Charlton's extradition. His father, Judge Charlton, who is in the Bureau of Insular Affairs in Washington, was notified of his son's arrest and came last night to Hoboken, where he had a long interview last night with his son in his cell. After the interview Judge Charlton said that his son was insane and that that would be his defense. Charlton, held as a fugitive from justice, will be before the Recorder this morning.

Only once after his arrest did Charlton, a slender youth, with a weak face, but with nothing to stamp him as a criminal, show any emotion. When asked by a reporter in his cell at Hoboken if he knew that his wife was still alive when he packed her body in the trunk, and consigned it to the waters of the Italian lake, he looked up quickly, and in a voice choked with sobs exclaimed:

"Heavens! not that. She was dead when I put her in the trunk. Don't tell me she was still alive and breathing. I am sure she was dead."

Charlton, in the office of Chief of Police Hayes of Hoboken, and confronted with indisputable evidence of his identity, which he had tried to hide, dictated an account of the murder. After carefully reading it over he added a few lines completely exonerating the Russian, Constantine Ispolatoff, who was arrested by the Italian police, charged with complicity in the crime.

Charlton Cool in Court.

When arraigned before Recorder McGovern, a few minutes later, Charlton listened attentively while the confession was being read by the police Chief, and then asking the Recorder for a pen, calmly scratched out a few words. This is the confession:

> My wife and I lived very happily together. She was the best woman in the world to me. But she had an ungovernable temper and so had I. We frequently quarreled over the most trivial matters and her language to me was very foul, language that I know she did not know the meaning of, I am sure.
>
> The night I struck her she had been quarreling with me. It was the worst temper I ever saw her in. I told her if she did not cease I would leave her and put a stop to it. She quit for a while, and after a short time renewed her abuse of me. I was dazed and struck her with a sort of a mallet that I had been using to straighten out the leg of a couch we had been using. I struck her two or three times and thought she was dead. I then placed her body in the trunk and threw the mallet in also. About 12 o'clock that night I removed the trunk from the house and dragged it down to a small pier near the house and threw it overboard.
>
> I remained at Maltrasio the next day and left there the following night. I went to Como and from there to Genoa, where I took the steamer Prinzess Irene about four days later. The room where I killed her was an outdoor sleeping apartment.
>
> PORTER CHARLTON.

This is what the prisoner added:

> I have been informed that C. K. Ispolatoff has been implicated in this matter and wish to state that this gentleman is absolutly guiltless. I have no defense to make and wish none. PORTER CHARLTON.

Charlton's identity was established by a laundry bag with his name sewn inside, and by a piece of paper containing an original poem, "The Scroll of Life," to which his name was signed, both of which were in one of two suitcases he carried, the full extent of his baggage. Although he had carefully obliterated every other trace of his name, these two articles were in plain sight. Several other poems were found in the suitcases, some original and others copied from publications, but all showing a morbid trend of thought.

Charlton feared arrest from the time he left Genoa on the night of Thursday, June 9. When the Prinzess Irene touched at Naples, Palermo, and Gibraltar he went ashore, and acted in an ordinary manner. Detectives were stationed on the piers at all these places, but no one molested him. They searched the ship from stem to stern. He mingled freely with the passengers on the liner, and made a half confidant of one, and also of the deck steward, from whom he borrowed $5.

Told Steward Police Sought Him.

Although he informed the steward that the police of Genoa were after him without saying what for, and that detectives would probably be watching for him when the boat landed in New York, the suspicions of those in authority were not aroused, and the ship's officers were surprised when they learned later who their passenger was.

The boat was equipped with wireless telegraph, and it would have been a simple matter to notify the New York police. The officers of the liner and the passengers had read all about the finding of the body before they left Palermo, and discussed it freely on the trip over.

Charlton is 21 years old, and he does not look any older. He is slim of figure, short, and has a beardless, boyish face. He is of a blonde type, with small, watery blue eyes, set rather close together; short blonde hair, naturally curly; a weak mouth, but rather a firm chin. His chin is the most striking feature of his face. He is rather good-looking in an effiminate way. About the only attempt he made at disguise was to cut his hair rather close, and this added to his youthful appearance.

As he stood before Recorder McGovern in court he was thoroughly self-possessed and took an active interest in the proceedings.

Charlton's arrest was due in great measure to Capt. Henry Harrison Scott, the brother of the murdered woman. Capt. Scott went to Hoboken believing that Charlton was on board the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland. It was by the meerest accident that he went to the North German Lloyd pier with the detectives. He reached there just as Charlton's baggage had been examined by the customs officials. Had he arrived fifteen minutes later Charlton would have gone. Capt. Scott obtained an accurate description of Charlton from the officials of the National City Bank at 55 Wall Street, where Charlton was formerly employed, and he recognized the young man as soon as he saw him.

He followed the prisoner to Hoboken Headquarters, and was present when Charlton admitted his identity. Charlton, however, would not make his confession so long as Capt. Scott was in the room. At the request of Chief of Police Hayes Capt. Scott stepped into an anteroom, and when Charlton had signed the statement he came out. He was visibly affected and edged close to Charlton. Capt. Hayes thought the army Captain was going to attack the prisoner and he asked him if he was armed. Capt. Scott reached in his pocket and drew forth an army revolver.

"Take this," he said, handing it to the Police Captain, "before my anger gets the better of me and I use it."

Scott Says God Guided Him.

Capt. Hayes took the revolver and Capt. Scott left the room. Tears stood in his eyes.

"God did it," he said. "God directed me, and I was able to land the right man."

When the court proceedings were over Capt. Scott told in detail how he had been guided to Hoboken, arriving there in the nick of time after following up clues which the police had paid no attention to.

"Call it intuition, premonition, or what you will," he said, "something told me that Charlton was coming to America, and I never doubted for a moment that I would get him.

"Several days ago I read in a newspaper that Charlton might be aboard the Deutschland. Right after the murder I suspected Charlton. In fact, I felt sure that he was the murderer, and I reasoned that his first impulse would be to get to America as quickly as possible. If he did not start at once I knew that he would stay in Europe indefinitely. Therefore when I read that the Deutschland was coming I made up my mind to be on hand when she arrived.

"Last night I got permission from my commanding officer to take a ten days' leave of absence, and I started immediately for New York. There was no regular way of leaving Fisher's Island where I am stationed, so I hired a launch and engaged two soldiers to take me to the mainland. I got across the race all right and reached New London about 1 o'clock this morning. I took a short nap in the station there and caught the first train, at 3:15 o'clock, for New York, arriving here at 7 o'clock this morning.

"I went directly to Police Headquarters and asked for help, telling Inspector Russell that I was going to board the Deutschland. The Inspector assigned Detective Ross to accompany me. Then I went to the National City Bank and got the officials to furnish me with a complete description of Charlton. Then I went to Hoboken and asked Chief of Police Patrick J. Hayes for assistance. The Chief was very friendly, and assigned Detectives Thomas Garrick, Lewis Weinthall, and Michael O'Fallon to go with me. He also made arrangements for a tugboat to take us down to Quarantine.

"We learned that the Deutschland would not arrive there until late in the afternoon, so Detective Garrick, who does duty along the water front, suggested that we go first to the North German Lloyd piers, where he said the Prinzess Irene was then docking. We got there about 12 o'clock, and found that she had docked twenty minutes before, and the passengers were all on the pier having their baggage examined by the customs officials.

"I looked through several stalls, and then my heart seemed to stop beating, for right in front of me I saw a young man nervously trying to open a suit case while a customs officer was patiently looking on. I knew instinctively that the man was Charlton, but of course, never having seen him, I wasn't absolutely sure of it. I had gone ahead of the detectives, because they didn't know the man and I had to pick him out.

Charlton First Denied His Identity.

"I asked the young man his name, and he said it was Jack Colman. I asked him if he was sure it wasn't Charlton, and if he could identify himself. When he said his name was on the ship's passenger list a detective got one and found it there. For a moment I was afraid I had made a mistake, and telling the detectives to watch the man, I went to the telephone and called up the National City Bank.

"I told them there was a man on the pier who answered Charlton's description, but that he did not have long curly hair. They told me to ask the man to write his name, and as I had a letter from Charlton in my pocket, it would be an easy matter to contrast signatures. I remembered then that I had received a letter from Charlton about three days before. It had been mailed from Genoa before the murder, and in it he asked me to send him a list of names so that he could send on marriage announcements. The letter had been sent to my old quarters at Fort Meyer, Ala., and then forwarded to Fort Wright, where it had been held some time for lack of sufficient postage.

Two Effective Ways

¶Obtaining a situation is not a matter of chance; it is the result of systematic effort.

¶There are two ways of securing a situation. First—select a position from the Help Wanted column of The New York Times. Second—insert an advertisement in the Situation Wanted column—both are equally effective.

"Returning to the pier I saw the suspected man was acting very nervously. When I asked him to write his name on a card he did so, but the handwriting was so cramped I knew he was trying to fool us. The letter J bore a striking similarity to the J in the letter I had in my pocket. When the detectives searched the man they could not find a single thing upon him that would disclose who he was. He did not have even a watch, although there was a chain. Then the detectives took the prisoner and the two suit cases to Headquarters.

"As soon as he was in Capt. Hayes's private room the Captain asked him to write his name on a slip of paper. The prisoner took the paper and wrote 'Porter Carlton,' purposely leaving out the 'h.' When the Chief asked him why he had written that name when he had said his right name was Colman, the prisoner mumbled something, and then the Chief ordered the detectives to open the suitcases.

"Almost the first thing the detectives picked up was a small laundry bag made of cheap cloth. Inside was plainly printed the name Porter Charlton. There was also a bit of paper with a poem on it which was signed the same way.

"'What's this you fellows are handing me?' Charlton exclaimed. 'I'm Jack Colman, and you can't fool me this way.'

"The Chief told Charlton to own up, as they had his identity thoroughly established, and after some hesitation he said he would do so if I left the room. The bank officials had warned me that I would meet a very self-possessed young man who would try to put up an awful bluff, but I wasn't prepared for such a front as the prisoner showed.

"Now that I have run down the murderer of my sister, I can rest easy. I requested the State Department at Washington several days ago to have the body of my sister forwarded to San Francisco, and she will be buried in the Cypress Lawn Cemetery there.

Sister Wrote Brother She Was Happy.

"I received two letters from Genoa a short time before the murder. One was from my sister and the other from Charlton. My sister wrote that she was very happy and having a good time. Charlton wrote that he was happy and said he would later send me a list of names of those to whom he wanted announcements of his marriage sent. From their letters I judged that both were very happy, and the terrible news of the murder came as a thunderbolt out of a clear sky.

"I have been stationed at Fort Wright only four weeks, but I will go back there feeling that I have done my full duty toward my poor sister."

Capt. Von Letten-Peterssen of the Prinzess Irene saw very little of Charlton on the way over, but other officers remembered him well. W. Reinhold, the second cabin steward, and Frederick Schwab, the deck steward, saw more of him than any of the others. Reinhold got to know Charlton well, but he never suspected he was the murderer he had heard so much about at Palermo.

"I think I was the first person on the boat to fall in with Charlton," said Schwab. "We were due to sail from Genoa on June 9. The night before we left a young man came aboard and introduced himself as John Colman. He said he was short of funds and wanted to stay on the boat over night. I told him that was against the rules of the company. He argued with me a long time, but I didn't give in and the young man went away. Next morning he appeared again and said he had booked second-class passage. I showed him to his berth, and I noticed then that he had only two suit-cases and no trunks. I thought he was a young American stranded abroad and was trying to get back home as cheaply as possible."

"I saw little or nothing of Charlton," said Steward Reinhold, "until we reached Palermo. He went ashore there along with a number of other passengers as he did at Naples. The newspapers were full of the finding of the body of the woman in Lake Como by this time, and we eagerly read all about it. I remember that Charlton spoke about the case, but as a rule he avoided it. Detectives were on the pier at Palermo and boarded the ship. They went away again, thoroughly satisfied apparently that Charlton was not on the ship.

"At Gibraltar we received another close inspection by the police. They went all over the ship, talked to many of the passengers, including Charlton, and seemed to be satisfied that we did not have the right man aboard.

"We left Palermo about 7 o'clock at night. An hour later Colman, or Charlton, came to me and pointed out a tall, beautiful woman who was leaning over the rail. She had dark red hair and seemed to be an American. Charlton said he had just talked with the woman and was convinced that she was a detective. He said that he had had a little trouble in Italy and wanted to keep out of sight as much as possible. He asked me to find out all about the woman, and I inquired about her from the deck steward and concluded that she was not a detective at all, and that she was going to leave the boat at Gibraltar. Charlton then plucked up courage and renewed his acquaintance with the woman. She told him, he afterward confided to me, that she was a professional singer and was on her way to travel through Spain. She got off at Gibraltar and we saw nothing more of her.

"Out of 139 passengers there were only three Americans on board, and Charlton got rather chummy with them. He picked out a man named Charles J. Farguharson and the two were often together. Farguharson told me once that he was on his way to Canada. The two sat on deck for hours at a time.

Bought Wine for Women Passengers.

"Charlton drank very little in the first days of the trip. I know he ran up a little bar bill. Last night he ordered and paid for two bottle of champagne. He said he was going to give the women a little treat, and I guess he did. Charlton seemed to brace up considerably after drinking the wine. In fact, he was more hilarious than I had seen him on any previous day. He retired late last night, but was up early this morning.

"On the way up the bay he came to me and said he was flat broke and wanted to borrow $5. He said he would get the money as soon as he landed and repay it, so I let him have it. Out of the money he settled the bar bill and paid what he owed for the steamer chair he had used. All the way up the bay he seemed to be extremely nervous, and kept constantly asking me if I thought detectives would be on the pier. I told him they certainly would. He then wanted to know if there wasn't some way by which he could slip off the boat without being seen, but I told him there wasn't a chance in the world.

"As the boat swung into her pier he pointed to one of the stairways used by the customs officers and wanted to know if he couldn't get off that way. When I told him it would be impossible he quieted down and was one of the first to get off the boat. Customs Inspector McGregor examined his baggage, and was on the point of letting him go when the detectives arrived and detained him. I never dreamed that he was the Lake Como murderer or I would have reported the matter to the Captain."

When Charlton was taken before Recorder John T. McGovern he gave his age as 21 years and said he was a bank clerk. He said his New York address was the Hotel Woodward, at 4 West Fifty-fifth Street. This is where he and his wife stayed after their marriage and just before leaving for Europe last April. He looked to be the coolest man in the court-room, and when the Recorder read his confession and asked if it was correct, Charlton reached over, picked up a pen from the Recorder's desk, and without a tremor crossed out the words "I would leave her" in the first part of the confession.

He was pale and the rims of his eyes were red as from weeping. He was dressed in a faded blue serge suit and carried a black derby hat in his hand. He wore a high, turned-over collar and dark string tie and black shoes. Excepting an extra suit of underwear, he had no change of clothing in his suit cases.

After the court proceedings Chief Hayes led Charlton to a cell in the building. He complained of being hungry, and the Chief sent in a plentiful meal. Charlton ate it with relish. He was put in a patrol wagon and driven to Fifth and Washington Streets, where he was photographed for the Rogues' Gallery and measured. His progress through the streets was followed by a crowd, while another crowd surrounded the headquarters building.

When he returned to his cell a TIMES reporter asked him if he had anything to add to his confession. It was then that he expressed surprise upon learning that his wife had been alive when thrust into the trunk.

"I have made a full statement and I have very little to add to it," said Charlton without emotion. "I am sorry about Ispolatoff. He was in no way concerned in the crime and knew nothing about it. He is a very intelligent Russian and visited us frequently. The rest over there are cattle.

Lack of Pistol Kept Him from Suicide

"My wife and I both had tempers, but her's was ungovernable. She used very foul language and I was beside myself when I struck her down. There were never two persons better mated than we were if it had not been for her temper. I am sorry I didn't have a revolver when I was in Italy. I would have killed myself then, I think.

Charlton was asked what he had intended to do if he had got away.

"I had no immediate plans, except to get by the detectives," he replied. "I have no defense. I am sure my wife was dead when I put her in the trunk."

"He was the coolest prisoner I ever saw at first," said Chief of Police Hayes, "but he broke down considerably when he discovered that we had evidence of his identity. He lost all his swagger and seemed to go right to pieces when we opened his suit case and found his name on his linen. He became violently ill and I thought it would be necessary to send for a physician. The presence of Capt. Scott seemed to agitate him considerably, and when I sent the Captain out of the room he recovered himself. What seemed to worry him most was the news that he had put his wife in the trunk alive.

"The young man has none of the car marks of the criminal, and he doesn't even look vicious. I should say that he was rather weak physically although not at all weak mentally.

"It was about the quickest roundup of a prisoner of note, I ever saw. Within less than an hour after the steamer docked we had the man the police of all Europe were looking for, a full confession from him, and the case cleared up."

Charlton had not been locked up an hour before a representative from R. Floyd Clarke's law office at 37 Wall Street appeared at the Hoboken prison and announced that Mr. Clarke would appear this morning in the young man's interest. A telegram also came from Charlton's father asking for information about the arrest.

Prisoner's Father Meets Him.

Judge Paul Charlton, the prisoner's father, accompanied by his son Robert, 19 years old, and R. Floyd Clarke, a lawyer of 37 Wall Street, arrived at Hoboken Police Headquarters at 10 o'clock last night. The father and his son Robert waited in the private room of Chief of Police Hayes until Porter Charlton was brought in. The prisoner and his father greeted each other without any signs of affection. The father held out his hand, but the prisoner refused to take it.

The party sat down then and had a long talk. After that father and son grew more friendly and when the former started to leave both were in tears and embraced several times. The father assured the son that he would protect him.

Lawyer Clarke said that Charlton's defense would probably be insanity.

"Porter has not been just right for some time," said the lawyer. "Since he has been abroad his father has received two letters from him, both of them very incoherent and peculiar. There can be no doubt but that the boy is insane. We will hire alienists to prove it."

The lawyer after a consultation with Recorder McGovern obtained a delay of the hearing set for to-morrow morning for twenty-four hours on the ground that it would take that time to prepare for the proceedings.

According to the counsel, Judge Charlton met his son in New York on March 28 last and went with him to the Hotel Woodward, where he was introduced to the son's bride. The meeting, the lawyer said, was not a particularly friendly one. Later, the same night, he met the couple again and the meeting was even less friendly. He said the father was not in sympathy with the marriage at all. When Porter Charlton went abroad, the lawyer said, the father gave him an allowance after he had tried unsuccessfully to get him to enter a sanitarium for his health. According to the lawyer, young Charlton has consumption and has been addicted to periods of insanity.

"Porter has tuberculosis and had to go away for a rest," said the prisoner's father last night. "His wife was a woman of experience and almost twice his age. To my mind, the most convincing proof of his insanity is his return to this country. His every action since his arrest points to an unsound mind. For instance, when he was told that I was coming to see him he remarked, 'How flattering.'"

Mr. Charlton said he would apply to the Federal authorities for permission to ascertain his son's mental condition and that he had no doubt the result would be his son's confinement in an institution.

Mr. Clarke said that if Charlton should be found insane our Government would undoubtedly decline to grant extradition, even if the Italian Government should see fit to make such a request under the circumstances.

Charlton will be taken at 9 o'clock this morning before Prosecutor Garven of Hudson County. Acting Italian Consul General Gustavo di Rosa appeared at the Hoboken Police Headquarters last night and told the Chief of Police that all the papers in the case had been sent to Italy. An effort he said would be made to have Charlton extradited as quickly as possible. Mr. di Rosa denied that a proxy trial had already been held in Italy as is usually the case when a criminal cannot be found in order to make it impossible for him to take advantage of the statute of limitations. He said that under the Italian law a murderer under twenty-one years of age could not receive the maximum punishment of life imprisonment. Charlton has just passed twenty-one.

How nearly right Capt. Scott was in his premonition that Charlton would come by the Deutschland was shown when Steward Reinhold said that Charlton informed him that he had originally intended to return to America by the Deutschland, but had urgent business in the country, and was compelled to take a steamer sailing on an earlier date.

This is the poem which was found in Charlton's suitcase, and which led to his identification:

THE SCROLL OF LIFE.

I struck with idle hand the strings upon the Harp of Life
As twilight shadows fell across the uplands from the sky;
Soft, fleecy clouds and tender shadows hid the signs of strife
'Twixt day and night, and at my touch unrolled before my eye
The scroll of life—the scroll that each man slowly learns to read
Who soars above the common things and will the heights attain;
Whose heart from earthly lust, from selfishness and pride is freed,
And on it read these words: "Who seeks for Peace must pass through Pain."

JOHN RODNEY, (Porter Charlton.)
Washington, Nov. 21, 1908.

History of the Crime.

Early in the morning of June 10 the body of Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton was found by fishermen in a trunk in Lake Como, near the village of Moltrasio. The woman and her husband, Porter Charlton, had ocupied a villa on the lake front leased by them some time before. The police authorities of Cernobbio, the nearest town of consequence to the scene of the crime, started a rigorous investigation. They found that Constantine Ispolatoff, a Russian, had been a frequent visitor at the villa and arrested him. He denied all knowledge of the crime. The identification of Mrs. Charlton was made from papers and letters found in the abandoned villa.

Porter Charlton, the husband, had disappeared, and it was thought at first that he also had been murdered and his body hidden. The lake was dragged for several days but without result. The police then decided that Charlton was the murderer. The proprietor of the Hotel Suisse at Cernobbio declared that a couple calling themselves Mr. and Mrs. Porter had arrived at the hotel several weeks before. He said the pair quarreled frequently, and that he heard the woman crying often late at night. He declared that Porter treated her cruelly.

The guests at the hotel complained that they were disturbed by the woman's cries. One morning very early the proprietor was aroused by shrieks. He found, he said, that the woman had hidden in a cupboard, hoping to escape her husband, but that the husband had found her and was dragging her into the street. He said he had to request them to leave the hotel.

From there they went to the villa at Moltrasio. Three days before the body was found the villa was closed. The suddenness of the abandonment caused some discussion among the villagers. Orders to arrest Charlton were telegraphed to the frontiers and ports. All departing ships and trains were searched.

The murdered woman was formely Mrs. Neville H. Castle. She was a daughter of Henry H. Scott, a coal merchant of San Francisco. She had trouble with her first husband and obtained a divorce. Last year she came into prominence in New York when she attempted to shoot William R. Craig, a lawyer, at the Waldorf-Astoria. He withdrew a complaint of assault which he made against her.

On April 10 her friends in San Francisco received cards announcing her marriage to Porter Charlton a few days before. The marriage took place in Wilmington, Del., and was not made public until the couple reached New York following the ceremony. It was then announced that they intended spending their honeymoon abroad.

Young Charlton left Washington, according to his father, in December, 1908, and went to New York, where he obtained work in the foreign department of the National City Bank.

The inquest performed by the Italian authorities showed that Mrs. Charlton had been put into the trunk in which her body was found, while alive. She had been struck, it was shown, in the face by a blunt instrument so hard that her nose was broken. The nature of the weapon used in the assault was not determined. No mallet was found in the trunk.

Charlton's Stepmother Coming Here.

BALTIMORE, June 23.—Mrs. Charlton, stepmother of Porter Charlton and daughter of Dr. A. Wantall of this city, was visiting her mother this afternoon when she received a telephone message from her husband, Judge Charlton, at Washington, and father of the man arrested in Hoboken. He told her of the arrest. Mrs. Charlton immediately left Baltimore to join her husband.

TO CHECK COLORADO RIVER.

Californians in Congress to Ask for $2,000,000—Situation Menacing.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—A joint resolution placing $2,000,000 at the disposal of President Taft to check the ravages of the Colorado River in the Imperial Valley in Southern California is proposed in a resolution prepared to-night by Senator Flint and Representative Smith of California. It will be presented to the Senate and House committees to-morrow.

Telegrams to-day from Yuma to both Senator Flint and Congressman Smith conveyed the information that the river had broken out of its banks in Mexico, across the line, and that unless it were checked great damage would result. The telegrams asked that Congress take immediate action to save the section. The authors of the dispatches asked if there would be time to send a delegation to Washington to urge Congress to act.

The river is said to be cutting a new channel through miles of country and endangering not only the irrigation system of the fertile Imperial Valley and the big farming investments there, but also the Government irrigation projects at Laguna Dam.

The California representatives in Congress were hopeful to-night of getting favorable action on their resolution. The $2,000,000 appropriation was suggested by Director Newell of the Reclamation Service. Negotiations may be undertaken with the Government of Mexico looking toward joint international control of the lower waters of the Colorado River.

CHIEF KOEHLER VINDICATED.

Golden Rule Head of Cleveland Police Acquitted and Forthwith Reinstated.

CLEVELAND, June 23.—Chief of Police Fred Koehler, known throughout the country as the "Golden Rule" Chief, and lauded by former President Roosevelt as the nation's best police executive, was acquitted to-day of charges of gross immorality and habitual drunkenness by the Civil Service Commission, before whom he has been on trial.

An hour after his acquittal he was reinstated as Chief by Mayor Baehr, who had suspended him when the charges were filed. The filing of the charges and the subsequent trial caused a sensation. It was charged on the one hand that Chief Koehler, as a firm ally of former Mayor Tom Johnson, had built up the Police Department into a formidable machine, and on the other hand that the charges were the outcome of a secret political cabal, which had for its aim the ousting from public life of all of Johnson's supporters.

The trial lasted nearly two weeks and about two hundred witnesses were examined. Early in the proceedings the prosecution was compelled to drop thirteen of the original twenty-three charges on account of lack of evidence. In its decision the commission exculpated Chief Koehler unreservedly.

strong labor union town. His first appearance as an insurgent was greeted with laughter.

Many good Republicans and equally good Democrats who have spoken in favor of labor organization measures avoided the vote to-day. The corridors were fairly filled with fleeing members when the time for roll call approached. It was declared by several organization men that enough Democratic votes had been "shooed" from the chamber at the last moment to insure a victory for Chairman Tawney.

Mr. Tawney, who, as a member of the conference, had been insisting upon the adoption of the Hughes amendment by the Senate, made a strong appeal to the House to recede from its original position. Representative Madison of Kansas one of the staunchest of insurgents, made an especially vigorous speech on the same lines. His sudden appearance as the champion of the House organization drew over a number of wavering members.

Representative Hughes defended his provision and made a strong denial of Mr. Tawney's charge that it had been submitted for political purposes.

"It is significant," he said, "that the Republican Party, built on the idea of striking the manacles from the black slaves, should seek now to put manacles on the white slaves, the laboring men of this country."

LABOR CHIEFS INDIGNANT.

Council of American Federation Declare the House Betrayed Workers.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The information that the House had defeated the Hughes amendment was received "with indignation" by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, now in session here.

"It is regarded," says the report of the council, "as a betrayal of the rights and interests of the workers of the country. In the debate upon this subject it was held that the proviso to protect the organizations of labor, even if retained, would be of doubtful benefit. The House proviso is of an important character both in effect and influence.

"An industrial dispute with employers for better wages, shorter hours, and improved conditions of employment may and has been the basis for criminal indictments and civil suits."

After reviewing several noted suits of this sort the report concludes:

"The retention of the House proviso in the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill will not only prevent the criminal prosecution of workmen engaged in the normal activities to protect and promote their rights and interests, but it will also be declaratory in character, tending toward a solution of a situation which now practically outlaws the associated effort of the workers in defense of their personal rights and interests."

MAY FREE CHARLTON DESPITE HIS CRIME

Italy to Ask for His Surrender Must Reverse Her Position on Extraditing Citizens.

TO REFUSE SO MUST WE

Curious Complication Brought About by Italy's Insistence on Trying Her Own Citizens—We Can't Try Him Here.

Unless the United States creates a precedent by trying an American citizen here for a crime committed abroad—a contingency for which lawyers say there is no provision in the criminal code—or creates still another precedent by surrendering that citizen to the foreign Government within whose jurisdiction he committed the crime, Porter Charlton will never be tried for the murder of his wife in Italy.

The case is complicated by the fact that the foreign Government in this particular case is Italy. If the treaty between this country and Italy were strictly followed there could be no question that the extradition must be made, for this treaty is one of the four made by the United States, which does not exempt from its provisions criminals flying to the countries of their citizenship.

Of late years, however, Italy has persistently refused to be bound by this provision and in the face of the formal protests of the United States has declared that it must obey its own municipal laws, passed since the treaty was signed, which prohibit the extradition of Italian citizens to any country whatsoever. Instead, the Italian courts have been in the habit of trying such fugitives as have been arrested there at the request of foreign Governments and has meted out to them such justice as the Italian law provides.

Constitutional lawyers in this city said last night that a very delicate and interesting point had arisen in this matter. The older authorities, such as Wheaton, take the ground that "a State should never authorize the extradition of its own subject or subjects or of persons accused or convicted of political or purely local crimes or of slight offenses, but should confine the provision to such acts as are, by common accord, regarded as grave crimes."

It has however been the established policy of the United States, according to a number of State papers collected by Prof. John Bassett Moore of Columbia, the recognized authority on the subject, to do away with any limitation of the right to demand extradition. It has resisted the insertion in such extradition treaties as it has contracted, of any clause exempting from the operation of the treaty an alleged criminal who has fled to the country of which he is a citizen.

It has succeeded in doing so in four of its treaties, among which is that with Italy. As a matter of fact, Italy has refused of late years to grant the extradition of any of her subjects, who after committing crimes in this country, have escaped home, and has instead tried them herself. To this procedure the United States on several occasions has protested in the strongest terms, and has argued that thereby not only is there far less possibility of securing a conviction, through the difficulty of securing evidence, but also that the effect of the punishment on the community is largely lost.

A case in some ways on all fours with that of Charlton occurred in 1890. In that year three Italians committed an atrocious murder in Luzerne County, Penn., and two of them, Vincenzo Vilella and Giuseppe Bevivino, escaped to Italy. The third was captured and turned State's evidence against his comrades. The Governor of Pennsylvania applied through the Department of State for their extradition, and was met with a refusal. This brought forth from Secretary Blaine a long protest to Signor Fava, the Italian Minister, in which he went at length into the entire question.

The refusal of the Italian authorities to give up Vilella and Bevivino was based on the fact that the Italian penal code, then recently adopted, expressly forbade the extradition of Italian subjects. Referring to this, Secretary Blaine said:

> It is true that the authorities of a country may, by reason of (a municipal) statute, find themselves deprived of the power to execute a treaty. But if, in obeying the statute, they violate or refuse to fulfill the treaty, the other party may justly complain that its rights are disregarded and may treat the convention as at an end. Hence in appealing to its statutes to justify its action in the present case, I understand the position of the Italian Government to be that those statutes are merely declaratory of the law, by which nations are bound to be governed in their dealings one with another.

Mr. Blaine refused to accept as a satisfactory substitute for extradition the trial of the fugitives in the country of their citizenship, saying: "It does not satisfy the ends of justice to say that, although a nation does not extradite its citizens, it undertakes to try and punish them. The chief object of extradition is to secure the punishment of crime at the place where it was committed, in accordance with the law which was then and there of paramount obligation. It is at the place where the offense was committed that it can be most efficiency and most certainly prosecuted."

In the case of these two Italian murderers the Italian courts sentenced one to twenty years and the other to fifteen years, but in a similar case in which the French authorities refused to extradite a Frenchamn, who was accused of murder in this country, an acquittal resulted from lack of evidence.

Paul Emile Roy, a Frenchman, was arrested in France at the request of the American authorities in January, 1908, on the charge of having murdered George A. Carkins, a brother of Glacia Calla, the actress. Application for his extradition was made by Gov. Floyd of New Hampshire through the State Department, and the French Government, after an examination of precedents, determined to refuse it, as he was a French citizen. They tried Roy themselves, and he set up a plea of self-defense. He traversed the evidence brought forward by the prosecution, and it was impossible in France to get testimony to controvert him. He was consequently acquitted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Charlton case comes directly under the treaty of 1866 between the United States and Italy, in which there is a provision dealing specifically with such cases. Article 1 declares that the Governments mutually agree to deliver up "persons who, having been convicted of or charged with the crimes specified in the following article committed within the jurisdiction of one of the contracting parties, shall seek an asylum to be found within the territories of the other, provided that this shall only be done upon such evidence of criminality as, according to the laws of the place where the fugitive or person so charged shall be found, would justify his or her apprehension and commitment for trial if the crime had been there committed."

Article 2 enumerates the crimes covered by the treaty, and murder heads the list. Other articles of the treaty cover the method to be followed in securing extradition. Under the provisions of the treaty the case seems simple. But there is a complication which may result in setting Charlton at liberty. It is that Italy has declined to grant extradition in similar cases and has held that "it could never consent to the delivery in extradition of its subjects."

In 1888 Italy refused to extradite Salvatore Paladino, on the ground that being an Italian subject he could not be extradited. The State Department then declared that it possessed no guide in the matter "but the language of the treaties which contain no such limitation as that suggested."

In 1894 there was another precedent in the cases of Bevivino and Villella, who, having committed murder in the United States, had escaped to Italy. They had not taken out naturalization papers here and were still citizens of Italy. When the Italian Government replied that it could not consent to their extradition the State Department, Mr. Gresham being Secretary, responded:

"While this Government will not at this time insist upon its rights under the treaty, it nevertheless does not waive such rights nor asquiesce in the view taken by the Government of Italy."

These two men were tried in Italy and convicted and sentenced to twenty and fifteen years' imprisonment respectively.

In 1890 this Government undertook to secure a supplemental treaty specifically declaring neither party should be obliged to surrender its own citizens. The matter drifted on till the second Cleveland Administration, when Mr. Gresham wrote to Baron Fava, the Italian Minister, saying: "The President is unwilling to enter into any treaty of extradition which will exclude citizens or subjects of either country from its operation."

ROME, Italy, June 23.—Just what action the Italian authorities will take in connection with the arrest of Porter Charlton in Hoboken has not yet been determined. It is believed, however, that Charlton's extradition will be sought. An indication of the Government's attitude is found in the request which the Government made a few days ago to the British authorities for the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of Charlton, who was then thought to be hiding in England.

Extradition in such cases is covered by the convention between the United States and Italy, concluded in 1888, and an additional convention concluded in 1884. Charlton's confession gives the matter a new aspect, as the confession of criminals has not been taken into consideration in these conventions.

The fact, too, that Charlton's arrest occurred in his own country may delay action on the part of the Italian authorities until the views of the American authorities have been learned.

GAYNOR OPPOSED TO YOUNG BRIDES

Didn't Want Any of His Daughters to Wed Before They Were 25, the Delaware Version.

VINGUT EXPLAINED MATTERS

Gave All the Details to the Attorney General at Wilmington Before the Marriage.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 23.—An explanation was made to-day by Attorney General Andrew C. Gray, son of Federal Judge Gray, regarding the reason why Harry Kermit Vingut of New York came here yesterday with Edith Augusta Gaynor, daughter of Mayor Gaynor of New York. It was in the office of the Delaware Attorney General that the Rev. Dr. Lewis Wolfe performed the ceremony.

"I have known Mr. Vingut for fifteen years," said the Attorney General. "He told me they eloped to Wilmington because Mayor Gaynor objected to the marriage of Edith or any of his daughters until they were 25 years old."

Mr. Gray said that Mr. Vingut called him from New York by telephone yesterday making the appointment. He continued:

"About 1 P. M. he arrived. He said, 'I want you to help me.' 'All right,' I replied, 'I am at your service.' He then said he had come here to be married. He was alone, and I was surprised, and I asked, 'Where is your bride?' He said that Edith Gaynor, the bride-elect, and her friend, Mrs. Halstead Swan, were in a cab in front of my office.

"I suggested that it would be better for him to be married in New York at Miss Gaynor's home because of the talk an elopement would create, but he said such a thing was out of the question; that Mayor Gaynor objected to the marriage until his daughter was 25 years old.

"'Edith and I have talked this whole thing over,' Mr. Vingut continued, 'and we have decided to get married to-day in Wilmington.'"

Mr. Gray said he informed the bride-groom-elect that if that was his final decision he would help him all he could. Meanwhile Miss Gaynor and Mrs. Swan were sitting in the cab.

"Mr. Vingut accepted my suggestion to bring them to my office," Mr. Gray continued. "That was the first time I had met either of them. I asked Mr. Vingut if he had procured a marriage license or engaged a minister. He said the cabman had informed him that Dr. Wolfe would perform the ceremony. I summoned Dr. Wolfe to my office by telephone, and also procured the marriage license. Soon afterward the ceremony was performed privately."

Mr. Vingut sent a message to Mayor Gaynor informing him of the marriage, while the bride wired the news to her mother. These messages were sent from Mr. Gray's office.

It was learned to-day that Wilmington was selected because of the ease with which marriages can be performed here.

MRS. VINGUT "VERY HAPPY."

Henry Kermit Vingut and his bride, who was Miss Edith Augusta Gaynor, daughter of the Mayor, who were married unexpectedly in Wilmington, Del., on Wednesday, were still at the Plaza last night. They went out for the evening last night, whether or not to visit the bride's parents, could not be learned.

The Mayor took the matter quite coolly yesterday, and while admitting frankly that the wedding was practically an elopement, did not seem at all displeased.

"Why, we never so much as suspected such an event," said he. "We did not even know of the engagement. My wife got a dispatch at St. James, and I one in Brooklyn, last evening, from young Vingut, saying they had been married and were on the way back. All they had to do was to let us know, and we would have given them a fine wedding, but I suppose they wanted some romance."

The corridors of the Plaza were besieged with newspaper men early in the day, and finally Mrs. Vingut was persuaded to give an interview. She received reporters in the parlor of her suite and blushingly declared that "there is not much to say."

"We just decided to get married, and that's all there is to it," said she. "I am very happy, and only want to be left alone. In fact, I am simply brimming over with happiness. What more can I say?"

SENATORS FIX BLAME FOR HIGH PRICES

Not the Tariff, Says a Committee, but Increased Cost of Farm Products and Food Supplies.

DEMAND HAS GROWN, TOO

Democrats Reserve the Right to Make a Minority Report, but Cannot Agree Among Themselves.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The select Senate committee on the increased cost of living made its majority report to-day. The Democratic members reserved the right to file a minority report later. The only utterance from them to-day came in a brief speech by Senator Smith of South Carolina. He denounced the majority report as a "hodge-podge." Mr. Smith is known to be at odds with his own associates on the minority side of the committee because they refused to employ experts and prepare a report of their own. It is doubted that the minority will have time to prepare a report before the end of the session.

As expected, the majority of the committee, headed by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, exonerates the tariff from all responsibility for the increased cost of living. The chief blame is put upon the increased cost of farm products and the inceased demand for them. Labor unions are exonerated of the charge of having run prices up unreasonably, and in an explanatory statement accompanying his report Mr. Lodge declares that prices have increased faster than wages.

"The committee's report," says Senator Lodge, "discusses in considerable detail the various suggested causes of the increase in prices, such as the increased cost of production of farm products, the demand for farm products and the supply, the tariff, combinations and associations, the gold supply, the labor unions, cost of distribution, cold storage, sanitary and other regulations, overcapitalization, immigration, higher standard of living, and freight rates on the commodities of life.

"No conclusions are drawn by the committee, but from its report it is evident the most important factor in creating the present increase in prices is the increased cost of farm products and the increased demand for farm products and food supplies in the United States."

Mr. Lodge devotes little of his statement to a discussion of the effects of the tariff on the cost of living. The greatest advances in prices, he says, have been in commodities on which the tariff has little, or no, effect, and the complete removal of all duties on these articles could not have afforded relief in the recent stringency, as in general prices were as high in other countries as in America.

"The advance in prices during the past ten years," says Mr. Lodge, "appears to have no relation to tariff legislation. The groups of articles which have shown the greatest advance, the products of the forests and the products of the farm, are those for which there has been practically no change in tariff during the past twenty years which could in any way account for the increase in price. The Tariff acts of 1894, 1897, and 1909 have made no changes which to any appreciable degree measure the changes in prices which have taken place."

No attempt is made to deny the increase in prices, although it is contended that the United States has fared no worse in this respect than other nations. From March, 1900, to March, 1910, the increase in the United States in the wholesale cost of the principal commodities was 21.1 per cent. Hogs and hops are reported to have advanced 100 per cent.

"Of 48 articles of food," says the statement, "35 advanced, 1 remained at the same price, and 12 declined in price. Bacon, lard, and mess pork advanced over 100 per cent. Practically all articles which declined in price are of slight importance, as far as family consumption is concerned, excepting potatoes, one description of bread, and two descriptions of fish.

"Of 47 descriptions of cloths and clothing, 39 advanced in price, 1 remained the same price, and 7 declined in price. Drillings made the greatest advance, while suitings made the second greatest. Raw silk shows the greatest decline, with wool the second greatest.

"Of 33 commodities in the group of metal and implements, 10 advanced in price, 2 remained at the same price, and 21 declined in price. Builders' hardware increased over 100 per cent. Barb wire made the greatest decline, with nails the second greatest.

"Of the 13 commodities under fuel and lighting, 7 advanced in price, 1 remained stationary, and 5 declined in price. Coal increased in price, while petroleum declined.

"Of the 21 commodities under lumber and building materials, 18 advanced and 3 declined in price. Rosin advanced 100 per cent., and poplar lumber made the second highest advance. Cement and putty declined.

"Of the 9 commodities under drugs and chemicals, 4 advanced, 1 remained at the same price, and 4 declined in price. Opium made the greatest advance and quinine the greatest decline.

"Of the 13 commodities under housefurnishing goods, 6 advanced, 1 remained unchanged, and 6 declined in price. The articles which advanced were woodenware and furniture and those which declined were glassware, table cutlery, and earthenware."

On the subject of wages, Mr. Lodge says, in part, in his statement:

"In the principal industries in the United States during the period from 1900 to 1907 wages per hour advanced 22.1 per cent.; full-time weekly earnings advanced 17.6 per cent.; hours of labor per week were reduced 3.7 per cent. The advances in wages in certain specified occupations are shown for the United States and for the principal foreign countries, and almost without exception the advance in the United States is much greater than in foreign countries. In practically every country the hours of labor per week are also longer than they are in the United States."

The report says the cost of production of farm products has risen rapidly during the last ten years. Wages of regular farmhands have increased from 45 to 75 per cent. during the period from 1900 to 1910. Farm lands have practically doubled in value. Farm implements and supplies have increased from 7 to 30 per cent. Practically all kinds of supplies except binder twine show an increase. Witnesses before the committee declared that farm operations had been conducted at a loss or, at best, with only a very slight margin of profit for several years.

No inferences are drawn on the subject of the effect of trusts, though particular instances are cited where the increased cost of a commodity is due to combination. Cold storage is credited with having tended to level prices throughout the year, though, it is added, the system has also enabled dealers to hold perishable articles for higher prices than could otherwise be obtained.

DISTRICT GAINS 52,551.

Census Shows Population of 331,069 in the District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The population of the District of Columbia is 331,069, according to the returns of the thirteenth decennial census. The population for the District in 1900 was 278,718, and in 1890, 230,392. This shows under the census of the current year an increase during the last ten years of 52,351, or 18.8 per cent., while the increase of the preceding decade was 48,326, or 21 per cent.

The Census Office also announced that the population of Adams County, Ill., is 64,588, and gave out figures for three Texas counties as follows: Howard, 8,881; Morris, 10,439; Scurry, 10,924.

It was announced that the Director of the Census had issued certificates of population to those counties in connection with the State laws governing elections, and it was said that the preparation of the figures was hastened in order that they might be available in advance of the announcement of population in the regular course.

PLEDGES KEPT, SAYS TAFT.

Statement Published Over President's Signature in His Brother's Newspaper.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 23.—In a signed statement in The Times Star, owned by his brother, Charles P. Taft, President Taft says:

"I am elated at the legislation which has been enacted by this Congress. It has fulfilled the pledges of the party. It is a great satisfaction to me that we have accomplished so much. It has been the custom in the past to try to fulfill party pledges during the term of the President elected; we have secured what we set out to get during the first regular session of Congress.

"We now have the best railroad regulation law we ever had. The provisions for the supervision of capitalization were omitted, but this does not mean that they have been abandoned. Renewed effort to enact them will be made at the next session.

"I think the party in power has enacted legislation which will inure greatly to its benefit. It has kept its contract. The Congress which is now closing its first regular session has done what it promised the people to do, and the Republican Party has a good record to take to the people in the coming elections."

NO INVITATION.

Pleasant Anticipations Aroused by Young Mr. Rockefeller All in Vain.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., foreman of the "white slave" Grand Jury, was long in conference in the office of District Attorney Whitman yesterday. It was 2 o'clock, well past the luncheon hour, when he emerged.

Mr. Rockefeller smiled his greetings to the group of office attachés and reporters waiting outside for the conference to end.

"Hello, boys!" he said cheerily. "Had your luncheon yet?"

"No, Sir," they chorused, amid expectant smiles.

"Neither have I," confided Mr. Rockefeller, and vanished toward the elevator.

STATE INCOME TAX PROPOSED.

New Bills for Progressive Inheritance Tax Are Also Introduced.

ALBANY, June 23.—A bill providing for a State income tax is being prepared by the legislative bill drafting department for introduction at the present session of the Legislature. There is no certainty that an attempt will be made to press the measure to passage.

Senator Hill and Assemblyman Merritt introduced bills to-day providing for a progressive inheritance tax along the lines suggested by the Governor in his message. The Senate bill was advanced to third reading without reference.

The Assembly adopted a concurrent resolution offered by Mr. Oliver of New York, expressing the appreciaton of the Legislature for the courtesies extended to its representatives by Mayor Gaynor and the committee in charge of the reception to Theodore Roosevelt on the occasion of his home-coming.

Only three Senators and half a dozen Assemblymen were present at to-day's session, which was brief. To-morrow will be another legislative day. Speaker Wadsworth left for his home to-day. He will return Monday.

INHERITANCE TAX VETOED.

Hughes Disapproves Merritt Bill for Reasons Given in Message.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 23.—The Governor vetoed the Merritt Inheritance Tax bill today for the reasons given in his message to the extraordinary session and Senator Emerson's bill relative to sales for nonpayment of taxes in Warren County in relation to acquiring forest preserve lands.

Quite a lot of bills were signed, including Assemblyman McCue's, exempting from the transfer tax law property devised or bequeathed for religious ceremonies, observances, or commemorative services of or for the decedent donor.

Assemblyman Wilsnack's two bills extending for five years the time for the completion of the New York Connecting Railway Company's railroad and its bridge across the East River were approved.

STOLEN HORSES FOUND HERE.

One Arrest Made and Police After Thieves Who Are Busy in Country.

Complaints have been received here that more than forty horses have been stolen since April 1 from farmers in the vicinity of Union and Passaic, N. J. Three horses, said to be among those stolen, were recovered in this city last night, and their new owner, John Ignatz, a porter of 602 East Sixteenth Street, was arrested. The police think the thefts will be traced to a bold gang of horse thieves with headquarters here.

The horses found here include one belonging to Dennis Long, a farmer of Union, N. J., valued at $200, stolen from his stable on May 16. The thieves hitched it to a light spring wagon, removing the cover and substituting old for the new harness, and then, piling a few boxes into the wagon, drove away as if to market. Another of the horses recovered last night was identified by Henry Muth of Passaic, N. J., as one stolen from his stable about the same time, and the third is said to belong to a third farmer in the neighborhood.

Detective Corbally of Newark, who, with Detectives Cassassa and McKenna of the Central Office, arrested Ignatz last night, arrested on Monday John Rosckensky and his wife, Victoria, whom, he says, he found on the Plank Road with a horse stolen from Union. Rosckensky, he says, told him he had sold a horse to Ignatz for $40. Thereafter a boy with a description of Lang's horse was set watching the stable of Fred Nuhn, at 621 East Twelfth Street, where Ignatz boarded his horses. Last night the boy said he recognized Long's horse, although a white spot on one foot had been dyed black to conceal its identity. Then Long and Muth came from Newark and identified two of three horses as theirs.

Ignatz refused to tell how he had come by the horses, but denied that they were stolen. He admitted, however, according to the police, that he knew Joe Gallatin, who was recently shot and killed by a policeman at Far Rockaway while driving in a stolen horse and buggy.

Among the other thefts of horses reported to the police were those of two teams and two market wagons, valued at $1,400, from a man named Wells, at Irvington, and two horses and two wagons from John Donovan of the same place. Donovan later got a letter from New York telling him that his horses had been sold to a man in Boston, whose address was given. There he recovered them. Michael Murphy, a Constable at Union, was awakened by a burglar alarm in his stable two weeks ago, and rushing there with his revolver, found his horse and wagon hitched up and ready for removal. Since then farmers of the neighborhood have been sleeping well armed in their stables or setting up burglar alarms and trap guns.

ASKS ROADS TO DELAY COMMUTATION RISE

Commerce Board Wants Till Aug. 1 to Consider New Jersey Commuters' Complaints.

NEW TAFT LAW INVOKED

Chairman Knapp Wires Presidents of Railways Into New York—Says He's Doubtful of Jurisdiction.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Chairman Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day sent the following telegram to the Presidents of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, the Erie, the Pennsylvania, the Central of New Jersey, the Lehigh Valley, the New York Central, and the Philadelphia & Reading Railways:

> Several complaints have been filed against advances in commutation rates between New Jersey points and New York City, and the commission is urged to suspend the same. The New law has not been carefully examined and some of my associates are absent. Under the circumstances, and to afford opportunity for proper consideration both as regards our power and the propriety of its exercise, the commission requests your company to postpone until Aug. 1 the effective date of tariffs announcing these advances. Your compliance with this request will be highly gratifying and permission to postpone will be granted on application.

Many of the tariffs filed with the commission and involved in the complaints referred to by President Knapp in this dispatch to the railway Presidents become effective as early as June 26. The proceeding, which is the first under the new railway law just pushed through Congress by President Taft and signed by him, was initiated by a delegation from New Jersey, consisting of Attorney General Edmond Wilson of that State, Senator Briggs, P. F. Backus of the Attorney General's office, and Alfred N. Barker, Secretary of the New Jersey Railroad Commission, who appeared before the Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day to urge a suspension of the advanced commutation tariffs.

The complaints filed included that of the New Jersey Railroad Commission and several other complaints received from various municipalities of New Jersey, all directed against proposed advances of rates by the same lines of railways. At the informal hearing on the subject the New Jersey complainants' delegation, headed by Attorney General Wilson, was informed that it was questionable whether the commission would accept the complaints, as the commission was doubtful of its jurisdiction over the matter of commutation rates. Mr. Wilson urged upon Chairman Knapp and Commissioners Cockrell and Harlan action by the commission to suspend the advanced rates, under the new law, as, he asserted, 98 per cent. of the traffic involved was inter-State commerce.

"This condition is so acute and so imperative," he declared, "that the commission ought to exercise the discretion given it by the new law to suspend these rates until the reasonableness of the proposed advances can be determined."

He pointed out, among other things, that, under the law, the burden of proof of the reasonableness of the increases was upon the railroads.

"Speaking for myself," said Chairman Knapp, when Mr. Wilson had concluded, "I do not think it would do your people any good for this commission to enter an order that might immediately be enjoined by the courts. Personally, I have grave doubt about our jurisdiction over commutation rates."

After the conference the commission went into executive session to consider the subjects presented. Inasmuch as a quorum could not be obtained to-day, the Chairman and the Commissioners present decided on presenting the matter to the railways concerned in the manner indicated in Mr. Knapp's telegram.

It is expected here that the railroads will comply with the request, as a determination of the whole matter is likely to be reached, so far as the commission is concerned, in the course of the next month.

About the middle of July the commission will hold a conference, at which action will be taken looking to the suspension of the freight rates already filed and to be filed effective on Aug. 1. This will be a special conference to attend which several Commissioners will return to Washington from their vacation trips.

No inkling was obtainable last night of the probable action of the railroads on the postponement of the commutation rate advances asked for by Chairman Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

When the freight rate compromise was reached by which the roads agreed to withdraw their freight rate advances in consideration of the withdrawal of the Government's injunction suit the action was concerted. Last night the man who had been most active in the negotiations which brought temporary peace over freight matters said that he had not yet heard of the Government's effort to have the commutation advances postponed pending investigation. The Presidents to whom the telegrams were addressed were not accessible last night.

PARR THANKS PRESIDENT.

Says He Is Not Dissatisfied with $100,000 Sugar Fraud Award.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Richard Parr, whose vigilance in detecting frauds in underweighing sugar at New York saved the Government more than $2,000,000, came to Washington to-day and thanked the President for the award of $100,000 which he is to receive. Mr. Parr denies the statement attributed to him that he was dissatisfied with the amount of the award.

Later in the day Mr. Parr had an interview with Secretary MacVeagh, who is casting about for some means to pay the award immediately instead of waiting for Congress to appropriate it specifically.

TENER GETS WARM GREETING.

Applause Marks Return of Gubernatorial Nominee to House.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Representative John K. Tener, Republican nominee for Governor of Pennsylvania, thwarted some of his colelagues who had planned to give the House a surprise on his return from the convention to-day.

Mr. Tener is a six-footer and a former baseball player. Some of his friends in the House had arranged with Mr. Burke and Mr. Moore of Pennsylvania, both of slight stature, to escort him from the lobby to the floor of the House, and insure a great reception, but Mr. Tener was bashful, and when he arrived at the House he hurried in by another door unheralded. His presence, disclosed by the roll coll, evoked a warm demonstration, members applauding and hurrying to congratulate him.

Representative J. M. Reynolds, Republican nominee for Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania, had a similar reception.

OBDURATE WITNESS FINED.

Judge Makes Wallace Pay $50 for Delaying the Grand Jury.

Judge Hand in the United States Circuit Court yesterday decided to put a stop to the custom of witnesses trying to block the proceedings of the United States Grand Jury by refusing to take oath until brought before a Judge and directed to do so. He fined Lucien J. Wallace, Assistant Secretary of the United Wireless Telegraph Company, $50 for contempt in having so refused in the inquiry following the arrest of C. C. Wilson, President of the United Wireless Company, and directed him to go back to the Grand Jury room, with a rebuke that the excuse was not a proper one and that Grand Jury investigations ought not to be held up in this way.

John Wagner was nominated yesterday to be Postmaster of Long Island City by President Taft. Wagner's name was sent to the Senate for confirmation.

CONGRESS TO CLOSE TO-MORROW—HALE

Says the General Deficiency Bill Should Be Out of Way by That Time.

FIGHT ON ARMY ENGINEERS

Senators Are Unwilling to Withdraw from Stand Which Sent Reclamation Bill to Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Congress will adjourn on Saturday, according to the hope expressed on the floor of the Senate to-day by Mr. Hale of Maine. As Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, Mr. Hale is in the closest touch with the big appropriation bills, and he announced that he confidently expected them to be reported back from conference not later than Saturday morning. Unless something else, he said, should cause delay, he saw no reason why adjournment should not be taken that evening.

There has been talk at the White House that adjournment could not possibly come earlier than Tuesday, and Mr. Hale's statement is taken as an answer to what some considered to be in the nature of a threat intended to fright away opposition to such things as the President wants to se enacted into law.

The House to-day receded from its position exempting in the Sundry Civil bill labor organizations from prosecutions, and this response to the President's influence cleared up the tangle between the two Houses on that measure, so that Mr. Hale expressed the hope that that measure would be disposed of to-morrow. That leaves only the general deficiency bill in conference, and that, Mr. Hale said, would be reported back with an agreement not later than Saturday morning. Among the Senate leaders the President's hope for the passage at this session of his bill increasing the Army Engineer Corps is considered vain. Mr. Bailey of Texas has announced his intention to filibuster against it, and he is said to have fifteen Senators to help him.

The Anti-Injunction, which the President is known to favor for a further item of legislation at this session, is regarded as equally dead for the present.

The strong feeling of the Senate against the army engineers was indicated a day or two ago when the provision in the $20,000,000 bond issue Reclamation bill providing that army engineers must first approve plans for reclamation projects was stricken out. That sent the bill to conference, and though a report has not yet been made it is said to-night that the most the President could get from the opponents of the army engineers was a compromise by which, in the case of projects that have already turned out badly, the President, at his discretion, might call for the opinion of army engineers before allowing the issuance of bonds for that particular project. It still remains to be seen whether Mr. Bailey will fight even this concession to the branch of the service that obstructed his obtaining a rivers and harbors appropriation for the State of Texas.

The Senate spent the greater part of the unusually long session to-day in considering the bill looking to the creation of forest reserves in the White Mountains and the Southern Appalachians. After Senator Brandegee had concluded a speech in support of the bill, Senator Newlands took the floor in opposition, and it soon became evident that a filibuster for the defeat of the bill was in progress.

Senators Newlands and Burton both spoke against the bill and questions of no quorum and motions to adjourn were invoked to delay action.

At its final meeting for this session the House Naval Affairs Committee to-day reported the Foss bill designed to promote the efficiency of the naval militia and give that branch of the service official recognition by Congress. The measure, if adopted, will have the effect of putting the naval militia with respect to the navy on the same footing as that occupied by the National Guard in relation to the army. There has been no official recognition of the naval militia heretofore, except that Congress has annually appropriated a small amount for the militia's training in connection with the navy. The committee also reached a tentative agreement to-day that it would begin consideration of the Meyer reorganization plan early next session. The only legislation that in any way recognizes that plan so far as the present session is concerned is the authorization for the temporary abolition of the Bureau of Equipment.

The Senate amendments to the Campaign Publicity bill were disagreed to by the House to-day, and Messrs. Gaines, Diekema, and Rucker were appointed conferees. Similar action, as already indicated, was taken on the bill providing for the issue of $20,000,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness to aid reclamation projects, the conferees in this case being Messrs. Payne, Dalzell, and Clark.

Clerk Cashed Foster Checks—Rubber Stamp Indorsement.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am to-day in receipt, unsolicited, of the following letter:

June 22, 1910.

The Hon. Edward M. Grout, 111 Broadway.

Sir: In an article printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES June 21, 1910, a statement is made that the indorsement of the Controller appeared on checks drawn by William George Foster during your administration and that of Mr. Metz. The checks in question were ones which I cashed while security deposit clerk for Mr. Foster for his accommodation from moneys in my charge and were deposited by me in the account to your credit and later to Mr. Metz's, as Controller. At the time I saw no reason to refuse to cash Mr. Foster's checks, nor was I creating a precedent by so doing, as I had cashed a number of checks for persons, when properly identified, who wished to be accommodated, during the administration of your predecessor, Mr. Coler, and have since in the administration of Mr. Metz and the present Controller, Mr. Prendergast.

The amounts were all small and for such sums that I personally could take care of in the event of a check being returned marked "No Funds." Respectfully,

JEREMIAH FITZG. DEVLIN.
180 West Eighty-seventh Street.

The practice to which Mr. Devlin refers was unknown to me, as, I presume, it was to the other incumbents of the Controller's office whom he mentions. I find, upon inquiry, that the so-called indorsement of the Controller was, in no case, a personal indorsement, but was made by a rubber stamp.

EDWARD M. GROUT.

Two-garment Suits for Men are not confined to outing wear

In former years the negligee aspect of the two-piece Suit confined it to vacation uses.

Many men who would have harkened to the voice of comfort could not overcome their prejudice against "outing" clothes for business wear.

But the negligee appearance was not intentional. It was merely because most makers were simply making "outing" suits out of business suits by leaving out the waistcoat.

Our two-garment suits are designed for comfort and dressiness combined.

Our craftsmen have devoted their superior skill to the evolution of models that lack little to make them perfect. The styles include either two or three-button coats or Norfolks, many of them with patch pockets. Unlined, quarter lined or eighth lined.

Prices begin at $6.50 for linens, ranging up to $35 in crashes, batistes, homespuns, serges, tropical worsteds, and white or fancy flannels.

SLEUTHS TRAILING NEWLY-MADE LORD

Retainers of H. Clay Pierce Follow Lord Pearson, English Engineer and Investor.

AN OIL BATTLE IN MEXICO

British Control of Fields There the Cause of a Ceaseless Struggle for Supremacy.

Sir Weetman Dickinson Pearson, who was created a peer in England yesterday in honor of King George's birthday, spent the day here trailed by detectives wherever he went. Lord Pearson just now is perhaps the most dreaded enemy of Henry Clay Pierce, head of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, a Standard Oil concern. Lord Pearson and Mr. Pierce have figuratively locked horns in a struggle for supremacy in the oil industry of Mexico.

The detectives are generally believed to be in the employ of Pierce, or of some of the Standard Oil interests. They have dogged his footsteps for more than a year, both here and in Mexico, and even in England, Lord Pearson's home. It is likely that they will keep on dogging him until the commercial struggle between Pierce and his trade rival comes to a close.

Just now Pierce is in Mexico. He went there recently to take personal command of the Waters-Pierce forces. He has taken a house there, and will probably remain for some time to come.

Lord Pearson, who is well known to many New Yorkers for his connection with the building of the Pennsylvania Railroad tubes under the river to Manhattan, came to New York on June 14, taking rooms at the St. Regis. He had scarcely been in the hotel an hour before several young men took up their stations outside the hotel.

Two of them stationed themselves on the steps of the old Harriman residence, just across the street, at Fifty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue. Two more took up the vigil on the Fifth Avenue side. Two others appeared in a taxicab, which drew up in front of the Gotham, near by. There the six detectives remained until Lord Pearson started downtown. There was a signal from the two men on the Harriman house steps. The taxicab started forward, and as Lord Pearson went off in another taxicab the two detectives followed.

This has been repeated every time Lord Pearson has put foot outside of the St. Regis. While he is inside the hotel some of the detectives wait outside, night and day. And it is said that each night when Lord Pearson is safe in bed a full report of his goings and comings for the day is flashed in code over the telegraph wires to Mexico.

The struggle between Lord Pearson and the Waters-Pierce interests is an interesting chapter in modern commercial wars. Several years ago Lord Pearson built the Tehuantepec National Railway, which stretches across Mexico from the Pacific to the Gulf. It does the work on land which the Panama Canal will do by water. The railway was built for the Mexican Government, but Lord Pearson has been operating it since it was completed.

In 1907 Lord Pearson and his associates became interested in Mexican oil wells. They acquired several gushers and built refineries near by. At that time the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had practically a monopoly of the oil business in Mexico. The company had then, and has now, an investment of about $10,000,000 in refineries and other oil plants in Mexico. But the Waters-Pierce interests were not producers of crude oil to any extent. They depended upon the Mexican Petroleum Company, Limited, and a few other concerns for their supply of crude oil.

When Lord Pearson and his associates entered the field they took away from the Waters-Pierce interests every source of supply except the Mexican Petroleum Company, Limited. At present the Waters-Pierce Company finds itself in the position of being unable to obtain more than 200 barrels of crude oil a day from the Mexican Petroleum Company. That is about one-seventh of the amount it requires. The other six-sevenths has to be transported from the United States and a duty of $4.59 a barrel paid when it croses the Mexican frontier. It is a serious handicap in the struggle against Lord Pearson and his associates.

Pearson interests recently bought seven new wells in four districts in Mexico which had never before been exploited. Four of them were gushers, two flowing wells, and one a "pumper." By this stroke Lord Pearson assured himself a supply to meet the demands of the Mexican markets, with enough left over to do a large export business.

Prior to two years ago the profits of the Waters-Pierce Company in Mexico alone were estimated at $2,000,000 a year. Just after Lord Pearson entered the oil industry Pierce approached him in an effort to effect a consolidation of their interests. Lord Pearson flatly refused. It was the signal for the commercial battle which has been waging ever since. One of the first steps was a cut in the price of oil. The cutting has kept up until now oil in Mexico is selling at about 50 per cent. less than it was before 1907.

"Say nothing and saw wood," is my motto, said Lord Pearson in London not long ago, when asked to make a statement about the fight.

Just what part the Standard Oil Company is playing in the struggle is problematic. The Standard is accredited with owning 70 per cent. of the Waters-Pierce stock.

Sir Weetman was asked last night by a TIMES reporter if he was being annoyed by the attentions of the six detectives.

"You know we are not talking about that matter," he said. "It is best not to speak of things of that sort."

Sir Weetman added that he would be in town only a few days longer, and would then sail for his home in England. His friends are wondering whether the detectives will follow him there.

OUR MIDDIES AT PLYMOUTH.

Cadets Had Rough Weather on Voyage—English to Entertain Them.

PLYMOUTH, England, June 23.—The American battleships Indiana, Massachusetts, and Iowa, with 500 midshipmen from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, arrived here this morning. The young sailors are on their Summer practice cruise. The squadron is commanded by Capt. Clark.

The squadron sailed from Hampton Roads on June 9. Instead of following the usual routine of a practice cruise along the New England coast the vessels steamed for Plymouth, the end of the first leg of a 10,000-mile trip. The midshipmen had a taste of rough weather in the course of what was for most of them their first transatlantic voyage. A series of gales and wild seas was experienced.

However, they came through very well, and the only serious case of illness was that of one midshipman on the Iowa. He suffered from enteric fever, and though he was practically convalescent upon his arrival here, was removed to the naval hospital at Stonehouse in order that he might fully recuperate.

Capt. Clark paid an official visit to Admiral Cross, Superintendent of the Devonport Dockyard, who invited the squadron to enter the inner harbor. Admiral Cross returned the visit. Other officers of the squadron came ashore in the course of the day, but none of the midshipmen.

The national mourning precludes official celebrations in honor of the squadron and, owing to the preoccupation of the naval and dockyard authorities in connection with the mobilization manoeuvres, the semi-official entertainment will be on rather a small scale. It is announced, however, that the Lord Mayor of London will entertain the midshipmen.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PARIS, June 23.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria and Queen Eleanore arrived here to-day and were received with full military honors. The programme for their four days' visit is crowded with official functions and fetes.

LIMA, Peru, June 23.—Col. Pizarro was to-day appointed Minister of War, succeeding Gen. Muniz, who, owing to ill-health, resigned as soon as it seemed probable that the dispute with Ecuador would be settled by arbitration.

CHARITY GOT HOGUET WEALTH

Supposed to be Worth Millions, Philanthropist Left $279,312.

Robert J. Hoguet, who died on Oct. 8, and the appraisal of whose estate was filed yesterday in the transfer tax office, gave up much of his wealth and much of his time to philanthropic work for various institutions and individuals whom he felt a moral obligation to protect. This appears from testimony and schedules filed with the appraisal.

Although Mr. Hoguet held title to realty which was worth close to $1,250,000 in this city, his equity in it was scarcely over $500,000, and this amount exceeded his debts by a small margin. Some of the assets of his estate consist of life insurance policies on persons to whom he loaned money, and his net estate consisted almost entirely of personalty, amounting to $279,312. Of this his widow, Marie N. Hoguet, received one-third, while the rest is divided into six equal parts to his four sons, Robert Louis, his executor; Ramsay C., J. Pierre, Rene F., and his two daughters, Marguerite M. and Marie V. Hoguet, exclusive of $1,000 left to the New York Catholic Protectory, $500 left to the Orphan Asylum of St. Vincent de Paul, and $500 to the Home for the Aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor.

Mr. Hoguet advanced money to, managed the financial affairs of, and obligated himself to pay the debts of various religious institutions in which his wife's relatives were interested, according to the appraisal. Among these institutions were the Monastery of St. Dominic at Newark, N. J., of which a relative of his wife was superior; the Corpus Christi Monastery of Hunt's Point, in which there was a relative of Mrs. Hoguet, and the Convent of the Blessed Sacrament at Detroit, Mich., in which there was another relative-in-law of his. Mr. Hoguet also acted, says the petition of his son, Robert Louis Hoguet, as a "sort of guardian" to various relatives by blood and marriage, and to the children and nephews and nieces of former business associates, managing their estates and making advances to them from time to time. The executor says:

"The decedent for some years prior to his death had practically retired from business life except for the supervision of various estates of which he was trustee. The decedent also continued to discharge his responsibility to several corporations and businesses with which he had been connected, but which recently had not been profitable concerns, and also carried on his books the open accounts of various institutions, estates, and persons toward whom he felt a special interest and moral obligation, as well as a few accounts that were a survival of similar accounts carried by the decedent and the decedent's father in the former firm of Wilmerding, Hoguet & Co."

The petition states that the realty to which Mr. Hoguet held title was worth $1,220,280, and that his interest therein, exclusive of mortgages, was $514,219. The extent to which he mortgaged his property is shown in several examples. The property at 69 Sixth Avenue, appraised at $28,750, bore a mortgage for $15,000. That at 112 East Ninety-second Street, worth $17,500, was covered by a $9,000 mortgage. His property at 403 West 148th Street, worth $18,125, was mortgaged for $12,000. There was a mortgage for $87,000 on the $152,000 property at 1,359 to 1,365 Third Avenue, and 202 and 204 East Seventy-eighth Street. A $30,000 mortgage covered the $42,500 property of Mr. Hoguet at 236 and 238 East Fifty-fourth Street. The property at 42 and 46 Seventh Avenue, valued at $81,875, was mortgaged for $65,000. He did not hold an unencumbered piece of property.

SHELVES PEACE MOTION.

Congress of Chambers of Commerce to Consider It at Boston in 1912.

LONDON, June 23.—The International Congress of Chambers of Commerce to-day shelved until the next meeting the resolution recommending the establishment of a Permanent Court of Arbitral Justice as proposed to the powers by Mr. Knox, American Secretary of State.

The resolution was introduced yesterday by Frank D. Lalanne of Philadelphia on behalf of the National Board of Trade of the United States, of which he is the President. Its discussion to-day developed considerable divergency of feeling, with the result that it was finally referred to the permanent Committee on Resolutions for presentation at the congress to be held in Boston in 1912.

$35,000 FEE FOR COHEN.

Ex-Justice to Receive That Sum from the Franchise Tax Cases.

Controller Prendergast announced yesterday that an arrangement had been agreed upon with Corporation Counsel Watson and ex-Supreme Court Justice William N. Cohen by which the last named will receive from the city a fee of $35,000 for the work done by him in the settlement of the arrearage franchise taxes of public service corporations.

Judge Cohen was employed by the Attorney General as special counsel in these cases on behalf of the State Board of Tax Commissioners after Daniel F. Cohalan was relieved.

Concert for Irish Athletic Park.

The Irish Counties' Athletic Union will hold a mass meeting and concert in Carnegie Hall next Sunday evening for the benefit of the Irish Athletic Park at Wakefield. Morgan J. O'Brien will preside and William McAdoo, John T. McDonough, Dr. John G. Coyle, Major Edward T. McCrystal, President John P. Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, and Supreme Court Justice James Fitzgerald will speak.

Duke of Sutherland Arrives.

The Duke of Sutherland arrived on the steamer Adriatic yesterday. He has interests in the Canadian Pacific Railway. He will visit Montreal and the Northwest. He left for Montreal on the New York Central at 6:55 last night.

NICARAGUA REBELS OUTSIDE ACOYAPA

Notice of Bombardment—Vasquez Refuses to Allow Non-Combatants to Depart.

HOW MADRIZ GETS RECRUITS

Men Lassoed Like Cattle, Marched to Recruiting Office, and Forced to Serve in Government Army.

BLUEFIELDS, June 23.—Further reports from Gen. Mena, whose 1,500 men occupy a strong position outside Acoyapa, state that twelve hours' notice has been given to non-combatants to leave the town before a bombardment is begun.

Gen. Vasquez, in command of the Nicaraguan forces within the town, has, it is stated, refused permission to the non-combatants to leave, fearing that they will join the Estrada army.

It is believed that the town will be attacked by Gen. Mena to-night. Gen. Vasquez has less than 400 men in his garrison.

The Nicaraguan steamer Venus has returned to Bluefields Bluff, and the American warships Prairie and Dubuque are lying not far away. The gunboat Paducah is expected to return here to-night from Colon.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—United States Consul Olivares to-day reported to the State Department that President Madriz of Nicaragua had made every possible effort to prevent the statement of the attitude of the United States toward Nicaragua from becoming public after its delivery to Madriz's Government.

The Consul said that the Madriz Government in its efforts to suppress the news arrested an editor and posted a cordon of police in front of the American Consulate in order to prevent persons from reading the statement posted on a bulletin board.

According to cable dispatches received this morning by Dr. Castrillo, representative in Washington of the Estrada provisional government, the insurgent army is now at precisely the point where it received a crushing defeat at the hands of the Madriz troops early in March and was driven back to Bluefields, where the revolutionary forces were reorganized.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., June 23.—A passenger who arrived here to-day describes as follows the method by which Madriz has obtained numerous recruits in Western Nicaragua:

"The Government soldiers get their men by lassoing them as they would so many cattle. When a man is captured his captor ties his hands, tying himself to the recruit, so that there is no danger of his being able to escape. Then he is marched to the district recruiting office and made to sign his name to the muster roll. If he cannot write it is signed for him and a musket is given to him.

"That is the way Madriz gets his armies, and it is no wonder that his soldiers are so unwilling to fight.

"There are many sympathizers with the revolution on the West Coast, but they do not dare show their sympathy."

CAFE DE L'OPERA FIRE.

Little Blaze Starts at the Front, but No Damage Is Done.

The Café de l'Opéra, in Broadway, near Forty-second Street, which had to close its doors a few months ago because of lack of patronage, narrowly escaped destruction by fire late yesterday afternoon. Ever since the café ceased to do business there had been standing, at each side of the main entrance, a row of boxwood bushes. These bushes died weeks ago and of late the leaves had become very dry.

Yesterday afternoon, shortly before 5 o'clock, while Broadway was filled with pedestrians homeward bound, some one tossed a lighted match into the boxwood bushes just to the north of the entrance. A minute later there was a flash of flame and smoke and the fire spread to all of the bushes. Flames also began to lick at the woodwork of the café front.

Thomas Tobin, an employe of the Pittsburg Building Company, which owns the building, was in the café as a sort of Superintendent, pending the time when the Receiver's Committee completes plans for reopening the café. He saw the blaze and ran into the street, pulled off his coat, and began to beat at the flames. A fire alarm was sent in and soon an engine company arrived. By that time two policemen and Tobin had the fire out. The front of the building was blistered and blackened by the fire.

FOR PACIFIC CODFISH TRUST.

Plan Being Closed to Combine All Interests on the Coast.

SEATTLE, June 23.—A deal which aims at the unification of all the cod fishing on the Pacific coast is now in progress and nearly completed. It is backed by San Francisco and Boston capital.

On Puget Sound five companies have been engaged in cod fishing in the Bering Sea, and the industry has grown from two schooners half a dozen years ago to a locally controlled fleet numbering over a dozen vessels.

JOCKEY DIES OF INJURIES.

Ernest Huppe Thrown from Gold Plate In Coney Island Steeplechase.

Steeplechase Jockey Ernest Huppe, 28 years old, died in the Emergency Hospital at Coney Island at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Huppe fell with the H. S. Page jumper Gold Plate in the running of the steeplechase on Wednesday, and he was struck on the head by one of the other horses in the field.

SCIMECA BOY STILL GONE.

Detective Says He Knows Kidnappers, but for Child's Sake Is Idle.

The family and friends of three-year-old Michael Scimeca, who disappeared from his home on the second floor of 2 Prince Street on Tuesday evening, waited in the Scimeca rooms all yesterday for the alleged "kidnappers" to return the child. They were still waiting late last night. Dr. Scimeca denied in the course of the day that he was dickering with the "kidnappers" as to how much he should pay for the child's return.

"If I knew who they were I would go and shoot them," he said.

Mrs. Scimeca seemed quite calm and unruffled over her child's disappearance, and a friend explained:

"She has known that her husband was receiving threatening letters for a long time. She has been expecting the kidnapping. She also knows that no child kidnapped in the Italian colony here has ever been harmed. Every child always has found its way back to its parents as soon as the kidnappers either received a small part of the ransom demanded or as soon as they found that the parents refused to be frightened into giving it up."

It was said yesterday that Dr. Scimeca is in communication with the kidnappers, that he is refusing to pay any ransom, and that he is not even allowing his father-in-law, Dr. M. Petrella of Brooklyn, whose favorite nephew Michael is, to pay any money. Every one expects that when the police least expect it the child will reappear at his home.

Frank L. Frugone, editor of the Italian Evening Bulletin, criticised the Italian branch of the Detective Bureau yesterday. Editor Frugone said that the city had too few Italian detectives, that many of the members of the Italian branch were not even Italians, and were all easily recognizable.

"The Italian branch of the Detective Bureau should consist of 150 instead of 25 Italian detectives. It's too bad that ex-Commissioner Bingham's plea for an appropriation of $100,000 for the Italian branch fell through," said Editor Frugone.

A member of the Italian branch of the Detective Bureau who was assigned to the Scimeca case spent most of Wednesday night in the corner saloon opposite Police Headquarters. He said he was "waiting for his partner," who "might have valuable information later." He was asked if he had any idea who had taken the child.

"I know who took him," he answered.

"Then why don't you go and arrest him?" asked the reporter.

"That would interfere with the child's return," replied the detective.

At Police Headquarters yesterday it was meekly said that several members of the Italian branch of the Detective Bureau were still "working on the case."

AMERICANS IN AUTO WRECK.

Mr. Henry Badly Injured in France—French Woman Killed.

NICE, June 23.—An automobile occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry, Americans, and Mme. Matton ran into a ditch and was overturned to-day near Castellane, in the Department of Basses-Alpes. Mme. Matton was killed outright and Mr. Henry was badly injured. Mrs. Henry escaped unharmed.

It was raining hard at the time of the accident. As Henry, who was driving the car, took a sharp turn at a steep hill the flapping canvas of the hood caught in the chain, interfering with the operation of the brake. The automobile swerved from the road, plunged down a ravine, turned completely over, and lodged against a tree. Mme. Matton was crushed to death under the car. Henry's legs were pinned down by the wreckage, and he was rendered helpless. Mrs. Henry had an almost miraculous escape, and on climbing to the road obtained assistance for her husband.

The Henrys spent the Winter here.

GAYNOR TO STUDENTS OF CITY COLLEGE

Tells Graduating Class Not to be Puffed Up with Pride, as the Simple Man Succeeds.

VAIN MEN DON'T GET TO TOP

President Finley Presents Prizes and Honor Medals—Promotions in the Faculty.

Mayor Gaynor addressed the graduating class of the College of the City of New York yesterday. The exercises were announced to begin at 10 o'clock in the morning, and Great Hall, decorated with the banners of the leading colleges of the world, was packed to the doors before the hour.

Prof. Samuel A. Baldwin sat at the organ until it was time for the processional, when he started the Meyerbeer Coronation March from "Le Prophete." The graduating class filed in. They were followed by President Finley and the members of the faculty, who sat on the platform.

There were three senior addresses. Abraham Lusskin spoke on "The Citizen"; Jacob Hoffman, "Life versus Experience," and Samuel B. Applebaum, "Historical Perspective."

It now became evident that the Mayor was at the back of the hall, and an escort of gowned men, Profs. Moody and Knight and two students, brought him to the platform. As he walked down the middle aisle he was greeted with incessant handclapping, which grew in volume as he passed through the ranks of the seniors and the faculty. He was met by President Finley and seated beside him.

"We all know that this is the College of the City of New York," said the Mayor when President Finley presented him, "and I hope you young men will go out thoroughly impressed with the fact of what this college has done for you. This is the city's college. It is almost entirely supported by the City of New York; in plain words, by the taxpayers and rentpayers. They, through this college, have given you this splendid education, equal to that to be obtained in any college or university in the land.

"Wherever your lot may be cast, whether you intend to stay here in this city, already crowded, or settle elsewhere, remember this great obligation to the community.

Their Duty in Public Affairs.

"For this reason enter legitimately into public affairs. I am not encouraging you to become politicians or office seekers, but it is the duty of all men, and doubly so of men like you, educated at the public expense, to give a certain amount of your time to the common weal. As you go out into your communities assist in public affairs, at elections, and in selecting proper persons to hold office. You are intelligent beings, and to do your full duty you must rise higher than the ordinary level, where all prejudice is absolutely gone. Test everything by the knowledge you have acquired. Take nothing for granted. Follow nobody and shout for nobody until you have tested the ideas they represent in your own mind and are satisfied that it is the proper thing for you to do.

"Do not say, 'I will not help that man to office because he is a Democrat or a Republican.' That is degrading. A man may be a Democrat or even a Republican without having cloven feet. Even if you believe in the general National policies of one party that has nothing to do with municipal elections. Stand for high tariff or free trade as you please, but do not let that fact influence you when you are voting for Mayor. If you do your education has been wasted.

"Do not go out of here puffed up with pride. Be simple men. Do not have pride. A man who has inordinate pride has no charity whatever. He does not treat anybody right. Bring yourself down to simplicity. Let your prayer be every morning, 'O Lord, save me this day from being proud and arrogant, because I am only a little man here with other men.' This is a hard job, but it will make you bigger men and will probably do the others good.

"The vain man never reaches the highest point in the professions. Be simple. Lead the simple life. It is the simple man who succeeds. Do not arrogate airs to yourself, because they easily slide off. Go out of here with no notion that you are learned men or that your education is complete. Anybody who thinks so had better stay on here. Keep on studying. To be a success you have got to work hard."

Edward M. Shepard, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the college, made a short address.

Honor Prizes and Medals.

The medals and honor prizes for the year were presented by President Finley. The winners of the principal honors were:

D., was appointed Professor of Political Science, of which department he has hitherto been the head as Associate Professor; L. Henry Frieburg, Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Chemistry, was made Associate Professor.

These instructors were appointed to assistant professorships: Frederick M. Pedersen, in the Department of Mathematics; Arthur Bruckner, in Department of Physics; Allan P. Ball, in the Department of Latin; Louis Delamarre, in the Department of French; Howard B. Woolston, in the Department of Political Science; Joseph G. Coffin, in the Department of Physics.

The following tutors were promoted to instructorships: Lynn M. Saxton, John P. Turner, John Schuler, Faust C. de Walsh, David Klein, Henry Peckwell, and John Robert White.

From 1 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon class reunions were held upon the campus. At 4 the President held his reception, and the senior class gave a dinner at Murray's in the evening.

706 CORNELL GRADUATES.

President Schurman's Address Devoted to Appreciation of Goldwin Smith.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 23.—Thousands watched the Cornell seniors march to the armory this morning in cap and gown to receive their diplomas from the hands of President Jacob Gould Schurman. Degrees were conferred upon 706 graduates, as follows:

Mechanical Engineers, 217; Masters of Arts, 170; Civil Engineers, 117; Bachelors of Law, 47; Bachelors of Agriculture, 45; Doctors of Veterinary Medicine, 19; Bachelors of Architecture, 19, and Advanced Degrees, 69.

The address by President Schurman was devoted mainly to the late Goldwin Smith, by the terms of whose will Cornell, where he was once professor, became residuary legatee of his estate.

"The foundation of Goldwin Smith's political philosophy," said Dr. Schurman, "was the maxim he caused to be carved on the stone seat which he placed on the campus of Cornell University, 'Above All Nations Is Humanity.' An Englishman by birth, he was proud of the historic ideals and traditions and loyal to the genuine interests of England; but he sternly refused to identify those interests and ideals with territorial acquisitions, with selfish aggrandizement, with the subjugation and domination of weaker peoples in Asia and Africa, with unprovoked war against any of the nations of Europe and America.

"While his heart beat for all mankind, he cherished a special vision of the union in some form of the English-speaking nations, particularly the union of Canada and the United States; and to the furtherance of this union he devoted much of his best thought and energy. The particular form of union he projected between the United States and Canada may never be realized. But mighty forces operating upon the two kindred American Nations can scarcely fail to mold them to a common international destiny. And thus, in substance if not in form, Goldwin Smith's dream of continental union may be actually fulfilled. With it may also come—is it not already rapidly approaching?—the moral union of all the English-speaking nations and their alliance, informal if not formal, for the purpose of maintaining the peace of the world."

ARRESTED, BUT GETS DIPLOMA

Coors of Cornell Had Been Good for Six Years and Celebrated.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 23.—Having spent six years at Cornell University without seeing the inside of the police station, Grover Coors of Golden, Col., was arrested early to-day, the morning of his graduation, for disorderly conduct, and fined $10 in police court at 9 o'clock this morning, an hour before the academic procession formed for the annual commencement exercises.

The authorities did not report his name to the Student Conduct Committee, and before the news of the trouble reached the hill, Coors had received his diploma. Coors started home on the noon train. He acknowledged to the Magistrate that he was noisy, and that on the way up the hill to his fraternity house on South Avenue, he had "rowed the cop." He had spent two years in preparatory school in this city, and four years in the university in the College of Agriculture.

BOWDOIN HONORS PEARY.

His Alma Mater Confers on the Explorer the Degree of LL. D.

BRUNSWICK, Me., June 23.—"Robert Edwin Peary—resolute and resourceful explorer, truthful narrator, who has accepted Nature's haughtiest challenge and by science and skill, courage and endurance, forethought and perseverance, proved man the master of the world he stands on, from the tropics to the poles."

This acknowledgment of the success of Commander Peary, who was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1877, was made to-day at the 105th commencement exercises of Bowdoin by President Hyde, who conferred upon the Commander the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Donald Baxter McMillan of Worcester, Mass., who was Commander Peary's assistant on the latest polar voyage, received the honorary degree of Master of Arts. Mr. McMillan was described by President Hyde as "an athlete devoted to scientific exploration; fearless in the face of danger; master of the art of entertaining speech."

The degree of Doctor of Letters was conferred upon William Winter of Staten Island, the dramatic critic and author, and that of Doctor of Science upon Dr. Lucien Howe of Buffalo, N. Y.

The senior class numbers sixty-nine, the largest ever graduated from Bowdoin.

BURIED IN SAND.

Two Men Killed and Several Hurt as a Bin Collapses.

An immense sand bin on the piers of the Phoenix Towing and Transportation Company, near Mineola, L. I., collapsed yesterday afternoon while a force of twelve carpenters was at work on top of it. Several of them were carried down in an avalanche of wet sand, and one was buried thirty feet deep. His body, badly crushed, was recovered after four hours of hard work by a large relief party. Another laborer dug out alive died in the Nassau Hospital an hour after his arrival there. Seven other laborers are in the Nassau Hospital, suffering from injuries.

The dead are:

ANDERSON, EDWARD, 24 years old, a carpenter of Roslyn, L. I.

SPINELA, JERRY, a carpenter, crushed to death in the sand avalanche.

In the Nassau Hospital:

ANDERSON, PETER, a brother of Edward, suffering from bruises and concussions of the head and body.

ERICKSON, FREDERICK, carpenter, of Roslyn, fractured arm.

JOHNSON, JOHN E., engineer, ribs broken.

KEEFER, NICHOLAS, carpenter, fractured collar bone.

Unidentified Russian laborer, internal injuries, unconscious, and probably fatally hurt.

SCHMIDT, STEPHEN, carpenter, fractured arm.

The bin was being filled with sand carried up in a huge pipe along with vast quantities of water. A locomotive and a number of cars were under the bin when the retaining walls gave way, and they were so completely buried that no trace of them could be seen.

Laborers employed in building seven more of the bins rushed to the aid of their comrades. The bin, with its complicated hoisting machinery, was valued at $10,000, and was in charge of Supt. Walling of the towing and transportation company. It held about 1,000 tons of sand, and was forty feet in height.

FUNDS FOR FOURTH FAR BELOW THE NEED

Independence Day Committee Has $17,000 of $50,000 Required for Celebration.

FINLEY MAKES AN APPEAL

Plans Call for More Money at Once—Mrs. Russell Sage the Largest Contributor Yesterday with $250.

The committee in charge of the "safe and sane" Fourth of July celebration announced yesterday that the contributions to its fund have increased to a little more than $2,000. They point out that this amount is entirely insufficient, and that many more donations must be made if the celebration is to be in any way a success.

President Finley of the College of the City of New York, Chairman of the committee, has sent out this public appeal for funds:

> To the Citizens of New York:
>
> The Mayor, in his letter of the 20th inst. states that he is certain that the people of New York will respond quickly to our appeal for funds for the "Safe and Sane" Fourth of July celebration if we will but let them know that we need money for the necessary expenses.
>
> This is to be an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration, with fireworks in the evening under city auspices, when displays from thirty different parks and playgrounds will be given. In the 240 vacation centres there will be held brief special exercises, consisting of patriotic music, folk dances, the reading of the Declaration of Independence, and Lincoln's Gettysburg address. In all of the parks, under the direction of Mr. James E. Sullivan, will be held a series of athletic events, in which at least 25,000 children will take part.
>
> The parade of the National Guard, patriotic societies, civic organizations, and uniformed members of the city departments will be held in the morning, to be reviewed by the Mayor at the City Hall, where special exercises will also be held in commemoration of the first seating of the City Government in the City Hall.
>
> It is necessary that money be provided to pay for the prizes for the athletic games, music, decorations, &c., and approximately $50,000 will be required. Of this sum the city has donated $15,000 to be used for the fireworks in the evening. It is therefore essential that we receive without delay any sum that you can afford to give toward this celebration, and we ask that your subscription be sent payable to the Independence Day Committee or James S. Cushman, Treasurer, Room 611, Pulitzer Building. All contributions will be acknowledged in the daily papers.
>
> Will you not please send your contribution at once, so that the committee will know that what they have planned can be provided? Yours very truly,
>
> JOHN H. FINLEY,
> Chairman City of New York Independence Day Committee.

The principal contributor yesterday was Mrs. Russell Sage, who sent the committee a check for $250 with a letter in which she expressed the hope that "there will be no more Fourth of July burning of the small boy."

The subscription list to date reads:

Mrs. Russell Sage	250
John E. Parsons	25
Charles A. Schieren, Jr.	25
Louis Ottman	25
Frank Ludlam	10
Charles W. Price	10

Walter Scott	10
Maurice Simmons	5
Samuel Shaler	5
George S. Davis, President of Normal College	25
Adolf Gobel	5
Total day's receipts	$464
Grand total	$2,044

The committee announced that Dieges & Clust of 23 John Street have promised to donate the necessary badges for officials, the Reception Committee, ushers, &c. Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay has presented a beautiful silk American flag for the prize in the school boys' relay race. The Sunday World has given twenty silver cups and silver and bronze medals for prizes in the various relay races.

THE TIMES has received $10 from "I. H." to add to the fund for a safe and sane Fourth of July celebration, and has forwarded it to the Independence Day Committee. Contributions should be sent to James S. Cushman, Treasurer Independence Day Committee, room 611, Pulitzer Building, New York City.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 23.—Gov. Hughes has received several letters from members of the National Guard in New York, who object to having to parade on July 4, Mayor Gaynor having announced his intention to have orders issued directing the Guard to turn out on that day.

The writers object to being deprived of a holiday during the heated term. No protests have been received by Adjt. Gen. Verbeck. Such action would be considered a violation of military discipline.

BATONYI HIS OWN LAWYER.

Will Personally Conduct Suit Against Former Wife and Others.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, June 23.—Aurel Batonyi will act as his own counsel to-morrow in the Superior Court, where, after many delays, his suit for $150,000 damages against his former wife, Mrs. Burke-Roche; her father, Frank Work, and Frank K. Sturgis, will come to trial. He contends that they retained his property, including coaching trophies, clothing, harnesses, and personal papers, which they had taken from the Two-Mile Corner Farm in Middletown in September, 1907.

Lawyers in Newport, Providence, and New York have dropped the case in turn, and he is compelled to plead it himself, against the advice of Justice Lee, who warned him not to act as his own counsel, as he would probably get into trouble if he did.

Mr. Batonyi announces the purchase by his mother, Mrs. Leopold Batonyi of Budapest, Hungary, of the farms in Middletown known as Good Times Farm and Villa Valley. The latter has been owned and occupied by Mr. Batonyi since his divorce.

Frank S. Howells's Estate $312,670.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 23.—The Tax Appraiser's report on the estate of Frank S. Howells, a retired woolen manufacturer of Manhattan, who died at Flushing last February, has been filed here. The total of the estate, the bulk of which goes to relatives in this country and abroad, is $312,670.

SEVEN ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Widow of Waltham Laundry Victim, His Brother, and Attorneys Indicted.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 23.—In the case of Clarence F. Glover, the Waltham laundry proprietor murdered last Fall, the Middlesex County Superior Court to-day issued indictment warrants against Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, widow of the murdered man, and six others, who are charged with being accessories after the fact of Hattie Le Blanc, who is accused of the actual killing. The six are Samuel Elmer and Alton F. Tupper, Mrs. Glover's counsel in the contest of Glover's will; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Freeman, and Mr. and Mrs. Seymour S. Glover, the last being a brother of the murdered laundryman.

Mrs. Lillian Glover and these six were immediately put on trial and all pleaded not guilty. The prompt action of District Attorney Higgins surprised the defendants and several Boston lawyers were sent for by special messengers. General Charles W. Bartlett is the principal attorney for the defense. Of the defendants Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Glover and Mrs. Freeman were visibly agitated. Mrs. Freeman bordered on a state of collapse when she pleaded, but revived later. The Freemans are friends of Mrs. Clarence F. Glover, who was the calmest person in the courtroom except Judge Stevens and the District Attorney.

The seven defendants were ordered to furnish $2,000 bonds each, and bail was furnished in each case. A jury was promptly impaneled, and the jurors went to Waltham to inspect the Glover residence and laundry, returning in the afternoon, when District Attorney Higgins made his opening address:

"The one way to find out the truth about this case," he said, "is to put the people against whom there is a sentiment of suspicion on trial."

Dr. Nicholas W. Cousens, in whose private hospital Glover died, testified that Glover signed a statement accusing Hattie Lablanc of the crime in the presence of a notary public, Dr. McDonald, Patrolman Tully of the Waltham police force, and the witness. This was the first intimation that Glover made any other than an oral accusation.

After Mrs. Mary A. Dutch, who lives in the other half of the house used by Dr. Cousens as a hospital, had told about her finding Glover lying upon the steps of the hospital court adjourned for the day.

Clarence F. Glover was shot at his laundry in Waltham on the night of Nov. 29 last. Shortly before he died in a Waltham hospital Glover gave out a statement in which he said that he and Hattie Leblanc, the sixteen-year-old housemaid of the Glovers, went to the laundry, and that while there she shot him with a revolver. The police attempted to locate Hattie, but were not successful until several days after Glover died, when they found her hidden under a bed in the Glover house. Hattie was arrested on a murder charge and is now in jail here awaiting her trial, which comes in September. She has stoutly denied any connection with the crime, and the motive for the murder has remained a mystery.

The District Attorney bases the charge of being accessories after the fact upon the allegation that the seven defendants concealed Hattie Leblanc with intent to enable her to evade arrest.

SAYS SHE'S PERSECUTED.

Bandmaster's Wife Says Neighbors, Police, and Trolley Men Insulted Her.

An advertisement appeared yesterday in the personal columns of ten morning newspapers, asking any person having knowledge of "insulting and outrageous conduct amounting to persecution to which a soldier's wife has been subjected continuously for some years past in the neighborhood of Fort Hamilton and other places in Brooklyn" to communicate either with her, Mrs. Mary Small, 82 Seventieth Street, Brooklyn, or with William Barnes, a lawyer, of 220 Broadway. Mr. Barnes said yesterday that all he knew about the case was that Mrs. Small had called on him on Wednesday with a long story of insults to which she had been submitted.

Mrs. Small said she was the wife of the bandmaster of a regiment stationed at one time at Fort Hamilton and that such unjust aspersions had been cast on her character that her husband had deserted her. She said that the police insulted her as she passed in the street, that the neighbors jeered at her, and that the conductors of the Brooklyn Heights Railroad were in league against her, one of them having made her descend from a car a mile from her destination on the ground that it did not proceed any further only to signal the car ahead after she had alighted.

Mrs. Small did not give the names of her persecutors, but she hinted that persons high in army circles would be found to be concerned in her troubles. She wanted Mr. Barnes to begin suit against the Brooklyn Heights Railroad, and when he refused to do this she practically drew up the advertisement, but up to last evening Mr. Barnes had not heard from any witnesses.

NO SUNDAY SOLDIER GAMES.

Men at Fort Banks Warned to Give Up Baseball Contests.

BOSTON, June 23.—United States District Attorney Asa P. French has informed the soldiers at Fort Banks, Winthrop, that Sunday baseball playing at the fort, which has been going on for the last three years, must cease. Sunday baseball has been allowed on Government lands in Massachusetts, but Mr. French finds that it is made a criminal offense under Chapter 575, Section 2, of the United States laws. In this section it is stated that where no punishment for any offense on Government lands is provided, the offender is liable to punishment under the laws of the State in which the lands are situated. Massachusetts laws prohibit Sunday baseball games.

Complaints were made to the District Attorney by the Rev. Frederick M. White, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Winthrop, and by others, who want Sunday ball playing to cease. Mr. White has also written to the War Department.

Unless the Sunday games are stopped, District Attorney French proposes to bring the case before the United States District Court.

New Battleship Delaware Docked.

NORFOLK, June 23.—The new 20,000-ton battleship Delaware was successfully docked for the first time at the Norfolk Navy Yard to-day. The docking was accomplished without difficulty or notable incident. The Delaware will receive attention below the water line before proceeding to New York for her wireless equipment, prior to joining the Atlantic Fleet.

J. P. MORGAN BACK; HEALTH UNIMPAIRED

Financier Says He Is Feeling Well, Despite Cabled Reports to the Contrary.

HIS BAGGAGE HELD BACK

He Finally Leaves It on the Pier Pending an Adjustment by the Customs Inspectors.

Declaring that he was in the best of health, and adding that he had enjoyed himself while abroad, J. Pierpont Morgan arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic. When the vessel reached Quarantine Mr. Morgan's yacht, the Corsair, was waiting. She ran up alongside and his son, J. P. Morgan, Jr., climbed aboard to welcome his father, while the financier's grandchildren waved their greetings from the deck of the yacht.

Mr. Morgan confined his interview to the state of his health, except to say that he intends to appoint three Trustees for the Equitable Life Assurance Society to succeed Morgan J. O'Brien and George Westinghouse, resigned, and Grover Cleveland, deceased.

There was evidently some delay in the moving of Mr. Morgan's baggage from the pier. The Adriatic got alongside at 11:30 A. M., but it was almost three hours later before the financier left the pier. At 3:30 P. M. the Corsair was still lying alongside the pier. Apparently Mr. Morgan got tired of waiting, for he went away in a cab. The customs officials explained that there had been no delay in passing his thirty-five or forty pieces of baggage.

Mr. Morgan was one of the first to come ashore. He was told that reports had reached this side that he was in ill-health.

"I am in good health. I'm feeling all right," he answered. When asked about the rate situation, he replied:

"I have been abroad some time and am not bothering with rates. I know nothing about the situation. I have nothing to say regarding my own affairs or those of other people. It keeps me busy attending to my own."

Another passenger on the Adriatic was the Italian Princess Anna Maria Strozzi. A report was published that Mr. Morgan was making an attempt to purchase the villa of her cousin, the Prince Strozzi. Mr. Morgan would not discuss the report. The Princess thought there was no probability of Mr. Morgan obtaining the property.

When Mr. Morgan was asked about the Trustees for the Equitable, he was not overcommunicative.

"Will you name the Trustees?" he was asked.

"No, I will not," he replied.

Another financier who got home on the Adriatic was James Stillman, the banker. He said he had been out of touch with business conditions for some weeks. He is going to Canada for a short time and will probably return to Europe later.

Theodore Vail, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, was another passenger. Mr. Vail and his wife were abroad two months. He conferred with Directors of the Anglo-American Telephone Company and the Direct United States Cable Company in regard to improvements to be made in the cable service.

HILL AGAINST BIG TERMINALS.

Urges Decentralization as a Remedy for Growing Freight Congestion.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 23.—"Wheat" was the subject of discussion at to-day's meeting of the National Association of Millers here. The subject was treated in a paper prepared by James J. Hill, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Great Northern Railway, and read by Charles B. Jenkins of Noblesville, Ind. Mr. Hill was unable to attend the meeting.

Among other things, Mr. Hill said:

"One fact, it seems to me, should give you more concern than almost any other, because you have already felt its effects and because it looms large and dangerous. This is the pressure upon existing terminal facilities. It is a future menace and a present handicap. The milling interest of the entire country, except where it serves a purely local demand, is feeling the pinch of the transportation situation and will in the future feel it more severely. The growth of the country in population, in production, in transportation business has been marked. There has not been a corresponding growth in the facilities for transportation.

"For months past it has been impossible to get freight shipments delivered promptly if these have to be transferred at any of the central markets or principal terminal points. The flood of business that rose to such dangerous height in 1907 is piling up again, with the additions made by national growth since then. The future will add in increasing ratio to these difficulties, as well as to the losses they involve. The only probable relief from the pressure upon our transportation agencies, and especially upon terminals, where the greatest difficulty exists, is the decline of our export trade.

"What is the remedy? Where terminals can be enlarged without incurring prohibitive indebtedness that, of course, is the natural remedy. Existing facilities also may be made more effective.

"Decentralization of traffic terminals offers a partial cure—partial only, however, because it is applicable only to a portion of the business to be done. Some of the through business of the country can be diverted to other points than those where it now collects, but the great central markets cannot be destroyed nor the bulk of their business affected.

"There is, however, a considerable element in our traffic aggregate capable of decentralization. Take your own industry, for example. Because both your raw material and your product are bulky and heavy articles, you are, perhaps, more interested than others, since you are most likely to suffer from terminal congestion. It is worth while to consider whether a considerable share of your distributing business could not be readjusted. If orders went direct to the mills from the smaller cities and towns, and shipments were made direct to them, instead of being consigned to central agencies, and thence transferred to buyers, it would make less business for terminals. By such a process of decentralization, adopted by business generally, much relief might be obtained.

"The problem of terminals is the greatest problem of the country. It is the problem of transportation agencies, of financiers, of the communities directly affected, and of all the industries that depend directly or indirectly upon cheap and speedy carriage for the commodities which they buy and sell. It is a problem for everybody, since probably not one business man in the whole country would fail to feel the disastrous effects if it were to be neglected, for the next five years, as it has for the last ten, and blight every form of activity by paralyzing the whole trade."

BROWN BLAMES FARMERS.

High Prices Mainly Due to Declining Farm Products and Their Greater Cost

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 23.—President W. C. Brown of the New York Central Railway was one of the principal speakers before the Minnesota Bankers' Association meeting to-day.

President Brown spoke on "The High Cost of Living," quoting statistics to show the increase in the cost of all products of the farm, factory, and mines, and dwelling on the influence of increasing gold production in enhancing the price of everything measured by and paid for with that metal, including the pay of labor.

"Another force working for higher cost of living," continued Mr. Brown, "more insistently, more powerfully, and with a sinister significance compared with which all others become negligible factors, is the alarming rapidity with which consumption of the products of the Nation's farms is overtaking production.

"The Department of Agriculture at Washington, in the latest available statistics, shows that during the past ten years, while the increase in price of all commodities, including farm products, is 23 per cent.; considered by themselves, the products of the farm show an increase in price of 87 per cent.

"These statistics demonstrate the fact that the failure to increase the products of our farms in anything like the ratio of increase in consumption is exerting more than three times the effect upon the cost of living that is being exerted by all other causes, including the increase of gold.

"If the converging lines of production and consumption in the United States continue to approach each other as they have been during the past ten years, before the middle of the decade upon which we have just entered has been reached the last vessel loaded with the agricultural products of this country will have left our shores, the great grain-exporting elevators in our seaboard cities will stand empty, and this great Nation, like those of the Old World, will be looking with anxious eyes for a place to buy the necessaries of life.

"When the day comes that this Nation fails to produce sufficient food to supply our own people, when we no longer send the product of our farms abroad, bringing back the gold from foreign nations, what will be the cost of living in this country, and where will the money come from to meet that cost?"

OBJECT TO LEE'S UNIFORM.

New York G. A. R. Encampment Says It's Out of Place in National Capitol.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 23.—The Committee on Resolutions of the forty-fourth encampment, Department of New York, Grand Army of the Republic, Corporal Tanner, Chairman, prevented a bitter fight in to-day's session by a carefully worded resolution regarding the statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee in the Capitol in Washington. As it was the fight took place in the committee before the resolution was agreed to. It was adopted by the unanimous vote of the encampment amid ringing cheers.

The act of Congress of July, 1864, under the authority of which Gen. Lee's statue was placed in the Capitol by the Commonwealth of Virginia, provides that the honor shall be confined to "those illustrious for their historic renown or for distinguished civic or military service." The substance of the committee's resolution is that this act must be construed to mean that such distinguished service shall be in "harmony with and not in conflict with the Constitution and other statutes," and that therefore it has been "misconstrued and misinterpreted by those who have clothed the statue of Robert E. Lee in the uniform of the Confederate Army, a garb which of itself bears no evidence of distinguished service to the United States."

The President is then asked to have the law "construed by the law officers of the Government to the end that it shall be determined that no statue having thereon any badges or uniform which bear evidence of a disloyal action to the National Government under the Constitution shall be accepted or permitted to remain in the Statuary Hall in the National Capitol."

The encampment elected De Witt C. Hurd Department Commander, and named delegates to the National encampment at Atlantic City, Sept. 5.

DECIDES FOR BEEF TRUST.

Judge Landis Throws Out Indictment, but Orders New Grand Jury Inquiry.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Judge Landis in the United States District Court here today sustained the demurrers of the so-called "Beef Trust" to the indictment charging a combination in restraint of trade. The indictment drawn on evidence secured by agents of the Federal Government ran against the National Packing Company and its ten subsidiary companies, charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Smiles, hand claps, and congratulations were exchanged when Judge Landis announced that the indictment would not stand, but the demonstration came to a sudden end when the court added:

"Call a special Grand Jury venire of seventy-five men for July 14."

This body will be ordered to hear testimony with a view to finding valid indictments against the packing company.

The indictment quashed to-day failed to show, in the view of Judge Landis, that any offense had been committed within the last three years. It did not show that during this statutory period the defendants had been engaged in inter-State commerce. The general averment that the packing companies engaged in a combination in restraint of trade the court declared to be a mere conclusion.

"The court is not clothed," Judge Landis said, "with authority to supply entirely by inference the complete omission of so fundamental an element of the offense."

WON'T ACCEPT B. R. T. BRIDGE LOOP OFFER

Public Service Board Tells the Company That Its Figures Are Far Too Low.

REVISION IS SUGGESTED

Estimates That It Should Pay Interest on at Least $10,000,000 for Added Facilities.

Following the receipt of a letter from the Public Service Commission rejecting the offer of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for the use of two tracks in the bridge loop subway between the Williamsburg and the Brooklyn Bridges, President Winter and Vice President Calderwood of that system held a conference yesterday with the Public Service Commission over the situation. Neither of the conferrees would discuss what happened, but from various circumstances it was gathered that no agreement was reached.

The letter of the commission rejecting the offer of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit was sent last Tuesday. In it the commission says:

"The commission has considered the letter from your company dated May 27, 1910, and signed by Vice President Calderwood, in which he suggests as payment for the use of that part of the loop subway that connects with the Williamsburg Bridge, 1 per cent. on $4,000,000 for the first year, 1½ per cent. for the second year, 2 per cent. for the third year, 2½ per cent. for the fourth year, 3 per cent. for the fifth year, and thereafter 5 per cent., and that so long as the capacity of the bridge is limited to six-car trains instead of ten-car trains, these payments should be six-tenths of the foregoing sums, the arrangement to be temporary only.

"The commission is of the opinion that these sums are much too small.

"This subway when completed will have cost somewhat more than $10,000,000. At least three-fourths of the construction will be applied to the traffic between Williamsburg Bridge and Chambers Street station. The sum on which your percentages should be figured should be at least $7,500,000 instead of $4,000,000. The entire cost of the construction of the Williamsburg Bridge portion of the subway will exceed $7,500,000, and it is contemplated that ultimately the use of that portion will warrant the payment of the entire interest upon it.

"The recent constitutional amendment makes it possible to exempt from the debt limit the bonds issued for subway construction after the subway is self-supporting. It is therefore greatly to the public interest that this subway should be made self-supporting as soon as possible, both to save the city from an annual loss, and so that the bonds issued can be exempted from the debt limit and an equal amount rendered available for other subway construction. The commission is therefore properly desirous that this subway should earn the largest possible income.

"The Rapid Transit act, under which this subway was built, contemplates that the city should earn an income from subways and not that they should be considered merely as public sub-surface highways. This particular subway is an important trunk connection in the heart of the city. Its need and usefulness will ultimately be very great, and we think its value to you is much greater than is expressed by the percentages stated in your letter."

The letter of the commission proceeds further to point out the advantage to be gained by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit in operating its trains through the bridge loop subway, estimating that it will increase the capacity of the system by a quarter of its existing capacity. The commission declares that inasmuch as the investment of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit in its rapid transit system is at least $40,000,000 it could undoubtedly afford to spend one-quarter of that sum to increase its rush hour facilities and therefore it ought fairly to be willing to pay interest on $10,000,000 for similar advantages.

The commission also trips up the Brooklyn Rapid Transit in its suggestion that it will pay six-tenths of the full rental suggested in its letter pending such time as it is possible to operate ten-car trains over the Williamsburg Bridge, calling attention to the fact that its own station platforms do not now admit of the use of ten-car trains, yet the road undertakes to pay interest on its entire investment. The letter says in conclusion:

"The commission is of the opinion that percentages should be figured on the cost of that part of the subway used by your trains, a fair allowance being made for the non-use of the entire line at the beginning, and perhaps also for the first year or two of operation while the readjustment of traffic is taking place. The commission therefore requests that you reconsider your suggestions for payments."

MRS. MORSE HOLDS AUCTION.

Raising Money to Aid Her Imprisoned Husband.

The auctioneer walked into the Charles W. Morse residence, at 728 Fifth Avenue, just below Fifty-seventh Street, yesterday morning to realize what money he could for the wife of the imprisoned banker, that she might continue her fight to gain his pardon or shorten his sentence of fifteen years. The auctioneer was followed by a large crowd, many of whom were curious women who only wanted to take notice and comment on the vicissitudes of fortune.

Nearly every other residence in Fifth Avenue was closed and its windows boarded up for the Summer. The white stone Morse house was flung wide open, and a sign was hung out reading:

AUCTION SALE EXTRAORDINARY.
The Magnificent Modern Furniture, Works of Art, and Complete Modern Appointments of This Residence Will Be Sold by Auction Thursday and Friday, June 23 and 24, at 11 A. M., by Order of Mrs. Charles W. Morse.

Practically everything in the house was tagged for sale. Two small pictures in a bedroom were exceptions. One of these showed the Morse coat-of-arms, under which was written, "In Deo Non Armis Fido." While Augustus W. Clarke, the auctioneer, pleaded with the visitors to buy, chiding them for their low bids, in the auctioneer manner, Mrs. Morse, dressed in white, sat alone on the third floor awaiting the result of the day's sale.

The total value of the furnishings and ornaments was estimated to be $300,000, and the auctioneer gave notice that everything would be put up, from the electric fixtures to the coachman's livery. Wilton carpets in the servants' rooms on the top floor sold for from 50 to 75 cents a yard. The auctioneer said they were worth from $4 to $7 a yard.

In the dining room, on the ground floor, a treasure of silverware and china was spread out. Here many women stopped and fingered curiously. There was enough silverware to supply a dozen ordinary families. One lot included twelve Rose du Barry mat gold Coalport plates. There was a silver chafing dish with an ivory-handled top, twelve cut-glass berry plates, eighteen hand-decorated fish plates, and a Limoges china fish tray.

In a corner was a large mahogany chest filled with silver knives, forks, and spoons.

The few men present were attracted by the collection of steins made by Mr. Morse. The women were particularly interested in a gold toilet set in the bedroom, consisting of a mirror, hair brush, powder box, shoe horn, nail polisher, and bonnet brush.

$15,000,000 FOR FAKE CURES.

Tuberculosis Association Says Consumption Remedies Cost That Yearly.

BOSTON, June 23.—Over $15,000,000 is annually poured into the coffers of those who exploit and advertise "fake" consumption cures, according to a statement issued to-day by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The report stated that for this vast sum the victims receive nothing in return but are often permanently injured, and in many cases deprived of the chance for a real cure.

SAYS BOY WAS SUICIDE.

Cambridge Schoolboy Was Not Murdered, Medical Examiner Decides.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 23.—"Suicide by hanging, no criminal homicide," is the finding of Medical Examiner C. S. Knight of Westboro, who performed an autopsy yesterday on the body of John Newman, the Cambridge boy who was found dead at the Lyman School for Boys at Westboro June 7.

The report was filed to-day with District Attorney Taft, who had ordered the body exhumed yesterday.

EX-STATE ENGINEER TO BE INVESTIGATED

Gov. Hughes Orders Special Session of Grand Jury to Look Into Skene's Administration.

SCANDAL IS AN OLD ONE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 23.—At the request of Attorney General O'Malley Gov. Hughes issued an order to-day convening the Grand Jury of Albany County in extraordinary session during the month of July to investigate the administration of Frederick S. Skene, the Democratic State Engineer of the last administration, who was elected on the Hearst ticket in 1906.

Beyond the admission that Gov. Hughes had acted favorably on the request of Attorney General O'Malley no information with reference to the charges that are being prepared against Mr. Skene could be obtained at the Attorney General's office. Mr. O'Malley is out of town.

There is reason to believe, however, that the charges have to do with road improvements and other contracts from which Democratic politicians interested in contracting are said to have made large profits during the Skene régime. There were frequent rumors before Mr. Skene had been in office many months that the method of letting contracts on public work under the jurisdiction of the State Engineer's Department was characterized by gross irregularities, and that certain contracting firms were invariably in a position to know beforehand what bids to put in to get the jobs they were after.

It was known then that the attention of Gov. Hughes had been called to the methods in vogue in the State Engineer's office and that he had been asked to have charges preferred against Mr. Skene. The Governor, however, took the ground that the matter was not within his jurisdiction, inasmuch as the State Engineer was an elective officer, and he suggested that sworn charges be made and the matter be taken into the courts.

Mr. Skene was affiliated politically with the Cassidy machine in Queens, but was also very close to Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy and to William J. Conners, who was then Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. Only a few months ago disclosures were made with reference to the Skene régime, indicating that padding of payrolls in his office had been practiced on a somewhat large scale. It is thought here that this phase of the situation as well may be looked into by the Grand Jury.

Republican politicians at the Capitol who heard of the Governor's order seemed much pleased. They hope that out of the Skene investigation they may obtain some ammunition for use in the coming campaign, to offset the abundance of Democratic campaign material produced by the Allds investigation, with all its trails of corruption.

At Mr. Skene's home, 27 Stevens Street, Astoria, it was said last night that he was not at home, and was not expected to return before to-day.

PALTSITS ASSAILS DRAPER.

State Historian Accuses Commissioner of Education of Lobbying.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 23.—Charges of "misrepresentation, pernicious lobbying, and coercion," are made against State Commissioner of Education Andrew S. Draper by State Historian Victor Hugo Paltsits, in a circular letter which he has sent to Presidents of historical societies, educators, and other persons interested in historical study and research. The accusations grow out of the efforts of the Commissioner to defeat legislation proposed by Mr. Paltsits at the last two sessions to have the historian's department made a bureau in the Department of Education.

The bill gave the State Historian access to all county records for the purpose of examining them and ascertaining whether they contained anything of historical value. It also gave him the right to copy and photograph such originals and prohibited their destructian by county officials or custodians of records without first consulting and receiving his permission.

The legislation which Mr. Paltsits was endeavoring to have passed had the indorsement of historical societies throughout the State, and of nearly every prominent educator, as well as many writers on historical subjects. These men, as is clear from letters on file in the office of the State Historian, are also opposed, almost without exception, to subordinating the department to that of the Commissioner of Education.

Mr. Paltsits declined to-day to give out his letter for publication on the ground that it was personal correspondence, and he even refused to confirm the accuracy of a copy which reached THE TIMES correspondent through other channels.

Dr. Draper is out of town. Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, Third Assistant Commissioner of Education, said to-day:

"Mr. Paltsits is laboring under some very strange delusions with reference to the entire matter. There was no pernicious lobbying, nor any effort except what was made in the open on behalf of this department to defeat that bill. We believed—and I think with some justification—that the powers the bill would have given the State Historian over public records were too sweeping, especially as they would have covered certain manuscripts of tremendous value in the State library, which under the existing law is in the custody of the Regents and this department.

"We did not feel that we could afford to divide the responsibility with the State Historian. As a way out it was suggested to Mr. Paltsits that he become an official in this department and have the benefits of everything in the State library. He declined to do so."

DEATH TAKES TWO OF FAMILY.

Mary Heaton Vorse's Husband and Mother Die While She's at Sea.

It was a sad homecoming for Mrs. Mary Heaton Vorse, a writer of short stories, who with her two children arrived yesterday an the Prinzess Irene. She received a wireless message on Wednesday announcing that her husband, Albert White Vorse, the author, and her mother, Mrs. Hiram Heaton, had died while she was at sea.

Mr. Vorse left his family in Paris in April and hurried home to complete for early publication a work on aeronautics. To insure quiet he took a room in a little Italian inn on Staten Island. A few days ago he was found unconscious in his room. He was taken to a hospital and died without regaining consciousness. He was a member of the Peary relief expedition in 1892. He was interested in aeronautics and had made several ascensions. He wrote several books, among them "The Laughter of the Sphinx." The mother died at Amherst, Mass.

Mrs. Vorse left the pier to go to Wellesley Hills, Mass., to visit the graves of her husband and mother.

FORMER BANKER ARRESTED.

Capt. Gillett, Whose Institution Suspended, Must Answer Indictment.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 23.—Capt. S. P. Gillett, former President of the Citizens' National Bank, which was suspended for two weeks in January, 1910, because of the discovery of a large volume of insecure loans, was arrested to-day on a Federal indictment charging violation of the banking laws. He gave a $10,000 bond.

Capt. Gillett is 70 years old. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy during the civil war, but retired from the navy forty years ago to become a banker.

The losses in his bank were $272,000. The bank was reorganized.

New Judge for New York.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—An additional Judge for the Eastern District of New York is provided in a House bill passed by the Senate to-day. The new Judge is to receive the same salary and emoluments as the sitting Judge.

LOOK TO OYSTER BAY FOR AID.

Suffragettes Say Something Must Be Done for the Cause.

Suffragettes are looking toward Oyster Bay for a signal of co-operation with Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, and Dr. Anna Shaw in the fight for female suffrage. This came out last night at an open-air meeting held at Broadway and Thirty-fifth Street by the Collegiate Equal Suffrage League, under the auspices of the Twenty-seventh Assembly District organization of the Woman Suffrage Party.

"Unless we get the vote, and that pretty soon," said Mary Donnelly, ex-matron of the Queens County Jail, "we will be compelled to make ourselves ridiculous, or to call upon that great man who has just set England right and returned to Oyster Bay."

This speaker also asked all the women present to pledge themselves not to sing, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty," &c., any more until women are given the suffrage; for until that happens 'tis not a land of liberty, it seems, but a land of hypocrisy. Nobody took the pledge.

Dr. Maud Glasgow also spoke, and with extreme moderation. The audience listened attentively. Mrs. S. Kramer held the yellow flags of the Collegiate League and of the Woman Suffrage Party.

NO MONEY FOR BUILDINGS.

$24,000,000 Bill Now in Conference Merely Authorizes Public Buildings.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Discovery was made to-day that the public buildings bill carrying about $20,000,000 as it passed the Senate and House does not carry any actual appropriation of moneys but merely authorizes the purchase of sites and the erection of buildings.

The bill originated in the House, and it is stated that it was generally understood that there was to be no immediate appropriation of money, although a number of the members worked ardently for the bill in the belief that their districts were to receive some immediate benefit. In the Senate many of the Senators busied themselves in unusual effort for their States, believing that the bill provided for the early erection of public buildings.

It was explained to-day in a statement from the House Committee on Appropriations that the superintending architect of public buildings was so far behind with his work that it was useless to appropriate money for any aditional buildings for at least sixteen months to come.

Late to-day the Senate accepted the conference report on the bill, Chairman Scott of the Senate Committee declaring that the bill was one of the best public buildings bills passed in a long time.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Warm weather continued during the last twenty-four hours in the Middle and South Atlantic States and the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys. Although no excessively high temperatures occurred at any point in these regions, maximum temperatures were above 90 in practically all parts.

Somewhat lower temperatures were reported from New England and Michigan, and a change to considerably cooler weather has taken place in the northern Rocky Mountain region.

Generally fair weather, without material change in temperature, will continue Friday and Saturday in New England and the Middle Atlantic States.

Winds along the New England Coast will be light to moderate north to west; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate variable, mostly west; South Atlantic Coast, light, variable.

Steamships departing Friday for European ports will have moderate north to west winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Generally fair Friday; light south winds; warm in extreme south portion. Saturday, fair; light to moderate north to west winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair Friday and Saturday; light west winds.

New England—Generally fair Friday and Saturday; light to moderate north to west winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

9 A. M.	80	79	9 P. M.	82	84
12 M.	85	87	12 P. M.	79	82

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 82; for the corresponding date last year it was 80; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 70.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 77; at 8 P. M. it was 86; maximum temperature, 91 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 72 degrees at 5:30 A. M. Humidity, 69 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 44 per cent. at 8 P. M.

REPUBLICAN FREE TRADE.

We judge that a financial and industrial panic is about to visit this country. We do not see how it can be long deferred. It will be followed by a prolonged period of trade depression. The panic may come any day—it was due last year.

We are reluctant to make this gloomy prediction, but in making it we are guided by the teachings of experience. The Payne tariff is the cause of the approaching panic. President Taft has told us the causal relation of tariffs to these recurring periods of depression. In his campaign speech at Hot Springs, Va., on Aug. 21, 1908, Mr. Taft, who was then the Republican candidate for the Presidency, said:

> The last Democratic Administration entered upon its labors in March, 1893, and gave up power, under the mandate of the people, in March, 1897. During this period it repealed the McKinley Tariff bill, passed in 1890, and enacted the Gorman-Wilson Tariff bill of 1893. With the prospect of a Democratic tariff for revenue, and under the operation of the Gorman-Wilson Tariff bill subsequently passed, a period of industrial depression set in, which continued through the next Presidential campaign of 1896.

The Payne tariff panic is going to be worse than the Wilson tariff panic. That prediction is based upon figures just put out by the Bureau of Statistics. It appears that, while the average rate of duty upon dutiable imports under the McKinley tariff from 1891 to 1894 ranged from 48.6 to 48.8; and while under the Dingley tariff from 1898 to 1909 the average rate upon dutiable imports was from 42.5 to 52.3; and, furthermore, while the rate on dutiable imports under the Wilson tariff ranged from 39.6 to 46.1 per cent., the average rate for the thirty-five months during which that law was in effect being 42.8 per cent., the duties collected on dutiable imports under the ten months of the Payne law average only 41.1 per cent.

This must be free trade. The Republicans denounced the Wilson act as free trade, but the Payne tariff, at least during the ten months of its operation thus far, is lower than the Wilson tariff. It must be something worse than free trade.

If it was the Wilson tariff of 1894 with its 42.8 per cent. impost upon dutiable imports that brought on the panic of 1893 and killed trade, then the Payne law must necessarily and inevitably do the same thing. The panic of 1893 came on a year before the Wilson law was enacted. It is for this reason that we are in a position to declare that the Payne panic was due last year. But it will come—there can be no doubt about that, unless President Taft and all the Republicans are wrong in respect to the relation of the Wilson tariff to the panic of 1893 and its sequels.

There is only one possibility of error in our prediction. It lies in the conjecture that ten months of the Payne tariff is not a broad enough basis to judge of its effect on trade. The Dingley law varied in its average rate, as we have said, from 42.5 to 52.3 per cent. Even the Wilson law, in operation only three years, showed a variation of 6 per cent. in the rate of the duty. The imports during the ten months of the Payne law, the period, that is, ending May 31, have been abnormal. In 1907 under the Dingley law the imports free and dutiable amounted to $1,219,300,000, which was the largest import figure in our history up to the present time. During the ten months of the Payne tariff, beginning on Aug. 5 last, the imports free and dutiable have amounted to $1,325,700,000. In those ten months the dutiable imports have amounted to $669,500,000, as against $664,400,000, the largest full year of the Dingley tariff. It is possible, again using the light of experience, that as our import trade approaches a more normal volume, and its tendency is now in that direction, the average duty rate of the Payne law may undergo some change. Possibly it will rise above the rate of the Wilson tariff, or even of the Dingley tariff. That is apparently the only thing that can avert the panic.

Meanwhile the friends of the Payne tariff will make the best possible use in the approaching Congressional campaign of these startling figures. But we are confident that the real authors of the act, the men who put thought and calculation and influence into the making of it, will be deeply disappointed by these early statistics. Whatever the President may have hoped for, [illegible] never intended to draw up a tariff that would reduce the customs duties by averages, or otherwise. We don't know what can be done about it, except to take in sail, put our houses in order, get near the shore, and observe other precautions that are appropriate at the approach of a panic.

THE NEW PRINCE OF WALES.

Edward of Saxe-Coburg, who has been created Duke of Cornwall and Prince of Wales on his sixteenth birthday, is the nineteenth Prince of Wales since the conquest of the Cymrians and death of Llewellyn ap Griffith in 1282. The first eldest son of an English King to be thus styled was Edward of Carnarvon, afterward King Edward II., and a most unhappy monarch. There was no other Prince of Wales until the era of Edward the "Black Prince," of glorious memory. Richard II. and Henry of Monmouth, (Shakespeare's Prince Hal,) afterward Henry V., were Princes of Wales, but no other bearer of that title was crowned King until Henry VIII., who succeeded to the eldest son's titular honors, and also to his wife, when Arthur Tudor died.

In the eighteenth century there were two exceptionally distinguished Princes of Wales, Frederick, son of George II., who kept up a sort of rival court to the Hanoverian St. James's, and had a clever wife with a train of wits and beauties, and the illustrious "first gentleman in Europe," who was as dull a fellow, and as selfish a one, as ever disgraced an honored name. But the greatest of Princes of Wales was the grandfather of the lad who now assumes the historic title. No other English Crown Prince was ever so widely known or so generally liked, and none wore the title so long, a full half century.

In the House of Lords, when he attains his majority, Prince Edward will sit as the Duke of Cornwall. Before many years he must choose a wife, who will share regal honors with him when he becomes King Edward VIII. He is a comely, sturdy lad, of healthy appearance, who has been trained thus far to study hard and work hard and live simply. His lot is not easy or enviable. He may in time set the fashions in men's dress for England, which will be complacently accepted in this country, as his grandfather used to as Prince and King. But he is not likely to be gay, or a leader of a "fast set." The British still cling to their monarchical institution, but they will no longer endure much nonsense in association with royalty. If Prince Edward profits by the training he has received he will not be an extravagant supporter of sports or a patron, in a broad and popular sense, of the arts. At present, however, he is only a reasonably bright, well-set up, attractive English boy of German ancestry.

RACE SUICIDE PROBLEMS.

The cable brings us the proposals introduced into the French Assembly because of the recent disclosure that the birthrate of France is decreasing alarmingly. Bachelors are to be persuaded to marry by the imposition of a penal addition to military service. Civil servants are to be compelled to marry at or before 25, and are to be rewarded with additional salaries and pensions if they supply the State more than three children. The requirement of the equal division of patrimony among children is to be repealed. These measures point to an almost desperate determination to check a decline in the birthrate so severe that since 1851 only 3,000,000 have been added to population, or one-tenth the increase of Germany.

France's ally, Russia, offers a remarkable contrast. Since the census of 1897 Russia's population has increased 33,199,000. These comparisons are suggestive. France is rightly considered among the world's healthiest and wealthiest nations. The lightheartedness of the French is proverbial, but it is associated with that thrift which is characteristic of foresight and forethought. Yet population is receding. On the other hand Russia, whose wealth in the aggregate is also great, is among the world's poorest nations considering its citizens individually. In like manner its 160,000,000 contain among themselves some intellects which are among the world's brightest ornaments, but the average of the national intelligence is not high. Some classes of the composite Russian nationality are among the world's poorest. They are on the verge of hunger to-day and are in despair about to-morrow. Yet they increase prodigiously. This is one of the mysteries of the increase of the human race for more nations than Russia.

Who shall solve these mysteries, or dogmatize upon them? Who shall praise France when Frenchmen are condemning it? Or who shall condemn Russia? Who shall settle for any household of any country whether quantity or quality of offspring is the more desirable, or shall advise any parents to assume responsibilities to which they may be unequal, or to shirk the responsibilities which after all they share with Providence? Who shall say whether conscience or optimism predominates in a decision in the Russian manner, or easy morals and a pessimistic experience of the hardships of livelihood in luxurious France predominate in the limitation of French families?

Two leaders of the world's thought have hastened to advise where others might hesitate. Mr. Roosevelt's views are well known. In his own words healthy-minded people should regard as "a criminal against the race and an object of contemptuous abhorrence" whoever dissents from the proposition as phrased by him that > as the world is now, with huge waste places still to fill up and with much of the competition between the races reducing itself to the warfare of the cradle, no race has any chance to win a great place unless it consists of good breeders as well as of good fighters.

Dr. Koch is even more pessimistic. In a posthumous book soon to appear he is quoted as saying:

> I consider it is by no means impossible that human beings will at some future time disappear from the earth because children will cease. By way of example I may mention the population of an island in the Polynesian Archipelago who were happy and contented until civilizing influences were brought to bear on them. A remarkable tendency to race suicide then became apparent among them. The tribe ultimately ceased to bear children, its total extinction could not be prevented, and this actually ensued.

Incidentally it may be remarked that the Doctor did not hesitate to couple France and the United States in his remarks, with justification which would surprise those who remark the increase in our population without apportioning to immigration its share.

RENO GETTING READY.

All accounts agree that Reno, Nev., is elated over the prospect of getting the Independence Day meeting of the gladiators as a local attraction. Commercial interests will be benefited. The visiting crowd will not be so great as it would have been at San Francisco, naturally; Reno could scarcely accommodate such a crowd. As it is, the meaning of the word "accommodate" must be somewhat stretched to apply to the treatment many visitors to Reno at fight time will receive. Reno will do its best, and the people who travel hundreds and thousands of miles in midsummer to see two large, bare men pummeling each other will not be too particular.

A little while ago society in Reno was fairly up in arms about the divorce colony upon which the world-wide fame of the town has thus far rested. Reno folks who had acquired the right to a little leisure and comfort and hungered for social and aesthetic cultivation felt that the presence of the colony of women seeking the dissolution of marriage ties was a bar to the development of their community. The divorce colony has been profitable to Reno. Doubtless society objects also to the fight. But it comes quickly and will soon be over. Society can afford to ignore it. Objectionable persons attracted by the display of pugilism will not remain long in Reno.

The Nevada city is still in its rude and boisterous childhood. The fight will not hurt it as much as it would hurt San Francisco. The "gate receipts" will be smaller, but they will be large for Reno, and the inhabitants will take their share gratefully. Reno is not yet looking for a world's fair. That will come to it later, with other honors of maturity. It will outgrow its divorce colony and its reputation for excessive freedom. It will be governed according to the sober ideas of its best citizens. Reno knows it has a future. Meanwhile it is getting ready to "pull off" the greatest sporting "event" of the year, and will extend a genuine Nevada welcome to all comers.

AMERICANS WITHOUT FAVOR.

There is no further doubt that the vogue of Americans in the upper social reaches of Great Britain belongs to history. The American heiress wedded to British nobility is no longer to be received in favor at the Court of St. James's. Consequently she will lose something of her standing in society not of the Court but anxious to please the Court. The London correspondent of The New York Times, in his special dispatches yesterday, gave credence to a report that Sir John Lister-Kaye and Mr. Montagu Elliott have not been reappointed to their Court places because of their marriage to American women. This is not to be regarded as an unmixed evil, but rather as a blessing in disguise.

What have Americans to do with foreign royalty? The daughters of wealthy Americans may not be so anxious to wed titles in the future if the alliance lessens rather than increases their chance for social triumph. There is no reason for ill-feeling against King George and his Queen because they prefer to have women of English birth dominant in the society that surrounds them. It is a natural and wholesome preference, and we fancy it will have the approval of most Americans. The result of the new rule, unwritten, of course, and not officially promulgated, will be watched with interest. If fewer American girls make English matches it will be good for this country, and good for the girls, too. They can do better at home.

SIXTH AVENUE.

The Times has always been opposed to sacrificing more streets to the elevated railways, and looks with small favor upon concessions to them which will obstruct displacing them with subways. But a suggestion has been made to the Mayor which is worth considering in connection with the application for alterations of the franchises and routes of the elevated system. Soon the Pennsylvania Station will be such a source of traffic that transportation routes alike should be planned with reference to it. This could be managed for the Sixth Avenue elevated road if it made its junction with the Ninth Avenue line by a westward extension near either the north or south side of the station which soon will bring into New York the New Jersey and Long Island commuters who are a part of Manhattan's population in all their waking hours, although naturally they go elsewhere when they want to sleep.

There are other advantages in connecting these elevated roads through some street about twenty blocks south of Fifty-third Street, and removing the structure on Sixth Avenue northward of the street to be selected for the new westward link. There is no thoroughfare for Sixth Avenue through Central Park. The elevated railway therefore runs into an obstruction which prevents its serving its traffic well, and yet for the sake of this imperfect service it ruins the avenue for the uses suitable for that choice part of the city. The elevated road is as much out of place for the quiet residential district north of Thirty-fourth Street as it is suited to the traffic associated with the shops, hotels, and railway station south of that street, and near it. Hardly anybody wishes to reach the neighborhood of the Park in the "shuttle" trains over the stubend extension of the Sixth Avenue line, which is more a nuisance than a utility. All who do not wish to make that use of the line, that is to say all the through riders, would be better served by taking the route suggested, joining the Ninth Avenue line at Thirty-first or Thirty-fourth Street. And this greater accommodation to the elevated railway and its patrons would be of advantage to the city by restoring to surface traffic the part of Sixth Avenue from which the overhead structure would be removed. The advantage to the railway appears from a comparison of the business which it does at Eighth Avenue and Fifty-third Street with what it would do at the corresponding station near the Pennsylvania Station.

It is a case for discussion and agreement. The Manhattan Elevated Company cannot be ordered to do the work and accept the advantages, but it can be asked to bargain about it at a time when it is negotiating for other things which it wants. If the officials representing the city should think the city wanted this they would be in a position both to give and take in the arrangements.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Says that Water Is Overestimated.

In a long and elaborate editorial article Engineering News contends that the popular, and to a large extent the professional, estimate of water power as an economic asset and potential source of profit is much larger than the facts warrant, and this contention it buttresses with many statistics as to the comparative cost of energy as supplied by natural waterfalls and by other prime movers.

Wrong ideas on the subject, this high authority maintains, should be removed lest investors be beguiled into sinking their money in projects sure to be disappointing, lest towns providing themselves with drinking water continue to pay too much for the power sites incidentally flooded, and lest what Engineering News describes as "the so-called conservation movement"—that "so-called" may be significant—exaggerates the importance of keeping power sites as yet unused from falling into private hands. Just why the private hands are reaching out for the falls and rapids if they are of little value the article does not state, so inquiries on that subject, presumably, would be impertinent.

What we do learn from the article is that water power is not now worth even as much as it was ten and twenty years ago, when the practicability of carrying heavy electrical currents long distances was first demonstrated. Since then there have been such improvements in steam turbines and boilers that, when working in large units, the cost of fuel has been reduced, where coal is cheap, to something like $5.25 per year for each kilowatt, and even where coal is $5 a ton it does not rise above $13.25. Water power is said rarely to be cheaper than this, when interest on the usually expensive investment is taken into account. What the new methods of utilizing steam have done for industries employing large amounts of power has been paralleled in the meeting of smaller needs by the internal combustion and gas producer engines. These, especially the former, are now found everywhere, doing work to which water cannot be conveniently turned.

All this is plausible enough—indeed, the facts and figures, coming whence they do, must be accepted as true. Still, one cannot help thinking that Engineering News is just a bit prejudiced against "the so-called conservation movement," and perhaps it puts off a little too far the time when, as it admits, every water power site will become an extremely valuable possession.

An Honor Clumsily Conferred.

For Oberlin College to give degrees to Wilbur and Orville Wright was a gracious thing, and LL.D., the honor conferred upon the justly famous brothers in recognition of the glory they have earned for their State and the service they have performed for the world, while not obviously relevant to their labors, is no more incongruous than in the case of scores and scores of men upon whom it is annually bestowed by institutions both more and less important than Oberlin.

To be sure the laws with which the Wrights have familiarized themselves and have done not a little to formulate and extend are not exactly those which "LL." was originally intended to signify. But the relation between air pressures and plane and curved surfaces is at least as dignified as are those rather dubiously and precariously established by statute, whether civil or ecclesiastical, and it will have the advantage of remaining settled when once fixed. Considering, however, that by the application of the laws in which Dr. Wilbur and Dr. Orville have raised themselves and enabled us all to hope in time to rise appreciably nearer to the heavens than was formerly possible, the Oberlin authorities might have safely ventured, perhaps, upon making the solemn joke of choosing for them the degree of D. D. instead of LL.D.

Not being experts in such matters, this suggestion of ours may not be judicious or even seemly, and we will not press it upon other colleges contemplating the bestowal of alphabetical honors upon the Dayton bird-men. But surely it is to be hoped that the other colleges will not, as Oberlin did, first offer, then withdraw, and then offer again their mark of appreciation, for really that is not a pretty way of doing a pretty thing, and the Wrights may not always be as patient as they were this time in the face of what they had some reason for interpreting as a very gratuitous affront. Of course, it wasn't intended as such, and the squabbling Trustees and Faculty did get together after a while in the determination of their respective rights and powers in the creation of doctors, but just the same that degree will never be associated in the minds of the levitating brothers with memories wholly pleasant.

Possibly the lesson of the episode is that too many degrees are conferred, and that they would be worth more if the output were smaller. If the Federal Government were to reward distinguished inventors with a bit of ribbon and a P. B., meaning Public Benefactor, it might go some distance toward making up to them for the woes they suffer through the imperfections and absurdities of our patent laws.

More Nice, Perhaps, Than Wise.

Nobody could believe more strongly than we do in protecting the State forest lands and in firmly maintaining the constitutional safeguards which have been set around them. There are, however, certain "littlest things" to which the law is confessedly blind, and we doubt if it was necessary for the Attorney General to use a microscope, as he must have done, when he refused to let a Superintendent of Highways up in Franklin County take a few square yards of stone from a convenient ledge in the public domain and use it for repairing a bad place in a near-by road.

That would, indeed, have been an interference with the "natural condition" of the forest, but one so small and for a purpose so good! The refusal was better calculated, we suspect, to excite ridicule and resentment than to teach reverence for the State woodlands as inviolable. Far be it from us to advise the Superintendent, the next time he wants a few loads of road ballast, to take it and say nothing. That, of course, would be very, very wrong theoretically, and it could easily be argued into one of those small sins that lead by insensible gradations to great crimes. Still, if he does it, and keeps the lower part of his face contiguous to the upper part, and—but evidently these remarks are becoming distinctly immoral and should not be continued.

A FLOWER MARKET.

The Advantages of Establishing One Near Queensboro Bridge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is a noticeable omission in one instance in our great city. We have unequaled museums, zoological and botanical gardens, large areas in parks, but there is no flower market such as we see in cities abroad, and I believe in a few cities in this country. There is a small market in a dilapidated building at the foot of Spring Street, North River. It seems strange that this has been overlooked for so long a time.

There is an awakened interest at this moment, if we are to judge from the hearing yesterday before a committee of the Board of Aldermen in relation to locating a flower market under the arches of the Queensboro Bridge, Fifty-ninth to Sixtieth Street, vicinity of First Avenue. The hearing was largely attended by florists and growers of flowers. The space under the bridge is lofty and light, and the columns and roof supporting the structure are decorative. If the engineers and architects in planning the bridge had in mind a suitable place for a flower market I question whether they could have selected better proportions.

Taste in flowers will increase and should be encouraged. The question with our people of taste has been the cost in obtaining flowers, as they could only be secured from florists who have to pay very large rents on Fifth Avenue and other streets and avenues. There is a dense population of gentle people located in proximity to the Queensboro Bridge, and it is not far distant from Fifth and Madison Avenues and the residential section. In time it should become fashionable to go to market to select one's plants.

The location is convenient to a large majority of growers whom we find spread out through Queens, Brooklyn, and on Long Island and out beyond Great Neck; besides, it is within convenient distance for the growers in the Bronx. It is a popular movement in the locality of the bridge, judging from the earnestness of the people who advocated it yesterday and who were not all florists or growers. At such a market plants should retail at about wholesale prices. JOHN D. CRIMMINS.

LESSON IN PHONETICS.

Reply to Those Who Fear to Discard the Letter "c."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A little while ago one of The Times's poets took a letter of mine as a text for some humorous verses about the alphabet. In his rollicking, rhyming way he stood up for the letter "c," because without it, he thinks, there is no way to represent the sounds now represented by "ch." Well, I have much respect for the gentleman's talents as a ready rhymester, but his question shows that he needs a short lesson in elementary phonetics. Be it known, then, to Mr. Lampton and to any others who may be interested, that by "ch" (or tch) we represent two sounds, "t" and "sh." Evidently, the word "patch" would have the some pronunciation if written "patsh," and thus we should eliminate the "c" which has been so much discussed.

But some one may say, "What is the use of writing 'tsh' for 'ch,' substituting three letters for two?" I don't know that there would be any use of doing just that. But in the phonetic alphabet "sh," representing a single sound, is replaced by a single character. And so "ch" is replaced by two other characters, the first of which—as it ought to be—is "t." According to the present orthography, the sound of our "sh" is represented in German by "sch," and in French by "ch." Were the phonetic alphabet used in writing these three languages, then this sound would be represented in them all by the same character. And that would to some extent facilitate acquiring the pronunciation. HERBERT M. CLARKE.

The Children in the Street.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can anything make a bigger or more soul-distracting noise than a lot of children of various sizes and ages at play in the street? I live in Sixty-sixth Street, just west of Broadway, and in the evenings between 7 and 9 o'clock there are about twenty or thirty of them, who get together for their play, and they simply make life miserable during that time.

There are ordinances forbidding old-clothes men, hucksters, and scissors grinders from crying their wares and blowing their horns, and even the steamboats have been repressed in blowing their whistles too loudly around the harbor; but these noises are heavenly music compared to the ear-splitting, nerve-racking screeches and screams that these children give forth. Anti-Typhoid Vaccine.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos your account of the use of anti-typhoid vaccine in to-day's issue, I would like to state that not long ago a nurse in the Boer war was telling me some of his experiences. This young man went through the siege of Ladysmith, and he told me that of the 12,000 men there, 3,000 died of typhoid fever, or enteric, as he called it, and that all these men had been inoculated. So great was the loss that when Gen. Buller arrived, he said: "Send the doctors and their serums back to England. They are depopulating the army."

As this information came impartially in the course of his story, and without any parti-pris on his part, I accept it as correct. A. J. MUNSON.

CRABBED OLD AGE.

Men Over Fifty Who Do Not Add to the Gayety of Life.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

From its established power of influence The Times is frequently made the depository or vehicle for complaints of the dissatisfied, with hopes for relief through its agency. My plaint in the present instance I assume to be beyond its power of remedy because it seems to be to correct the ordinances of nature. The emotion of mirth appears to be well designed as a factor quite indispensable to relative happiness, but seems to be arrested too early in the lives of many. The years are kicking actively on my heels at present, and invite me to make comparisons with an earlier age and of those of years about the same as mine or older.

I find few men over 50 who are capable of appreciating humor or contributing any except by unconscious acts or speech recognized by others as those of eccentricities of advancing years. It is not to be expected that "green and lusty age" shall be Falstaffian in tenor or that those suspected of having passed the half century mark shall toss hats in air or kick their spectacles around the rooms in ebullitions of joyousness, but surely mirth should not be imprisoned in a desolate cavern of bosom while the muscles that actuate smiles become atrophied.

I know too many men in comfortable circumstances, in fair physical condition, who habitually wear corrugated brows and dismal expressions instead of betraying continuous astonishment at not having laughed themselves to death years ago at the contemplation of their own absurdities. Few of us have contracted this happy habit.

I observe that many decline to be amused or entertained, and view with distrust novel suggestions or the promising amplification of small matters into those of vast importance.

This communication is prompted in part by futile efforts to inspire appreciation in the minds of several of the delicious humor contained in the "Musings of a Gentle Cynic" and "Dyspeptic Philosophy" in the magazine section of The Sunday Times, tersely and ludicrously true pictures of human foibles which my friends virtually deny by their unwillingness of receptivity of interest.

I think it may be asserted, and without rational contradiction, that when a man becomes deficient in the sense of humor he is to be considered old irrespective of the number of his years. APACE.

PARADE OF GUARDSMEN.

Replies to the Mayor on the Subject of "a Little Hard Work."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In to-day's issue of The Times I notice that Mayor Gaynor is quoted as saying that "a little hard work would not hurt the Guardsmen. The Guardsmen do not consider a parade from the Battery to Fifty-ninth Street hard work. I think the Mayor possibly is not thoroughly informed just what the Guard is capable of. He does not allude in any way to the manoeuvres of Pine Plains and Boston, which have been the true tests of the Guard. The men are quite capable of marching, and with blanket rolls on their shoulders at that. He said that of the many protests against the parade none had been from members of the Guard. This speaks well for it. A soldier is expected to do what he is ordered without lifting up his voice to howl his opinions. Mayor Gaynor should know this.

As an ex-member I know the feeling in the National Guard and feel free to tell of it. The men who stay home probably don't object to a parade. Those who have been planning for months for a three days' holiday naturally are not anxious to have it spoiled, and there are many of these. VICTOR N. CAMP.

Ex-Member Co. G, 23d Regt., N. G. N. Y.

New York, June 22, 1910.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As the mother of a young Guardsman I am naturally much interested and concerned in this "safe and sane" (?) Fourth of July movement. What a pity that Mr. Courtlandt Nicoll's resolution was defeated.

Mr. Gaynor's expressed opinion as quoted in this (Wednesday) morning's Times is nothing short of asinine.

I venture to say there are few Guardsmen who would not be ready to cheerfully and enthusiastically respond at duty's call, and who cheerfully give up an occasional Saturday afternoon to drill in the open. That is as it should be.

The majority of our Guardsmen are business men, and have quite enough "hard work" to warrant an unbroken holiday.

I dare say the reason he has no protests from the men is that they consider it useless. Let him call for a vote on the question through the commanding officers.

You cannot make for the safety of the many hysterical, excitable aliens who are really the ones who cause the anxiety on July Fourth, by causing men to parade in hot uniforms from the Battery to Fifty-ninth Street.

HUNTING FROM AEROPLANES.

How the Sportsman of the Future May Get His Canvasbacks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the tremendous swoops forward made and making in aerial "navigation," let me suggest the urgent necessity for legislation which shall protect our fast diminishing numbers of wild fowl from pursuit by sportsmen in air-borne craft. I suggest making it a misdemeanor to hunt wild fowl over any of the waters of the State of New York in any of the vehicles, craft, or contrivances commonly known as aeroplanes, dirigible balloons, &c.

Hamilton's skill only seems wonderful to us because of its novelty. Without the slightest doubt thousands of us will, within a year or two, dart, slide, swing, swoop, and circle with the same hawklike freedom which characterizes Hamilton's exhibitions.

Improvements will give us freer use of our hands and better equilibrium control. When these natural steps in aviation have been taken the shotgun will become, for wild fowling, as obsolete as the water fowler's gin—for, armed only with a new model scapnet, the twentieth century sportsman will hook up on high speed, and, running into his birds, will take turn for turn with the sixty-miles-an-hour canvasbacks and redheads until, tiring of the pursuit, he will extend his patent collapsible split bamboo-handled scapnet and scoop in a swoop the fattest of the flock. Victories of the President.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In prominent headlines it is announced to-day: "Another Taft Victory." Examination of the article calling for such heading proves it to be the announcement of the passage by the House of Representatives of a bill appropriating $20,000,000. Rather a dear victory, and a few more of the same sort will cause some deep thinking at the Treasury Department.

DOUBT.

No creature, I, of childhood's imageries,
Soft, baby fancies, fairy lands of dreams,
To people rainbows, clouds and purling streams
With elfs and angels, or weave fantasies
From every shadow dancing on the grass.
No foothold, I, in youth's inherent faith,
Belief in heavens of harps with golden strings,
Queer after-people—when all time shall pass
To that oblivion where faith's slippery wings
Adhere as vapor to an earth-born wraith.
My home, the fibre of man's rounded brain,
Where judgment dwells, and ripe consistency;
Where meed of knowledge, growing grain by grain,
From life and death remove all mystery.

SAY CITY PRINTING WAS "LARCENOUS"

Supplementary Report Sent to Mayor Gives Details of Reckless Waste Under McClellan.

BLIND POOL IN ADVERTISING

Committee Says Foster Had Things All His Own Way—Checks Went to the O'Briens.

Further details about the alleged waste in the expenditures by the city for printing and advertising were set forth in a supplementary report submitted to the Mayor yesterday by the committee appointed to investigate the subject.

Various adjectives were used in the report to characterize the things that went on in this connection in the McClellan administration, principal among them "larcenous." The printing bills of the Board of Elections were picked out as one of the most flagrant examples of the waste to which the investigating committee has devoted its attention, it being stated in the report:

"An investigation of the Board of Elections printing and stationery would prove interesting, and would emphasize the fact that the municipality is now and has been in the hands of a printing ring. It would prove that retail prices were paid for all stock stationery. It would show that there never was any real competitive bidding, and never any proper specifications."

The question of the commission business done by William George Foster in city advertising was also gone into in detail, and the allegation made that there was a "blind pool" arrangement on these operations.

"Against this blind pool account checks were drawn to officials of Mayor McClellan's office, Frank M. O'Brien, John H. O'Brien, and William A. Willis," says the report. "This does not represent, however, one-fifteenth of the total collected by William George Foster, and the whole thing is an indication of the necessity of putting the city's advertising on an honest basis."

Various recommendations are made by the committee for the reform of the practices which, it is alleged, have led to the waste. Principal among them is the suggestion that the position of editor of The City Record be established to prevent needless reduplication in the publication of official documents.

A Story of Waste.

The committee says that the city's total printing bill for 1909 was no less than $3,402,130, and adds:

> We find the waste in advertising to exceed proportionately the waste in printing. Money was presented to newspapers, big and little, by the grace of Mayor McClellan, the Controller of the city, and the Corporation Counsel. Money for purely optional advertising was scattered broadcast; the charter required this advertising only in The City Record or in The City Record and the Brooklyn corporation newspapers, but it was given out to favorite newspapers at enormous cost.
>
> We find that the present city administration has cut off this optional advertising through the Board of City Record, and, through the Corporation Counsel's office, has cut, as far as possible, the mandatory advertising provided in the Water Supply act relating to the Catskill watershed. This watershed advertising for the last two years of Mayor McClellan's administration cost more than $300,000. Daily newspapers were used where weekly newspapers would have sufficed under the act, although, as a matter of fact, there is no good reason, except in the law, why even weekly newspapers should be used in the City of New York.
>
> The story of the printing, including all kinds, is much the same as that of the advertising. It is largely a story of waste and favoritism.
>
> That the Board of City Record was itself responsible—that is, the Mayor, Controller, and Corporation Counsel—for much of the waste in city printing, and for the exorbitant prices paid for books, pamphlets, and general blank printing, is shown by the minutes of the Board of City Record for 1909. The same state of affairs obtained throughout Mayor McClellan's administration.
>
> The publication of the minutes of The City Record also has a very crooked appearance. The minutes of Dec. 21, 1908, and of March 16, 1909, were published on Sept. 4 of last year. The minutes of March 25, June 29, and Dec. 1 were published on Dec. 30, last year. The minutes of Dec. 7, 15, 21, 23, and 28 were published on Dec. 31 of last year, with an evident desire to clean up and legalize everything before the next Mayor came into office.
>
> All three members of the Board of City Record grossly neglected their duty. They permitted heads of departments, or the Supervisor of The City Record, or some accelerator, to order hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of printing in one form or another without any authority in law, and for the most part without any competition, and then the Board of City Record met to act as a stamping machine and O. K. everything that had been done.

Suggests Charter Changes.

The committee suggests various amendments to the Charter to simplify the present method of the handling of city advertising, principally that which is classed as "optional" and so-called "outside" printing. It is estimated that the cost of the election advertising might be cut in half, and almost equal economies are suggested in the Catskill watershed advertising.

Of the official publication of the city and its cost, the report says:

> We see here that the total cost of printing The City Record and the supplement was $262,477.60. As we have shown to you in exhibits printed for your observation, The City Record was "phattened" out even to larcenous bounds; and without, as an editor could have done, cutting out the crudities and unnecessary reports, the cost of The City Record proper could have been reduced nearly 50 per cent.

The committee declares that more than two-thirds of the $165,474 spent in 1909 for the Catskill watershed advertising was clear waste. The report says:

> It is absurd to permit weeklies to charge the city 40 cents a line for legal advertising or for any form of advertising. The weeklies raised their rates from 20 to 25 and then to 40 cents because they were forced to pay big commissions to William George Foster, an unofficial attache of Mayor McClellan's office and treasurer of his campaign in 1905. Should the city establish a rate of 20 cents a line the proprietors of the many weekly newspapers will make a footrace to the Corporation Counsel's office in an effort to obtain this advertising. These Manhattan Borough weeklies obtained from the city last year in watershed advertising the sum of $29,688.

It is also contended that not a dollar of the $142,381 paid to Brooklyn papers for this advertising since 1901 need have been spent had there been "any one in The City Record office who knew the requirements of the charter."

The committee recommends that one of the best reforms would be the letting of the city's printing contract for the entire administration, it being declared that more bidders would be obtained if this assurance of permanency was given.

The Mayor would not say what action he will take on the report, declaring that he preferred to digest it thoroughly before commenting on it.

HITCHCOCK WILL FILED.

Widow and Two Sons Receive Entire Estate Largely of Railroad Stocks.

The will of Thomas Hitchcock, for many years a member of the editorial staff of The New York Sun, was filed yesterday.

Mr. Hitchcock left $5,000 in cash, his parterre box, No. 33, at the Metropolitan Opera House and 300 shares of Metropolitan Opera stock, his personal effects, and a life interest in all his railroad securities to his wife, Maria Center Hitchcock.

He left the residue of his estate to his two sons, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., of 8 East Twenty-ninth Street, and Francis R. Hitchcock of Old Westbury, L. I.

DE LESSEPS HERE, FAVORS TIMES RACE

French Flier, on Way to Montreal, Thinks Aerial Art Thus Will Be Developed.

LAUDS AMERICAN AVIATORS

They Are Daring and Have Resources to Succeed—Advancement Here a Surprise to Him.

Count Jacques de Lesseps, who is on his way to Montreal to take part in the aviation week under the auspices of the Aeronautic Association of Canada, arrived in this city yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland. He is accompanied by his brother, Count Bertrand de Lesseps, and his sister, the Countess Helen de la Begassiere. The party left last evening for Canada. The aviator will have two aeroplanes of the Blériot type at Montreal. One arrived here on the Kronprinz Wilhelm on Tuesday, and the other will get here Saturday on the Savoie.

Count de Lesseps said that he was greatly interested in the development of aeronautics here and had read with interest of the sensational flight of Hamilton to Philadelphia and return for THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Philadelphia Public Ledger, as well as of Curtiss's trip from Albany to New York for The New York World prize. He declared enthusiastically that the race for airships between Chicago and New York for a $25,000 prize, arranged by THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Chicago Evening Post not only would do much to develop the sport, but would show what American aviators could do. The latter, he said, were in the front rank of aeronauts.

Count de Lesseps won fame by flying across the English Channel in a Blériot monoplane. He did not discuss his feat, though he talked freely of the feats of others.

"There is going to be great improvement in the art of aviation," he said, "and every event like the TIMES-Ledger flight to Philadelphia and back, Curtiss's flight from Albany, and the TIMES-Evening Post race between Chicago and New York, is going to help in its development. Everything counts. The great question now is to perfect the engine. If your engine runs down you can alight and fill your fuel tank, but if the engine breaks down, when you get down you cannot get up again.

"The monoplanes I am bringing with me are built to carry only one. I have gone up with Blériot, but I studied and mastered the aeroplane alone. I did not care to take the risk with any one else. If something goes wrong and you have a fall, yours is the risk, and you meet it alone."

The Countess, who is a pretty dark-eyed young woman, was listening to her brother. She smiled and said that the Count already had ordered a two-seated Farman machine.

"He has promised that I shall be the first person to go up with him," she said. "I am not afraid, but I have a husband and children, and I have not cared to go up. However, I am going up with my brother."

De Lesseps smiled and repeated his promise to take her up with him. He said that he was going back to Paris as soon as the Montreal meet was over and enter as a contestant in the Paris-London flight in August for a 125,000 franc prize.

Count De Lesseps spoke through an interpreter, and apparently was under the impression that the Wright's injunction was in force still. He could not be made to understand that there was no longer anything to prevent foreign aviators from taking part in meets here. In his misunderstanding he asserted that his part in the United States would be that of a spectator merely.

"I do not believe in the nearness of transatlantic flights. That is looking a long way forward," he continued. "It may come, but there is going to be a great improvement before that time arrives. Then, when some one finally gets across, it will be another long time before such distances can be covered to any practical purpose. However, as I have said, everything that is done tends to the development and final perfecting of the art of aerial navigation."

The French aviator was asked when, in his opinion, the aeroplane would be of commercial advantage.

"Who can say?" he replied. "It must be remembered that aviation is now only a sport, and the development will be along that line. When it is entirely safe as a sport then will be the time to consider its possible commercial advantages. We must improve the type."

He was asked whether he had read the account of the first successful flight of the new Zeppelin dirigible as a regular passenger carrier on the route between Friedrichshafen and Düsseldorf.

"I am not strong on dirigibles," was his reply. "They have their good points. If they are lost in a storm it means the destruction of a very valuable property and much time consumed in building. They are too big to be stowed away quickly. The aeroplane is smaller and lighter. If a storm comes one alights, and it takes no time to drag the craft behind a shelter or under a shed. The dirigible is very nice, but the areoplane is the machine of the future."

The De Lesseps party were delayed some time on the pier looking after their baggage. As the vessel came to her pier in the afternoon the aviator said that their stop here would be only long enough to get dinner before leaving for Montreal. He said that some time he expected to run over and see something of the country and meet some of our aviators. He added that he was rather surprised and pleased at the way Americans were going in for aeronautics.

"Americans are daring, and they have the nerve necessary to success," he added. "They are going at the work with an enthusiasm and with resources which speak well for the development of the art of flying."

INTERNATIONAL MEET PLANS.

Races May Last a Fortnight—Three-Mile Course Near Garden City.

The Aero Club of America, the American representative of the International Aeronautical Federation, announced yesterday that Gage E. Tarbell of Garden City, L. I., had been chosen as general manager of the international aviation meet to be held at Garden City next Fall. Mr. Tarbell's official position is Chairman of the Committee on Plan and Scope of the International Meet. He will be assisted by Byron R. Newton. Mr. Tarbell, following the announcement of his appointment, made the following statement:

"Active work has been begun already by the Committee on Subscriptions, and plans are being perfected rapidly for the largest and most interesting tournament of aviation ever seen anywhere. The meet will be held on the Hempstead Plains, about one mile east of the Garden City Hotel, and immediately beyond the field where Hamilton, Harmon, Baldwin, Seymour, Wilcox, Fairchild, Harkness, and others have given or are preparing to give flying exhibitions.

"The field is about two miles long and one mile in width. It has been examined by Wilbur Wright, Charles K. Hamilton, Louis Paulhan, Glenn H. Curtiss, Clifford B. Harmon, and several other aviators, and pronounced excellent. Mr. Wright said that it probably was the most admirable site for an international meet that could be found in the United States.

"Engineers are now at work there, and as soon as the proper surveys have been completed and contracts let a large force of men will be put to work erecting grandstands and such other buildings as will be needed. The field will be fenced in and parking spaces for more than 10,000 automobiles will be provided. The grandstands will have a seating capacity of from 30,000 to 40,000 people. Sheds for aviators, a clubhouse, and other structures will be built also.

"The Long Island Railroad Company has agreed and, indeed, already has started to electrify its central division as far as Clinton Road, where a new station, about a quarter of a mile from the aviation field, is being built. The railroad also will put up a station especially for the meet, on its main line, which runs within a few yards of the north side of the field.

"The exact date for the meet has not been decided upon yet nor has its duration. At first it was contemplated holding contests on six consecutive days, but the plans now include increasing this number to ten, and in all likelihood there will be a fortnight of international competition. The meet will begin probably on Oct. 22. But if it is possible to arrange with the International Aeronautical Federation, the international governing body which fixes the dates for these congresses, the date will be advanced to one as early in September as practicable.

"All matters connected with the financing of the meeting are in the hands of the Subscription Committee, composed of L. L. Gillespie, Chairman; Philip T. Dodge, Andrew Freedman, Dave Hennen Morris, and Allan A. Ryan. About $100,000 already has been subscribed, and it is expected that as much more will be forthcoming within the next fortnight. Cash prizes amounting to $50,000 will be offered, besides many trophies.

"Interesting programmes will be arranged for every day of the meet, and the public will see the finest exhibition of flying that any people in any land have ever seen. The principal event and that of international importance will be the contest for the Gordon Bennet Trophy, offered for the first time at Rheims last Summer and won there for the Aero Club of America by Glenn H. Curtiss in the machine which Hamilton recently used to fly to Philadelphia and back for THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Philadelphia Ledger.

"This contest is purely a speed competition and the winner will be he who flies 100 kilometers in the fastest time. A whole day will be set aside for this particular event. The course over which the aviators will fly will be three miles in circumference, as required under the international federation's rules."

The entries of at least ten or twelve foreign aviators, including French, German, Austrian, Italian, and English fliers, in the international meet are assured. There undoubtedly will be as many more Americans, and several Canadians, including McCurdy and Baldwin, have promised to be present with their machines. The types of aeroplanes that will be seen include Wright, Curtiss, Farman, Voisin, Baldwin, and other biplanes, and Blériot and Antoinette monoplanes. There will be also at least one tri-plane, and a number of wind wagons will appear in competition with aeroplanes.

NATIONAL BODY ORGANIZES.

State and National Convention to Select an Executive Committee.

The thirty-six aeronautical clubs and societies which after forming the American Aeronautical Association four weeks ago and seeing it captured by the Aeronautic Federation of America on Wednesday, left their association to the Federation and went over to the Aero Club of America, yesterday formed their permanent organization in a five-hour session in the rooms of the Aero Club of America. The National Council of the Aero Club of America was the selected organization's name, officers and committees were elected, and then the meeting adjourned.

To make the scope of the new body as widespread as possible it was decided to invite all aero clubs and societies in the United States affiliated with the Aero Club of America to come together in State conventions at which one delegate from each State should be elected to a Natioanl convention. The first National convention will be held here on the second Tuesday in December, and at that meeting an Executive Committee of fourteen members will be chosen by ballot, the Chairman to be head also of the whole organization, and to be named, as was agreed on Wednesday at the formation of the organization, by the Aero Club of America.

Pending the election of officers and executive committeemen at the December meeting these officers were chosen yesterday:

Clifford B. Harmon, Chairman of the Executive Committee; W. B. Strang, Aero Club of Kansas; Albert B. Lambert, Aero Club of St. Louis; Dr. John C. Eberhardt, Dayton Aeroplane Club, and Dr. Albert F. Zahm, Secretary Aero Club of Washington, Vice Chairmen; Col. J. H. Joyce of Baltimore, Treasurer; J. S. Fanciulli, Secretary, and George B. Harrison, Aero Club of Pasadena, Assistant Secretary.

Besides these, the following were elected to complete the Executive Committee: George A. Myers, Aero Club of Kansas City; James E. Plew, Aero Club of Illinois; John M. Satterfield, Aero Club of Buffalo; G. A. Richardson, President of the Intercollegiate Aero Club; Carl J. Fisher of Indianapolis, Charles J. Glidden of Boston, and Arthur T. Atherholt of Philadelphia.

Henry P. Neely of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania was appointed Chairman of the Committee on Contests; two other committee members will be appointed later.

HARMON UP TWENTY MINUTES.

Makes Good Flight Before Crowd of 5,000—The Wilcox Machine.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., June 23.—Clifford B. Harmon, in the presence of about 5,000 people, made a twenty-minute flight here this evening. He was the only one of the many aviators quartered here to go aloft, although P. W. Wilcox, the Columbia student who is constructing a biplane which closely resembles the Farman type, had his aeroplane taken out of its tent and its motor run, under Louis Strang's supervision, for upward of an hour in a "block test."

Mr. Harmon completed about twelve miles in his flight. His biplane rode on a very even keel throughout, the machine being banked on the turns with hardly a perceptible motion of the ailerons. The seven-cylinder Gnome engine, which revolves with the propeller, never missed an explosion throughout the flight. Mr. Harmon finally came down because he was hungry. Otherwise, so far as mechanical difficulties were concerned, he said he might have remained aloft for hours.

The Wilcox biplane measures 30 feet 8 inches from tip to tip, with the surfaces 5 feet 11 inches wide and slightly over 6 feet apart. Fore and aft it measures 39 feet. It has two rudders 3 feet 4 inches square and 7 feet apart, with two large tail surfaces separating them. There are four ailerons of the hinged Farman type. The forward elevating plane is 6 feet 2 inches long by 2 feet 6 inches wide. The propeller is 7 feet 6 inches from tip to tip, and has a four-foot pitch, developing a thrust, it was stated, of 300 pounds.

The power plant of the Willcox machine is an eight-cylinder V-type affair with high-tension magneto and pump oil feed. The cylinders measure 4 inches by 4, developing a rated horse power of fifty. Both inlet and exhaust valves are located in the cylinder heads, with the spark plugs centred between and just forward of the valves. The water jackets are extremely large for an aeroplane motor. The carburetor is located between the two rows of cylinders, with gravity feed from a ten-gallon tank hung from the upper surface.

This machine was taken from the tent about 6:30 o'clock and tied down. Then Strang, Wilcox, and a number of mechanics spent a few moments getting the engine started. The motor would not run on more than three cylinders, however, at any one time for almost an hour. For several minutes it ran on all eight, but just as everything looked propitious for a trial flight the motor choked and stopped, and a considerable amount of tinkering was necessary to bring it around. It then was too late and dark to attempt to fly, but a flight will be made to-morrow afternoon, with either Designer Wilcox or Louis Strang, the automobile race pilot, as operator.

CAPT. CODY BADLY HURT.

American Aviator Who Became British Subject Falls at Aldershot.

LONDON, June 23.—Capt. F. S. Cody, the aviator, while making a flight at Aldershot to-day fell from a height of 100 feet and was gravely injured.

His aeroplane was caught in a gust of wind and, becoming unmanageable, plunged to the ground. Capt. Cody was pinned beneath the wreckage of his machine and was rendered insensible. His most serious injuries were found to be on the head.

Capt. Cody, an American by birth, is employed by the British War Department to teach its officers aeronautics. Last Autumn he took out naturalization papers and became a British subject.

MISS STEVENS WEDS JOHN DE K. BOWEN

Ceremony in Old St. Mark's Followed by a Small Reception at Delmonico's.

ON A YEAR'S HONEYMOON

Mostly Traveling Abroad—Bride Is the Only Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ledyard Stevens.

The wedding of John De Koven Bowen, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Tilton Bowen of Chicago and Bar Harbor, and Miss Elizabeth Winthrop Stevens, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ledyard Stevens and a granddaughter of the late Octavius A. White and of the late Dr. Alexander H. Stevens, was celebrated yesterday at 5 o'clock in quaint old St. Mark's Church, the Rev. Dr. Loring Batten officiating.

The church, where the bride and many of her ancestors have attended divine service, is one of the most interesting landmarks of Second Avenue, which in its day was one of the most fashionable parts of New York. The interior of the church was left undecorated, with the exception of a Dutch garden effect obtained by straight lines of bay trees around the chancel and altar.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Mrs. Gillat Ghequeire Schroeder, as matron of honor, and another cousin, Miss Alexandra Stevens, a sister of Mrs. Schroeder and daughter of Mrs. Berkeley Mostyn, as maid of honor. They were in pink marquisette over pink satin, with touches of turquois blue velvet on the bodices, and knee sashes of blue velvet. Their large hats were faced with turquois blue silk, covered with plaitings of white lace, and wreaths of vari-tinted roses. They carried large clusters of vari-colored sweetpeas.

Mrs. Schroeder's little boy of 3 years immediately preceded the bride, carrying the silver Prayer Book given to her when she was confirmed. This, when he reached the altar, was taken by Dr. Batten and the wedding service read from it.

The eight bridesmaids were dressed in turquois blue marquisette over blue silk, with touches of pink velvet on the bodices and pink velvet knee sashes. Their hats were faced with pink silk, and covered with white lace plaitings and wreaths of tinted roses. Each hat had a black velvet bow. They carried pink sweetpeas. These girls were the Misses Helan and Louise Bowen, Gladys Mumford, Dorothy Sanborn Wilde, Marguerite Tailer, Hilda Hiss, Eugenie Philbin, and Susan Fish Dresser. They wore gold chains and initialed lockets, the gift of the bride.

Mr. Bowen's best man was his brother, Joseph Tilton Bowen, and the ushers were Oscar Egerton Stevens, John Meigs Ewing, Dave Daggett, George Bleistein, Jr., Kent S. Clow, Hildreth Benner, Morton C. Treadway, and Carl A. Lohmann. The ushers wore jade and pearl scarfpins, and the best man a diamond pin, Mr. Bowen's gifts.

The bride, who walked up the aisle with her father, and was given by him in marriage, wore a trained white satin gown, veiled with white chiffon. The sleeves and bodice were finished with carrickmacross point lace, made by her mother, and her voluminous tulle veil, which fell to the end of her train, was attached to a cap-like frill of carrickmacross lace fastened to her golden brown coiffure with orange blossoms. She wore a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom's father and mother, and a pearl pendant, which was the bridegroom's gift. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias.

The reception, which was a small one, was held at Delmonico's. Mrs. Stevens, in a blue brocaded crêpe with touches of apricot colored satin and a black hat, and her sister, Mrs. Berkeley Mostyn, in black chiffon and lace topped by a large black hat, assisted in receiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowen are sailing next Wednesday to spend a year traveling abroad, and will, on their return, live in Chicago.

Among the guests invited were Mr. and Mrs. August Heckscher, Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Herrick, Mrs. Henry Siegel, Mr. and Mrs. Pierrepont Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickey, Miss Frances Dickey, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Coddington, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. Knight Cheney, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gardiner, Mr. and Mrs. George Bleistein, Mrs. Prescott Hall Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bramwell, Alden Blodget, Mr. and Mrs. George Folsom, Mr. and Mrs. James Glover, Miss Constance Folsom, Mr. and Mrs. George Heye, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hiss, Miss Ruth Haskins, Frederick Judson, Blake Kellogg, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Lawrence, Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Lambert, Mrs. Oscar Stevens, Mrs. Winfield Scott, Mrs. Lloyd Stevens, Lieut. Pendleton Rogers, John McK. Minton, Jr., the Misses Manning, Miss Ethel Sloan, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomas, De Gray Vanderbilt, Jr., Robert Bartholomew, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bowen, Milton Greggs, Mr. and Mrs. George Blackwell, Theodore Farrelly, Miss Grace Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hadduck, Miss Helen Campbell, and Miss Marion Curtis.

BISHOP JAGGAR WEDS AGAIN.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Jellison His Bride—Ceremony at Portland, Me.

BOSTON, June 23.—The marriage of the Right Rev. Thomas Augustus Jaggar, D. D., Bishop in Charge of the American Episcopal Churches in Europe, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Jellison, daughter of J. H. Jellison, of Portland, Me., was announced to-day.

Bishop Jaggar was born in New York in 1839. From 1875 to 1905 he was Bishop of Southern Ohio, resigning his see on account of ill health. Later he became rector of St. Paul's Church, this city.

The Bishop was married in 1862 to Miss Anna L. Lawrence, daughter of John W. Lawrence of Flushing, L. I. She died some years ago. Among the children is Prof. T. A. Jaggar, Jr., the geologist of this city.

The second wedding took place yesterday at St. Luke's Cathedral, Portland, Me., the Right Rev. Robert Codman, D. D., Bishop of Maine, officiating.

Miss Sherin to Wed To-morrow.

The wedding of Miss Gladys Evelyn Sherin and Arthur Fenton Hetherington will take place to-morrow afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, The Hedges, Bound Brook, N. J. Mr. Hetherington will have his brother, Ferris Hetherington, for best man, and his ushers will be William Finley and Homer Ramsdall. The bride's sister, Miss Eloise Sherin, will be maid of honor, and Miss Dorothy and Miss Margaret Fisher are to be flower girls. The bridesmaids will be Miss Mildred Duvall and Miss Marjory Swainson.

Miss Jenkins to Wed J. G. Wheedbee.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Eleanor M. Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jenkins of Baltimore, and James G. Wheedbee. Mr. Wheedbee is a brother of Manly Wheedbee, who makes his home in New York.

TO SELL AIRSHIP TICKETS.

Hamburg-American Line Preparing Prospectuses and Schedules.

Arrangements are now being perfected by the Hamburg-American Line for the sale of tickets for passage on the new dirigible Deutschland, which made a successful flight of 250 miles in Germany on Wednesday, according to a telegram received yesterday by Emil L. Boas, the resident director in New York, of the Hamburg-American Line.

BAR FOR RECKLESS AUTOISTS.

Questions Under New Law Will Drive Them Out, Cornell Thinks.

Secretary of State Koenig, under the authority given him by the new Callan automobile law, has formulated a series of questions for applicants for a chauffeur's license which, in the opinion of Col. E. S. Cornell of the National Highway Protective Association, will make it difficult for an incompetent chauffeur or one with a bad record, to get employment in this State after Aug. 1.

Here is one of the questions:

> Have you ever been convicted under the laws of this or any other State or the regulations, ordinances, or laws of any city, town, or village relating to the use of motor vehicles upon the public highways? If so, state fully the nature of each offence in which you were convicted, the date of your conviction, and the penalty imposed.

Another question asks if the applicant has ever been convicted of any crime. There is no intimation that such persons as plead to having been convicted of crime will be debarred from receiving a license. That will be determined later. Here are some of the other questions to be answered under the new regulations:

> Have you any mental or physical incapacity or infirmity of which you are aware which would in any way interfere with the proper management and control by you of a motor vehicle?
>
> Have you ever had an accident while operating a motor vehicle? Give particulars, stating whether any injury resulted, &c.
>
> Do you use intoxicating liquors? If so, to what extent?
>
> Are you addicted to the use of morphine or other drugs?
>
> If you wear glasses, in what respect is your eyesight defective?

Not only does the applicant for a chauffeur's license have to answer these questions but must make an affidavit to their truthfulness.

This affidavit, Col. Cornell says, puts up the bars to dishonest and incompetent men. And in addition, the applicants must swear that the names and addresses given by them are their true names and addresses.

All applications for licenses must be accompanied by recent photographs, in duplicate, of the applicants. One photograph is to be pasted on the application in the space provided for it. All chauffeurs, whether they have a license now or not, must pass the new examinations before the new law becomes effective a little more than a month hence.

TO AID FRENCH HOSPITAL.

Mlle. Polaire and Other Actor Folk to Appear at the Manhattan.

Mlle. Polaire, the French actress who is appearing at Hammerstein's Theatre, is one of several interested in a benefit performance to be given for the French Hospital. Oscar Hammerstein has cabled his consent to the use of the Manhattan Opera House on Tuesday, July 19, when a special entertainment will be given.

Polaire will present two sketches, Montmarte and Mioche, and among the others who have already been asked to take part are Percival Knight, representing England, and Mme. Jacoby. Actors representing other nations have also been invited to co-operate.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Beginnnig on Monday afternoon performances will be given on the roof of the American Music Hall afternoons as well as evenings.

Cohan & Harris announce that they have engaged Edward Abeles to play the principal role in "The Aviator," a comedy by James Montgomery that is to be presented early in September.

Some engagements announced by the Shuberts yesterday were Bertha Waltzinger and Emma Francis for "The Belle of Brittany," William Roselle for "The Lottery Man," and Helen Darling for "Havana."

Frederick Warde, the veteran Shakespearean actor, will return to the stage next season for a limited period in a special production of "Timon of Athens," which has seldom been acted in America. Mr. Warde has been on the lecture platform for the last five years.

Charles Frohman and Klaw & Erlanger announced yesterday that they had made an agreement with the Sweeny Investment Company to build for them a theatre in Portland, Ore., to be a duplicate of the one contracted for by them with the Metropolitan Company in Seattle. They also stated that they will have erected similar buildings in Spokane and Tacoma, and theatres in Butte, Winnipeg, and Duluth.

The Shuberts announce that they have completed arrangements with Mort H. Singer of Chicago whereby they, in conjunction with Mr. Singer, assume the management of the Princess Theatre in Chicago for a number of years. The house was formerly under the exclusive management of Mr. Singer. The Shuberts have also become interested with Mr. Singer in the latter's attractions.

Among the other speakers were Daniel Frohman, Augustus Thomas, J. M. Fitzgerald, De Wolf Hopper, Willard D. Coxey, and A. L. Jacobs. The latter, on behalf of the club, presented a silver loving cup to Abbot Rumsey.

After the speeches a vaudeville performance was given on a stage erected at the end of the dining room. Among those who appeared were George Evans, William Rock, Paula Edwards, Nellie V. Nichols, Julius Tannen, and others.

BANK INVADES A SIDEWALK.

Providence Trust Company Clashes with Mayor in Erecting New Building.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 23.—Mayor Fletcher is conducting an investigation into the erection of the Industrial Trust Company's new building. The bank, which was established by Col. Samuel Pomeroy Colt, and of which he was President for several years and still controls, is erecting a nine-story structure adjoining the present building. A day or two ago it was discovered that the massive portico extends three feet beyond any building on the street and four feet beyond the line of the present building. In consequence it leaves a nine-foot sidewalk where the city's main highway sidewalks are twelve feet or more wide.

Mayor Fletcher has issued a statement saying that every effort would be made to protect the city's rights. To-day President Cyrus P. Brown of the Trust Company notified the Mayor that building would stop pending a settlement of the difficulty, but notwithstanding the work was rushed all day. As soon as the city's leagal rights are determined, it may mean that the portion of the building erected will have to be torn down. The land at that point is worth $135 a foot.

WOMAN DIES AT 113 YEARS.

Mrs. Hester Cordrey of Delmar, Del., Buried Her Second Husband in 1864.

DELMAR, Del., June 23.—Mrs. Hester Cordrey, said to have been 113 years old, died on Tuesday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Ulysses G. Melson. She had been ill about four weeks.

Mrs. Cordrey had fourteen brothers and sisters. Her mother died when she was fifteen years old. Mrs. Cordrey was married twice, her second husband dying in 1864.

Francis M. Ferguson.

Francis M. Ferguson, President of the Ferguson Contracting Company of 37 Wall Street, died suddenly yesterday at Denver, Col., of fatty degeneration of the heart. Mr. Ferguson was born in Corydon, Iowa, on Oct. 1, 1863 and began work as a water boy in a construction gang in the employ of his father, Oliver Ferguson. He worked his way up until he became partner in Ferguson & Son, and then moved to New York, where with his brother he organized the Ferguson Contracting Company. He built more than 3,000 miles of railroads. Among his most important contracts was the bringing of the Wabash Railroad into Pittsburg.

In October, 1905, Mr. Ferguson married Miss Bertha Sweeney of Pittsburg, who survives him with a young daughter. His home was at 202 Riverside Drive, where the funeral will be held next Sunday.

Mr. Ferguson was a member of the New York, Manhattan, New York Athletic, Lawyers', and Economic Clubs and the Business Railway Association.

FIREMEN DIED IN LINE OF DUTY

Verdict of Coroner's Jury in Healy and Cottor Deaths—No Censure.

A Coroner's jury made inquiry yesterday into the deaths of Firemen William F. Healy and Timothy Cottor, who lost their lives on June 6, during the fire which demolished a factory building in Washington Street. It was this fire and the resulting fatalities which started a Fire Department investigation, during which it was said Commissioner Waldo was not well disposed toward Chief Croker.

Acting Chief David O'Keefe of the First Battalion testified that Cottor, who was attached to Engine Company No. 10, lost his life in the most dangerous part of the fire—on the fourth floor. He said that he and Cottor started toward the rear of the fourth floor, intending to open a window, but that when a few feet from the window they were driven back by the heat. Cottor, he said, became confused, lost his way in the smoke, and was caught in a back draught. O'Keefe was also overcome, but was rescued by other firemen.

Acting Captain John F. Meyers of Engine Company 10 told of the death of Healy, who, with other firemen, was retreating under orders. Healy fell unconscious and died before he could be dragged from the building.

The jury's verdict was that both men died in the discharge of their duty. No one was censured in the verdict.

JEFFRIES REFUSES TO SEE SULLIVAN

Former Champion Informed That He Is Not Wanted at Training Camp.

DENIES CALLING FIGHT FAKE

Says He Was Misquoted In Reply to Corbett's Charge of "Knocking" the Fight.

By JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., June 23.—The greatest unpleasantness I have had on this long trip coming from the East to attend the big contest here on July 4 occurred to-day at Jeffries's camp. I have been meeting old friends and renewing old acquaintances and having such a pleasant time generally that the thought never entered my head that there would be any unpleasantness in the trip at all.

My reception at the Jeffries camp was warm enough, but it lacked that cordiality that I really expected, because I only went there with one purpose, and that was to see the undefeated champion, shake him by the hand, and wish him luck.

I had just been remarking on the pleasant surroundings and the admirable location of the training quarters and had in mind a pleasant little chat with Jeffries, whom I admire in every way and always did. He is a great athlete. He has proven that, and has never done anything that I know of to cast a reflection on the game that I was once the head of. As I approached the gate to his cottage grounds a young man stepped up, (I do not know his name,) and I inquired of him if Mr. Jeffries was about. He informed me that Jeffries was out on the road. As I started to walk in I heard a voice behind me say:

"Jeffries told me that if you came here he didn't want to see you."

I immediately turned about and saw that it was my old antagonist, "Jim" Corbett, who was speaking. I then approached the gate again and asked, "Why should Jeffries say anything of that sort?"

Corbett replied, "because you knocked the fight and said it was going to be a fake."

"I never said any such thing," I replied, but Corbett held to his contention, and I tried to point out to him how ridiculous it would have been for me or any other man in a similar position to decry a game that I regarded so highly. But Corbett indicated by his manner and speech that he was determined to believe that I had said all manner of things derogatory to the coming contest, and as I didn't seem able to convince him and he appeared to be solely in charge of affairs at the Jeffries camp, I quietly walked away.

Nothing like this has ever occurred to me before, and I regret it ever so much. Not that I have anything to be ashamed of in my own conduct, nor have I anything to take back, that I ever said about this or any other contest. But I did feel chagrined at not being able to convince the Jeffries element that I had been misquoted, and that I had anything but the sincerest wishes for the success of the coming contest. I am too old a man and too much experienced in the ways of sporting events of this sort to prolong a contention that Corbett seemed bent on, and rather than create any more disagreeable features to a regrettable occasion. I had my brief say and walked away.

If Jeffries and his friends want to believe all the worst about me, I suppose I will have to let them do it, and they are perfectly welcome to their opinions however wrong they are. I am here solely for the purpose of reporting the happenings in the training of the two men and what transpires in the ring on July 4 for the readers of the paper which I represent—a fair, impartial report without fear or favor to any one.

I have thought all along, particularly in the past few years, the sport had advanced to a higher level, where actual contestants and their following should regard each other in a friendly light rather than a belligerent one. I regret the occurrence to-day, not because of my part, things I said or did, but because the other side of it could not forget unpleasantnesses that started and were in vogue years ago. Corbett and I have had wordy passages before, and while I have not seen him of late years to talk to him I hadn't the slightest idea but that he had forgotten al lthose old disagreeable things that were engaged in at one time, and would try to maintain an atmosphere that would at least help along the coming contest, in view of the trouble that it has gone through already. My friends and myself, talking the matter over afterward, could not see what particular object there was in resorting to such an unpleasant discussion and unnecessary wrangling, because if Jeffries believes I said the things attributed to me by Corbett I could convince him in two minutes that I never said them, and could prove to him in more ways than one that I did not.

Taking a common-sense view of it, how foolish it would be for me, who was a champion at one time, with all the credit and all the popularity that any other champion enjoyed, to decry the sport which I regard as the leader of them all, and to make nasty little personal remarks about the principals or in fact any one connected with the contest.

As a matter of fact, I have always been a "booster" of the manly art of self-defense in this great country of ours and other countries that I have visited, where the sport has always been looked upon as the best physical exercise that man may indulge in.

Though I did not have the pleasure of meeting Jeffries I saw some of his work and his apparent good condition was all that I or any one else could expect. As a matter of fact I did not realize that a fellow could leave the game so long and get himself in the condition Jeffries showed that he was in during the workout on the platform he has erected back of his house. I did not wait to see all that he did, but after punching the bag a few minutes I understand he shadow boxed, jumped rope, and wrestled a bit with Farmer Burns.

Jeffries's camp is probably situated as advantageously as it possibly could be in this locality. He is only about three miles from the centre of the city, and can be easily reached by electric car or good wagon road. It is the high, snow-capped mountains surrounding Reno that make it the ideal spot for training purposes, atmospherically. The site has mineral springs directly across the road from the entrance to his cottage, where the waters bubble from the earth, impregnated with all manner of minerals and of al temperatures.

There is a pool connected with this spring, where bathing can be indulged in, and the general surroundings of the country make the locality the one ideal spot for both men to extend themselves for the coming contest, which will occur eleven days hence.

Johnson has not arrived on Nevada soil as yet, but his manager, Tom Flanagan, has just shown me a telegram from the champion with the information that Johnson leaves San Francisco to-night.

Flanagan has picked his camp at Ricks Road House, about three miles from the centre of the city, in an opposite direction from Moana Springs, where Jeffries is located.

This town is fight crazy. There is no doubt about that. When I arrived at the station this morning there was a big crowd on hand that escorted me all the way to my hotel. The warmest feeling was evinced for me here, where I had not visited since the time of the Carson City fight. I was very much gratified to meet some of the friends I knew then, and was surprised to find they were still here. This is a fine, handsome town, and the residential portion rivals that of almost any Eastern first-class suburb. Beautiful gardens surround the houses, trees are well laid out, and many facilities that Eastern towns have exist here.

On all sides is heard nothing but commendation for Tex Rickard and the pluck and energy he has shown in the face of so many obstacles. He is a remarkable young man, and deserves more then he will get out of the coming contest. By that I mean that if the affair had been allowed to go through in San Francisco the receipts from all sources would have been vastly more than they will probably be here. However, nothing daunted, Rickard is going ahead just the same as he started out in San Francisco.

Work was started on the arena this morning, northeast of the railroad station about one mile. The contractors informed me that there is not the slightest doubt but that everything will be completed at least a day before the day set for the fight.

SULLIVAN DIGNIFIED.

Came Out of Unpleasantness with No Loss of Pride.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., June 23.—John L. Sullivan was the central figure in fight affairs in Reno to-day. His story of the run-in with Corbett at Jeffries's training quarters is better told in his own words in another column. The consensus of opinion among those who witnessed the unpleasantness is that the old man of the ring conducted himself in an able and dignified way and came out of the affair with no loss to his pride.

The retired champion is not naturally a quarrelsome man, and he had decided beforehand that he had no desire to come in contact with the man who, as he has been made to believe, had roasted him, so Corbett, as he admitted afterward, volunteered to take the reception job off his hands. Corbett's stand was taken, so he said, on what had appeared in the newspapers. He said that Sullivan said in a public speech that if Johnson lost the fight it would have been a fake. In other words, that Johnson could on meritorious grounds win, but that it had been already decided that he should lose.

It mattered little to Corbett apparently that Sullivan denied ever saying any such thing, and the old fellow let it go at that and walked away. The incident is regretted on all sides here, for those who maintain that John never said the things attributed to him further contend that any such petty squabble was highly reprehensible and does the game, already barred out of one State, no good, especially on the eve of a world's championship fight.

Others point out that, even if Sullivan did say any such things, he had a right to his opinion, the same as any one else had, and that he should have been received at Moana Springs at least politely, if not cordially, and at some opportune time confronted with the accusations that pester the minds of the occupants of the Jeffries camp.

Sullivan for himself denies that he ever made a disparaging remark about the fight or either of the principals, pointing out how ridiculously absurd it would be for him to do so. He has known all along that certan misquotations have been put into print, and he took the only means he has had in his power to refute them. He has repeatedly, over his own signature, praised the physical endeavors of both Jeffries and Johnson in their preparations for the big fight on July 4, and has criticised severely the actions of those who attempted to and who did make trouble for those same promoters, Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason.

Jeffries refused to appease the curiosity of the crowd who had gathered around his quarters during and after the Sullivan episode, and he instructed his official announcer, Jim Corbett, to notify everybody that he would do no more exercise to-day. Corbett did this very neatly. However, Jeffries did work, but indulged in no boxing. He punched the bag for about ten minutes, shadow boxed, skipped the rope, and wrestled. Corbett whetted up for his fracas to-day with Sullivan in an encounter with a drunken man at Moana Springs last night, protecting Jeffries from the advances of the man, with whom he refused to shake hands. The man had been boasting of having $200, and advanced to Jeffries, persisting in desiring to shake his hands. Jeffries refused, and pushed the fellow, a local boxer, away with his arm. Finally Jeffries tried to get the dog to go after the man. At that instant Corbett stepped up, and being bothered by the man's actions, started to use his arms. Corbett began several counters, one blow of which knocked the man against a tree and cut the flesh open under his eyes. That stopped the incident.

Another throng congregated at the depot this morning to witness the arrival of John L. Sullivan and other sporting celebrities. While this was going on and the throng followed the new arrivals to the hotel, pressing forward in an effort to secure a close view of the famous men, Jeffries and his training partners were at Moana preparing for the first features of renewed training. Jeffries played baseball this morning with his entire staff at his camp at Moana Springs. The big fellow was delighted to indulge his bent for the National pastime in a regular game and romped like a colt when he entered the baseball field. Jeff played hard and his trainers watched him closely to see if sharp exercise in this high altitude would affect his wind. They were delighted to note that the fighter showed no evidence of the thin airs affecting him. The punching bag platform has been put up and is now ready for use, and the floor of the open-air pavilion at the rear of his house has been padded and covered with canvas. With the site surveyed and staked off and lumber rapidly piling up on the ground the arena for the big fight promises to materialize rapidly within the next few days.

Tom Flanagan received a telegram from Jack Johnson this afternoon stating that the negro champion would arrive in Reno to-morrow. The message was addressed to "T. Flanagan, Manager of Jack Johnson." Just what Johnson meant by that wording after his reported reappointment of George Little as his manager is a question of general interest.

Promoter Sid Hester to-day announced that he and Tom O'Day of San Francisco had purchased outright Jack Johnson's interest in the fight pictures and that it was they and not an eastern picture syndicate who had deposited $50,000 to Johnson's account in a San Francisco bank.

The Langford-Ketchel fight was declared off to-day by Promoter Tom O'Day of Hester & O'Day. O'Day, on behalf of the promoters, announced that the failure of Ketchel and his manager to post their forfeit at noon to-day and the fact that he had learned that Ketchel could not hope to condition himself for a fight on July 4 had led him to declare the bout off. Promoter Sid Hester confirms the announcement given out by Tom O'Day in San Francisco concerning the calling off of the match.

JOHNSON CASE DEFAULTED.

Negro Fails to Go to Court to Answer for Auto Speeding.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—Jack Johnson concluded his stay at Ocean Beach to-day with a fifteen-minute interview with an undertaker, Dan Jackson of Chicago. No one at the training camp appreciated the sombre humor of the situation more than did Johnson. Jackson is a friend of Johnson's and is not here for business. He will be at the ringside in Reno, however.

When the consultation with the "mortuary expert" from the East had ended, Johnson busied himself among his trappings, seeing that all of the necessary equipment, including the collapsible chicken coop, was ready for the baggage car.

The champion did not appear in the police court to answer to the charge of fast automobile driving, on which he was arrested yesterday. He allowed the case to go by default, and another $50 was added to the fund which he has contributed to police courts from New York to San Francisco.

One of the most important details of the champion's last day was his final agreement with George Little. All old scores were settled and assurance was given that Little would cast no more shadows across Johnson's path. Little accepted $16,500 for his past services as Johnson's manager.

In the Johnson party that left for Reno to-night were "Rawhide" Kelly, George Cotton, Harry Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Sig Hart, J. Loftus, Doc Furey, Walter Donahan, R. J. Comisky, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. Sergt. of Police Mages of the mounted squad of the local force was Johnson's special guest.

CORNELL 'VARSITY FAVORITE FOR RACE

Coach Courtney's Crew Picked to Win, with Columbia Second Choice.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 23.—This was the hottest day of the year on the Hudson River here, and the work of the intercollegiate crews was checked to a considerable extent. Columbia went out for about a mile and a half row, with some racing starts thrown in, and Syracuse took a short paddle down stream, but other than these two none of the crews braved the hot sun. The Cornell boys were willing to go out, for they seem to feel that they will forget how to row if they lose a practice. But Coach Courtney would not permit it, and his boys spent most of their time lounging around in the grass and shade about the Oakes.

The same thing held good for the Quakers and Badgers, Ellis Ward spending the morning in town with his brother, Gill, who arived to-day. In the afternoon the Syracuse crews had their layoff, though it was cooler than it was when they went out in the morning. Jim Ten Eyck said it was too warm, and instructed his boys to refrain from any kind of exercise.

The rest of the coaches sent their crews out, Courtney giving his men about the hardest row of any. He sent the whole fleet up to the two-mile mark, and then let them brush down. The race between the freshmen and the veterans was well rowed, and the cubs are giving a splendid exhibition of rowing. They promise to be easy victors in the race to-morrow. Columbia came down from the barge to the Pennsylvania quarters, and then paddled easily back, attempting no starts or trials, as the weather was still close and hot. The Quakers went up to the beginning of the course, the 'Varsity and freshmen rowing together at a good clip, but not racing.

The Wisconsin eights had a little harder work, for they practiced racing starts, as well as holding a little brush. Their rowing was an improvement over some of their earlier exhibitions, the 'Varsity getting in their long stroke to good advantage.

Things are beginning to liven up about the town already, the advance guard arriving. Most of these are close adherents of the various crews that represent their colleges, and they are setting the betting odds for themselves. Mayor Sague and Chief of Police McCabe have both issued orders that there shall be no betting or gambling, but in spite of this the private placing of wagers is moving along at an interesting rate.

All of the bets make Cornell a heavy favirte, 2 to 1 being quoted that they will sweep the river, while 2 to 1 is offered that the Red and White will win the eight-oared event. Odds are asked on Columbia at 3 to 2. The private bets quote 6 to 1 on Columbia, 10 to 1 on Pennsylvania, and 20 to 1 on Wisconsin.

In the freshman event, Cornell is again the favorite, but on even odds, with the pick of the other crews at 5 to 1. There is a hesitancy to place the wagers on the 1913 crews, for while Cornell has a strong eight, there is a feeling of uncertainty regarding the Columbia boys. They have a boat that goes through the water at a fast clip, in spite of the fact that they do not row in the form that the Ithaca boys do.

The four-oared race, which is scheduled for to-morrow afternoon, will be held at about 4 P. M., before the other crews go out for practice.

The Pennsylvania second 'Varsity four have had so much trouble in their bow man learning to steer the boat properly that this crew has at the last moment withdrawn their entry, so that there will be but two colleges represented. These are Cornell and Syracuse. The Columbia boys expected to get out a real substitute four after they heard that the race was to be rowed, but just about the time that they decided this one of the riggers in the four-oared shell that they would have to use was broken, and Coach Rice was a very busy man at this time and it was decided as impracticable to get out a crew. The managers' four has also had to be abandoned, though technically this race goes to the Light Blue and White, because the managers of the Pennsylvania squad, who challenged the Morningsiders, defaulted.

The Ithaca boys will enter two fours, the second 'Varsity and the freshman four. The up-Staters will have only the one substitute four entered. The boating order of these three crews is as follows:

Cornell 'Varsity Substitute Four—Carpenter, bow; Backus, No. 2; Smith, No. 3, and Gavette, stroke.

Cornell Freshman Four—Williams, bow; Derooda, No. 2; Perry, No. 3, and Reese, stroke.

Syracuse Substitute Four—Hewes, bow; Nix, No. 2; Mason, No. 3, and Hall, stroke.

HARVARD CREWS CELEBRATE.

Baseball Victory Over Yale Causes Joy In Oorsmen's Camp.

RED TOP, Conn., June 23.—The members of all the Harvard crews are busy to-night celebrating the baseball victory over Yale at Cambridge to-day with bonfires and fireworks. The Yale men were the guests of the crews for an hour this afternoon, and listened to the returns from the game in Cambridge. Later in the afternoon Capt. Wodell of the Yale eight, and Coach Kennedy came to quarters in the Yale launch, taking aboard Capt. Waid of the 'Varsity eight; F. V. Chappell, Chairman of the Regatta Committee, and Robert T. Herrick. The party then went over the four-mile course, straightening the lane at the mile-and-a-half flag so that it is about seventy-five feet nearer the navy yard. This will make the course much straighter. The course will be gone over again Saturday.

Owing to the heat the afternoon practice was light; the 'Varsity eight paddled down to the navy yard, followed by the Freshman eight, the two crews rowing back together slowly at a stroke not greater than thirty. The second 'Varsity four and the Freshman fours paddled down to Cows' Point, where one racing start was tried. The 'Varsity four paddled down-stream a mile.

GALES FERRY, Conn., June 23.—To take off the sting of the defeat of the baseball team by Harvard at Cambridge to-day, Capt. Barnham of the launch, Elihu Yale, Coach Hawes, and Manager Street of the Freshman eight were thrown into the Thames, clothes and all, to-night. The entire squad went to the Harvard Quarters for an hour this afternoon to hear the returns of the game in Cambridge, stopping on their way home at the station to get the final result.

On account of the intense heat, short rows were taken to-night, the Freshman and 'Varsity eights going down to the navy yard, spurting for a short distance on the return. The three four-oars covered the same course as the eights.

Emperor at Kiel for Yacht Races.

KIEL, June 23.—Emperor William arrived here to-day from Altona on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern to witness the annual yachting regatta. American Ambassador Hill, with Mrs. Hill and Miss Hill, is expected to-morrow. The Ambassador has engaged a launch from which his family and a few friends will see the races.

Polo at Rockaway Club July 2-16.

Polo will hold forth at the Rockaway Hunt Club from July 2 to July 16, with four cups to be played for. The chief event of the tournament will be for the Cedarhurst Challenge Cup, open to teams of four, regardless of handicap, the trophy becoming the permanent property of the team winning it three times. Two years ago the Meadow Brook team won and last season the Rockaway first team carried off the honors. The Independence Cups can be played for by teams of four, no member of the teams to have a handicap of more than two. The Rockaway Hunt Club Cups are open to teams of four under the existing handicap, and the Blizzard Cups can be played for by teams whose aggregate handicap does not exceed sixteeen goals.

Race from Greenwich to New London.

Owing to numerous requests from owners of yachts entered for the fifth annual race of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club from Greenwich to New London, the date of the race is changed from Tuesday, June 28, to Wednesday, June 29. The start will be made at 8 o'clock from off Great Captains Island Light.

Next Bout at Olympic Club.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Olympic Club, held at the clubhouse on West 125th Street, last night, it was decided to reduce the dues to 50 cents, commencing next Monday night when the Dixie Kid meets Jack Fitzgerald of Philadelphia in the star bout of ten rounds. The club will continue to put on the usual high-class attractions.

LOW SCORE FOR TRAVIS.

Garden City Golfer Wins Qualification Round at Apawamis.

Over the scene of his metropolitan triumph a trifle more than a year ago, Walter J. Travis of Garden City again showed the way to a fine field in the thirty-six-hole qualification round of the invitation golf tournament on the links of the Apawamis Club at Rye yesterday. With rounds of 79 and 75, the "old man" returned a total of 154.

Early indications pointed strongly to Jerome D. Travers as the likely medalist, for the erstwhile National champion from Montclair began with a brilliant 74. A 79 for the second round would have placed him at the head of the list, and when Travers drove off late in the afternoon his friends thought the prize was as good as won. An indifferent outward journey of 41 gave Travers almost too much to do, and when he took 6 for the eleventh hole his chances became slimmer still. He wound up by getting an 82, so that his total of 156 placed him second on the list.

On the other hand, Travis had few bad holes. After his 79 in the morning the veteran played like a machine.

Others to finish well up were Sam Graham of Greenwich, L. P. Gwyer of Siwanoy, T. M. Sherman of Utica, and John M. Ward of Garden City. Gardiner White of Ooakland, the interscholastic champion, was a disappointment.

With more than a hundred amateurs on the links it is not surprising that incidents out of the ordinary took place. M. J. Laidlaw, of the home club, had an odd experience while playing the seventeenth hole the second time. His ball, after the drive, sought to hide in a paper bag. Now, Laidlaw is not a magician, consequently there was no presto change result as he waved his wand threateningly over bag and ball. On the contrary, four lusty lunges with a mashie were required ere the ball could be coaxed out.

Then there was C. R. Gillett of Wykagyl, who had the pleasure of seeing his ball, after being topped from the fourteenth tee, ricochet from the surface of the pond over a four-foot stone wall into the long grass beyond. It is indeed a rare occurrence when a ball that once strikes the water at this place gets out except with the aid of a net.

The scores were as follows:

First Sixteen.—W. J. Travis, Garden City, 154; J. D. Travers, Montclair, 156; T. M. Sherman, Utica, 158; S. J. Graham, Greenwich, 158; J. M. Ward, Garden City, 158; L. B. Geyer, Siwanoy, 158; G. L. Conley, Siwanoy, 160; W. R. Thurston, Apawamis, 162; F. R. Upton, Jr., Baltusrol, 163; C. H. Brown, Saegkill, 166; R. D. Lapham, Apawamis, 167; E. E. Sturgis, Wykagyl, 168; C. B. Eddy, Princeton, 169; S. D. Bowers, Brooklawn, 169; H. T. Hayne, Yale, 169; B. S. Evans, Brae Burn, 170; W. V. Swords, Baltusrol, 170.

Second Sixteen.—C. A. Spofford, Apawamis, 171; Maturin Ballou, Apawamis, 171; M. Whitlatch, Apawamis, 172; E. G. Waldo, Jr., Brooklawn, 172; J. D. Foot, Apawamis, 173; W. K. Gillett, Wykagyl, 173; B. S. Bottome, Fox Hills, 173; C. H. Arent, Saegkill, 173; F. H. McAdoo, Princeton, 174; B. T. Allen, Fox Hills, 174; Dr. Carl Martin, Greenwich, 175; M. J. Condon, Apawamis, 175; J. T. McMutrie, Apawamis, 175; F. S. Wheeler, Apawamis, 176; G. Nickle, Yale, 176; C. H. Zimmerman, New Haven, 177.

Third Sixteen.—E. H. Hart, Wykagyl, 178; C. R. Gillett, Wykagyl, 178; Simeon Ford, Apawamis, 178; F. E. Lalley, Apawamis, 179; S. Plummer, Apawamis, 179; Dr. G. Smith, Wee Burn, 179; F. A. Moore, Apawamis, 180; J. A. Peck, Apawamis, 180; H. V. Gaines, Wykagyl, 181; E. G. Waldo, Brooklawn, 181; H. A. Steiner, Inwood, 181; H. Hasbrouck, Baltusrol, 181; G. Pickard, Scarsdale, 181; M. W. Laidlaw, Apawamis, 181; Charles Presbrey, Fox Hills, 182; Z. T. Miller, Dunwoodie, 182; H. D. Brewster, Scarsdale, 182.

Fourth Sixteen.—James A. Tyng, Baltusrol, 183; J. T. Soutter, Greenwich, 183; H. S. Graves, Apawamis, 184; A. E. Taylor, Apawamis, 184; H. A. Sherman, Apawamis, 184; W. A. Pratt, Apawamis, 185; A. B. Ashforth, Apawamis, 185; Duncan Edwards, Apawamis, 185; A. Carlson, Siwanoy, 185; R. A. Day, Dyker Meadow, 186; F. Longacre, Saegkill, 186; J. G. Deericks, Wykagyl, 187; Eugene Valentine, Wykagyl, 187; T. C. Gales, Siwanoy, 188; H. Kryn, Apawamis, 189; C. P. Rowland, Scarsdale, 189; E. W. Gordon, Brooklawn, 189; H. Walser, Richmond County, 189; F. E. Sullivan, Ridgewood, 189.

H. C. Kayser, Scarsdale; R. H. MacDonald, Apawamis; Dr. Birnie, Apawamis; Dr. J. N. Teeter, Englewood; H. Weatherby, Englewood, and Gardiner W. White, Oakland, withdrew.

SEWICKLEY HORSE SHOW.

George Watson and Mrs. McKay Win Ribbons at Pittsburg.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 23.—The Sewickley Heights Horse Show opened here to-day with more than 350 horses entered in about fifty-eight classes. The entry list shows a higher class of horses entered than ever before. Pittsburg society turned out in large numbers for the out-of-doors show.

George Watson of New York won two blue ribbons and one red. He won the tandem with Florham Pride and Florham Surprise. He easily won in the four-in-hand class and got a red ribbon in the combination class with his Florham Fashion, a chestnut gelding. He was beaten for a blue by Henry R. Reas of Mexico in a keenly contested event.

Mrs. James B. McKay of New York got a blue ribbon in the green and unqualified hunter class with her Jack Frost, a veteran hunter, which has appeared in many shows. The Quaker Farm of Sebag, Me., showing horses in harness, got two blue ribbons with "Jack" Conaway, the Philadelphia whip, in the seat. Margaret Gibbs Weyher, riding Jack O'Day's horses, got two red and one blue ribbons. Mrs. Belle Beach Bain, the professional rider, who was to have ridden Henry R. Reas's saddle horses, was taken ill, and Miss Ellen Rasmussen of Chicago took her place.

BEST DAY OF GLIDDEN TOUR.

Special to The New York Times.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 23.—The schedule for the Glidden tour cars was reduced two miles per hour for to-day's run from Lawton to Oklahoma City in anticipation of bad going, but the 145 miles proved pretty much of an outing for both cars and men. It was easily the best day's ride of the tour. The Chalmers No. 5 still retains the only perfect score in the contest. So unusual is this performance in the long grind that members of the Technical Committee will, starting to-morrow, take turns riding in the Chalmers car as observers. "Bill" Bolger reports his car still in the best of condition.

Four cars lost points in to-day's run. They were Premier No. 2, 156 points for repairing a steering arm and for being late; Glide No. 10, 52 points for work not reported; Cino No. 15, 57 points technical, and Moline No. 100, 4 points for repairing the radiator.

Driver Gardham is repairing a fender iron on the Chalmers No. 3, but his penalty was not announced. The fender iron was broken in crossing the railroad bridge over the Red River. The Halliday and Great Western press cars have been heard from and will probably reach here to-night.

Garage Owners' Association Dinner.

The first annual dinner of the Garage Owners' Association of New York was held last night at Reisenweber's, Fifty-eighth Street and Eighth Avenue, when sixty-five members and guests participated. The speeches favored a National association, which will probably be organized shortly. J. Crawford Bartlett of Philadelphia, C. R. Zacharius of Asbury Park, N. J., and other guests spoke in favor of an affiliation between associations of other States and a uniform rate for storage, oils, and accessories, which will place the garage business on a high commercial plane. The other speakers were G. E. Shaw, who presided; C. D. Chase, A. P. Palmer, J. Sweeney, Theodore K. McCarthy, and J. De Maille.

Broomstick Colt Brings $2,400.

The yearlings sales wound up yesterday at Sheepshead Bay, when the best of the lot were offered. The prices were good and the stock was above the average. The best price paid was by J. W. May, when he secured the brown colt by Broomstick-Virginia Moore for $2,400. The other sales of $1,000 or more were: B. c. Ethelbert-Goldie Cad, S. C. Hildreth, $1,000; b. c. Sempronius-Lady Balgowan, J. W. May, $1,150; b. f. Broomstick-Admittance, J. W. May, $1,250; ch. c. Peep o' Day-Ellangowan, $1,100; b. c. Ethelbert-Rose Lady, bought by S. C. Hildreth for $2,000.

Moore and Blair in Billiards.

Three-cushion carrom billiards in all its brilliancy will undoubtedly be the result of the fifty-point match game between George Moore and James Blair, the former three-cushion champion of Greater New York and the winner of the Doyle Cup, at McGraw's billiard room, 1,328 Broadway, to-night, the match beginning at 8 o'clock. Moore, who has been meeting all comers at McGraw's, is in excellent form, and Blair is said to be playing the game of his life.

KING JAMES BEATS KEENE'S MASKETTE

Rough Riding of Shilling and Dugan Subject of Criticism at Sheepshead Bay.

S. C. Hildreth's King James was winner over James R. Keene's Maskette in the running of the Sheepshead Bay Handicap of the Coney Island Jockey Club yesterday. He ran an impressive race when he took up 129 pounds and ran the mile in 1:37 8-5, but the victory was marred by much rough riding, in which Maskette was the chief sufferer. After the race Jockey Vincent Powers, who rode Maskette, made a claim of foul, charging that Shilling, who rode King James, struck Maskette on the head with his whip during the stretch duel. The stewards, after questioning Shilling, exonerated him and the claim was not allowed.

This was only a part of the interference that Maskette had to overcome, and what proved a greater handicap to her was the ride of Eddie Dugan on Sir John Johnson. This horse was the pacemaker and at the head of the stretch when Powers came alongside with Maskette, Dugan took his mount out, carrying the filly wide and at the same time affording King James an opening on the rail. Sir John Johnson has never had the reputation of being a runout horse, and the move seemed to be intentional.

Trainer James Rowe of the James R. Keene stable was incensed over the way Maskette had been treated in the race, and for a time he threatened to take the matter before the stewards. He declared that Dugan had repeatedly interfered with Powers in races, and cited the case where Dugan on Footprint was largely to blame for the falling of Median at Gravesend.

In the first race yesterady there was another case of Dugan roughing Powers, but fortunately it did not prevent the Powers mount winning. Powers was riding Cowl from the Keene stable and Dugan had the leg up on Belmont's Rogon. At the furlong pole, and just when Powers made his move on the rail, Dugan cut him off so sharply that he was forced to take up. Fortunately Cowl was good enough to pull around the interference and come on to victory.

Dugan has on several occasions been disciplined for his rough riding, but in recent races he appears to have forgotten his punishments, and he has been guilty of several very rough rides within the past few days. When Rowe threatened to take the matter before the stewards he said that unless his jockey was afforded better protection by the stewards he would ask Mr. Keene to secure another trainer.

The steeplechase was easy for G. A. Bronder's Waterway, the favorite. In it there was some rough riding when Pending, on Monte Carlo, carried Tappington into a flag and caused the McLennan jumper to fall. Fortunately Jockey T. Taylor, who had the mount, escaped unhurt. The summaries:

Schreiber to Quit American Turf.

ST. LOUIS, June 23.—On account of the general slump in horse racing all over the country, Barney Schreiber has announced that he will dispose of his Woodlands Stock Farm in St. Louis County and export the best of his thoroughbreds to France. Mr. Schreiber expects to set up a racing establishment in that country. The master of Woodlands has 600 head of horses quartered on his farm in St. Louis County. He will weed them out between now and Sept. 1 and then ship the remainder to Buenos Ayres. Unlike the majority of horsemen, Schreiber has persistently declined to retire under fire, and instead of curtailing his operations has been spreading out on the theory that racing would come back, but now he believes the end of the game is in sight.

Whitney's Ballysand In Front.

NEWCASTLE, England, June 23.—The Seghill Juvenile Selling Plate of 200 sovereigns, for two-year-olds only, distance five furlongs straight, was run here to-day and won by H. P. Whitney's Ballysand. Myrica was second and the Malanderie filly third. There were seven starters.

NEW YORK GIRLS WIN AT NETS

Miss Hammond and Miss Browning Score in Women's Tennis.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—New York won the honors in the singles competition to-day in the women's National championship on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Both the winners from Manhattan are members of the West Side Club. Miss Louise Hammond defeated Miss Edith Rotch of Boston, and Miss Browning won from Miss Edna Wildey of Plainfield, N. J.

In the mixed doubles Miss Hazel Hotchkiss, the National champion, and Joseph R. Carpenter, the former Pennsylvania State champion, won from Miss Lois Moyes of Toronto and "Aleo" Thayer, the University of Pennsylvania athlete.

A surprise was the defeat of Miss Rotch and Wallace Johnson at the hands of Miss Wildey and Herbert M. Tilden. The former pair were rated as likely finalists, but they met their match in a grueling contest, which lasted more than two hours. Summaries:

Women's Singles—Semi-Final Round.—Miss Louise Hammond, West Side Tennis Club, New York, defeated Miss Edith Rotch, Longwood, C. C., Boston, 7—5, 6—2; Miss Browning, West Side Tennis Club, New York, defeated Miss Edna Wildey, Plainfield Country Club, 6—1, 6—4.

Mixed Doubles—Third Round.—Miss Hazel Hotchkiss and J. R. Carpenter, Jr., defeated Miss Lois Moyes and A. D. Thayer, 6—1, 8—6; Miss Edna Wildey and H. M. Tilden defeated Miss Edith Rotch and Wallace Johnson, 2—6, 6—1, 12—10; Miss Carrie B. Neely and S. Oliver defeated Miss Dorothy Green and C. S. Rogers, 6—3, 6—8, 6—4.

Pell Defeats W. B. Cragin, Jr.

Each of the semi-final brackets of the singles in the metropolitan championship lawn tennis tournament filled yesterday as the competitions progressed on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club, 238th Street and Review Place. William A. Larned, the National champion, is coupled at the top with Carleton R. Gardner, while at the bottom Gustave F. Touchard is matched with Theodore R. Pell for the final. In advancing to the position he occupies Pell distinguished himself by defeating William B. Cragin, Jr., the Long Island champion. Cragin twice before this season has met Pell and triumphed over him. But at last Pell turned the tables, defeating Cragin, 6—3 and 6—love.

The match of greatest moment in the doubles was that in which Harold H. Hackett and Frederick B. Alexander defeated W. M. Washburn and H. C. Washburn, 6—1, 6—1. W. M. Washburn is the sixteen-year-old boy who recently won the Columbia interscholastic championship. The summary:

Metropolitan Championship Men's Singles, (Second Round.)—T. R. Pell defeated W. B. Cragin, Jr., 6—3, 6—0.

Third Round.—T. R. Pell defeated B. M. Phillips, 6—0, 6—3.

Fourth Round.—Ross Burchard defeated E. W. Leonard, 7—5, 0—6, 6—1; T. R. Pell defeated G. O. Wagner, 6—2, 6—2.

Fifth Round.—W. A. Larned defeated Ross Burchard, 6—1, 6—1; G. F. Touchard defeated C. M. Bull, Jr., 6—2, 4—6, 6—3; T. R. Pell defeated R. D. Little, 6—3, 6—4.

Wright May Play Wilding.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 23.—Beals C. Wright of Boston won the fourth round in the singles at to-day's play in the all-England championship tennis tournament, beating G. D. Roberts, 6—1, 6—2, 6—2. Wright, who is among the eight left in the contest, is regarded as likely to be matched in the finals with the New Zealand crack, A. F. Wilding, who was a member of the Australasian team which successfully defended the Davis trophy last year.

Montclair Y. M. C. A. Director.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 23.—George L. Listman, physical director of the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association, has been appointed physical director of the Montclair Young Men's Christian Association to succeed Noble P. Randel, who has resigned to accept a similar position in the Montclair High School.

Crowd Small; Bout Cut Short.

Danny Goodman and "Fighting Joe" Hyland, who met last night in the star bout of the Longacre Athletic Association, only boxed six rounds instead of the regular ten, owing to the small attendance. The affair was tame and disappointing, both men hugging and wrestling for the greater part of the eighteen minutes of actual fighting.

At the end of the last round the only opinion one could have would be that the affair was a draw. In the first round both men danced around the ring for some time, finally working to close quarters, where only love taps were exchanged, the best part of the round being consumed in wrestling each other around. The following rounds were a repetition of the opening session, with the exception of the fifth. Then Goodman landed two left-hand blows to the face and one right-hand blow to the body, but there was no real damage done, they only serving to arouse a little applause from the crowd. In the last round the men merely feinted at each other, and then went to a clinch. After breaking they sparred until the bell ended the uninteresting mill, many of the spectators having already left the club.

To Reproduce Fight In Garden.

"Kid" McCoy and "Battling" Johnson, the latter a six-foot, ebony-hued fighter, of Philadelphia, will reproduce the progress of the Jeffries-Johnson battle at Madison Square Garden on the afternoon of July 4. There will also be shown moving pictures of both Jeffries and Johnson in training at their respective quarters in California, and complete returns of every movement at the Reno arena will be conveyed to the Garden over a special wire.

HOT!

Can't scare us, Mr. Sun!

We've thin suits of the coolest fabrics for street wear—batistes, silk homespuns, nunscloths, silk homespuns, linen crash.

Not to speak of a very unusual variety of coats for office wear—many of them quite dignified enough for street wear on a torrid day.

These separate coats begin with the stand-by black alpacas and mohairs, and include gray sicilian, black-and-white striped brilliantine, tan pongee silk, and three very handsome silks with hair line stripes—two black silks and a gray.

The most expensive is but $8—from that to $4.

We're the successful matchmakers.

Scarfs and socks—both all silk, both the smart accordeon rib, both in a variety of colors.

A matched scarf and a pair of socks boxed together.

Everything for the hot weather wear of men and boys.

Patriotism and Civic Pride Appealed To for Funds to Celebrate the Fourth.

Further funds are urgently needed by the Independence Day Committee appointed by Mayor Gaynor to arrange for the celebration of an old-fashioned Fourth of July.

About $50,000 is needed to meet the expenses of the proposed military and civic parade, district celebrations in the parks and playgrounds, and for the exercises planned in connection with the celebration of the centennial of the opening of the City Hall. Of this sum the city has given $15,000 for fireworks. The rest must be raised by popular subscription.

In addition to the features mentioned there will be an automobile parade, children's celebrations in 240 recreation centres, athletic sports in 18 parks, with gold, silver, and bronze medals as prizes; a flag relay race for the championship of Greater New York, and displays of aerial fireworks from the city parks.

Subscriptions, which will be acknowledged in the newspapers, may be forwarded to James S. Cushman, Treasurer Independence Day Committee, Room 611 Pulitzer Building, New York City.

JOHN H. FINLEY,
Chairman Independence Day Committee.

†Batted for Atkins in the ninth inning.

Two-base hits—Baker, Collins, Hemphill, Mitchell. Sacrifice hit—Collins. Stolen bases—Collins, Hemphill, Laporte, (2,) Heitmuller. Left on bases—Philadelphia, 4; New York, 7. Double plays—Baker, Collins, and Davis; Austin and Chase; Knight, Gardner, and Chase. Struck out—By Quinn, 3; by Morgan, 2; by Atkins, 2. Bases on balls—Off Morgan, 5; off Quinn, 2; off Atkins, 2. Hits—Off Morgan, 3 in 4 innings; off Atkins, 9 in 4 innings; off Quinn, 8 in 7 innings; off Frill, 3 in 2 innings. Time of game—Two hours and five minutes. Umpires—Messrs. Egan and Sheridan.

When a fifth straight defeat at the hands of the Athletics stared them in the face at American League Park yesterday the Yankees picked up their bats and went in and splashed base hits all over the lawn. Tommy Atkins was the target for the onslaught, and in the eighth inning he was cudgeled for half a dozen raps and seven runs. The score was 12 to 5.

The matinée saw the awakening of the Yankees. They came back to life and action, and the speed of the Athletics did not show up in contrast. A troublesome cloud gathered in the fifth when a few bunched hits were collected off Jack Quinn, and the Athletics sent four counts across. The Yanks were even more scrappy when the Mackmen got this lead. They fought back tooth and nail in uphill fashion until they tied the score. Then in the next inning they turned loose an avalanche of runs and got so far ahead that the second team wasn't in sight at the finish.

Jack Barry was banished from civilization for rubbing Umpire Sheridan the wrong way. Laporte stole second in the fifth and Barry said he stabbed him good and plenty with the leather. The play was close and Sheridan gave the runner the decision. Barry threw his glove on the earth as if he was going to sink a foot deep into the ground, and then told Sheridan that the wicks in his lamps needed trimming. Barry was led away mumbling and McInnes played at short the balance of the day.

The Yanks got together early. Cy Morgan started out by walking Hemphill and Wolter. Hemphill died stealing third and Wolter stole second. Laporte grounded to Barry, who fumbled the ball and made a low throw to Davis, Wolter scoring. The Athletics got the run back in the second. Baker doubled to centre, went to third on Davis's out, and scored on Danny Murphy's single.

There was a distinctly noticeable Philadelphia flavor about the fifth inning. Jack Knight hurled Barry out to Chase and Lapp gracefully accepted a gift. Morgan forced him at second. Hartsel bounced a grounder into the infield and Gardner, after getting it on a bad bound, finally got it to Chase. It looked close and Sheridan said "safe." Oldring dumped a bunt at one side of the pitcher's box, and the bases were full. Eddie Collins then stung a two-bagger close to the right field foul line, scoring Morgan, Hartsel, and Oldring. Collins continued to third when Chase made a bad throw over Austin's head, and scored on Baker's one-sack bang back of first base.

In the same inning the Yankees started to climb over the obstacle. Quinn and Hemphill both went via foot path. Quinn scored on Wolter's single to centre and Chase fanned. Laporte forced Wolter at second, Hemphill tallying during the procedure. With old-time doggedness the Yanks tied up the score in the seventh. Quinn went gratis to first and Hemphill merrily crashed one to right. Wolter whiffed the atmosphere, and while McInnes was tossing Chase out at first Quinn counted. Laporte's hot single through short scored Hemphill with the tying run.

Now comes Tommy Atkins. He was a poor soldier, this Tommy was, and was routed by the enemy as soon as he faced them. Knight rocketed to Oldring and Austin beat out an infield tap which Baker stopped in hair-raising fashion. Mitchell, batting for Sweeney, whacked a two-bagger to right and Austin scored. Frill, who had relieved Quinn in this inning, got a free trip. Collins booted Hemphill's grounder, and the bases were all sold out. Wolter's single to centre scored Mitchell and Frill. Chase's rap to right pushed Hemphill home. Laporte singled to left and shoved Wolter and Chase to the plate. And on a hot day like yesterday. The Yankees were dizzy from galloping around the bases. Gardner grounded to McInnes, who threw him out to Davis. Jack Knight sent Laporte in with a single, and when Oldring plucked Austin's balloon from the gloaming, the recall was sounded, and the conflagration was reported under control.

They all get it one time or another.

Wild Pitch Gives Red Sox Victory.

BOSTON, June 23.—Boston defeated Washington, 2 to 1, in a ten-inning game to-day. In the final inning Hardy muffed Karger's fly and the latter was safe at second on Lord's bunt. Both moved up when Hooper sacrificed, and Karger scored the winning run on a wild pitch. Washington's run was made by Killifer on a steal home. The score:

Gandil's Double Wins for White Sox.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 23.—Chicago defeated Cleveland 6 to 4 in an exciting, but poorly played game to-day. Each team used three pitchers. Bradley's error was responsible for two of Chicago's runs in the seventh. With two out in the ninth Kelly walked and Collins scratched a hit, both scoring on Gandil's double. Score:

New Home for White Sox Completed.

CHICAGO, June 23.—The new $750,000 plant of the Chicago American League Club was completed to-day except for a few finishing touches. It will be dedicated on July 1. The grandstand pavilion and "bleachers" have a seating capacity of 35,000 persons. The grounds occupy a block on Shields Avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets. The players' clubhouse contains hot and cold baths, showers, rubbing tables, and other conveniences. A complete lighting system was installed for the purpose of holding big outdoor entertainments at night, night baseball being a possibility.

Pitcher Strikes Out 20 Batsmen.

In a game replete with brilliant plays and filled with exciting incidents the Central Trust Company team defeated the team representing J. & W. Seligman & Co. at McNulty Field on Wednesday in a ten-inning battle by the score of 1 to 0. The battery work on both sides was excellent, and Hohmann of the Trust Company fanned twenty of the opposing team, while Selover struck out six of the Central boys. The score:

Atlantic City vs. Ridgewood.

The Ridgewoods, who scored another victory last Sunday by taking the Black Sox into camp, will clash with the Atlantic City Club in the second game of a double-header in Meyerrose Park, Covert Avenue elevated station, Ridgewood, on Sunday at 4 P. M. The Pittsburg Giants will cross bats with the Danbury team in the opening game at 2 P. M. The Atlantic City team is composed of all leaguers and the Ridgewood manager went to great trouble to get the team to come to Meyerrose Park. Lindemann, who is pitching wonderful ball, will be on the firing line as usual for Ridgewood.

The crack Hobokens, one of New Jersey's best semi-professional teams, will visit McNulty Field, 149th Street and Eighth Avenue, on Sunday, to play the fast McNulty Brothers' team. The Jerseymen will have Pfanmiller and Dillon as their battery, while Manager Durkin will depend on McKenna and Seamon. There will be a preliminary contest at 1:30 P. M. between the McNulty Reserves and a fast amateur team.

Black Sox vs. Bronx Athletics.

The New York Black Sox will make their first appearance at Bronx Oval, 163d Street and Southern Boulevard, on Sunday, when they will play the Bronx Athletics at 4 P. M. Girard and Hohman will be the battery for the Bronxonians. Matthews, the former shortstop of the Harvard University team, will play short for the Sox. There will be an early game between two fast amateur teams.

The Giants took a bucketful of revenge from Pitcher Barger of Brooklyn yesterday afternoon at Washington Park, and by the time the fourth inning had been completed Barger was thankful to get a rest in the clubhouse, with six runs having been made off his curves. Then to clinch the victory, or perhaps simply to show that New York is not bashful about gathering in the tallies, two more runs were chalked up, one in the fifth and one in the eighth, so that the final score of a session that held little of interest from a playing standpoint stood, the Giants 8 and Brooklyn 2.

The downfall of Barger was really the most serious outcome of the game. It was this person who handed out a drubbing to the New Yorkers in the first game of the series, and there was a big host of Brooklynites in the stands, who were looking for a repetition of that performance. Then, too, this redoubtable pitcher has been handing out some unpleasant doses to other teams, and, with a number of victories to his credit, Brooklyn is still trying to figure out how it all happened.

The only really exciting feature of the game was at the close of the sixth inning, when Devlin, Doyle, and Devore ran amuck, and were ruled off the diamond for inciting a small-sized riot, Devlin having assaulted a spectator. There had been several substitutions by McGraw before this, and when the three went to the clubhouse and others replaced them it was almost a new combination that faced the men across the bridge. It made no difference as far as Brooklyn was concerned, however.

Taken all in all, it was the kind of a game that was too one-sided to be of any particular interest, except to the rooters of the Giants. It lacked almost the element of contest, for Brooklyn was outclassed in every particular, and failed utterly to compare with the previous game, when they put forth a well-developed resistance to the end and fought hard for the honors. Yesterday the heat seemed to have gotten into their bones, and they played as listlessly as it is possible for a team to play. There was only one time when they threatened to give a lively little session at the expense of the Polo Grounds crowd. That came in the third inning, when Brooklyn succeeded in getting three men on bases, and not a man out. It was the chance to show what the true calibre of the team was, and what it could do when a hit meant a run or two. But Brooklyn fell down miserably and let Drucke, the New York twirler, out of the most dangerous hole that he got into during the game. With the three men on bases Wheat came up and rapped to Drucke, which was turned into a double play. Drucke whipped the ball to Meyers, catching Wilhelm at the plate, and Meyers then sent it to first, catching Wheat. This was the end of ambition for Brooklyn, for the next man up, Hummell, could not connect with a thing, and he fanned the air. Thus it was that Brooklyn's really big opportunity passed into oblivion. There were two runs scored in succeeding innings, but there was nothing like the opportunity offered in the third.

In mentioning Drucke, it might be added that he pitched a good game. The third inning was his worst, and that he got out of with better fortune than could have been expected. He was touched for two runs, one in the fourth and one in the ninth, but for the most part he was invulnerable.

New York was not backward in the start of the score getting, and opened up in the second inning for a brace. Bridwell, the first of the Giants up, did not fare well, and went out on an easy pop to Barger. Then came Devlin, who singled to left. Merkle followed with another to the same point, and the damage was well on its way. Then came Meyers with a Texas leaguer that brought in Devlin. Drucke then sent a long one out to centre, and was easily out, but it was enough to bring Merkle home from third after the catch was made. Devore forced Meyers, and the scoring was ended for the inning.

The fourth was the real Waterloo for Brooklyn. It was then that Barger got all that New York could send in the way of discomfort. Bridwell was the first of the Giants to face the Brooklynite, and he started things well when he sent a neat single to the pitcher that was too hot for him to handle. This bumped Barger considerably, and he passed Devlin. Merkle could not escape trouble, and forced Devlin at second, but Bridwell went to third on the play. Meyers singled to centre, scoring Bridwell and going to second on the throw to catch the latter at the plate. Merkle also navigated some and went around as far as third. Then came Drucke to the bat and lifted a long one to centre field. It was an easy out, but it served a purpose, for Merkle was able to score after the catch. Devore came up next and was safe on Barger's wild throw to catch him at first, and Meyers went to third. Doyle then singled to right, and Meyers crossed the plate. Devore took a trip around to third on the same play. Murray dropped a Texas leaguer in left, scoring Devore. Seymour was hit by a pitched ball and received that sort of a gift of first. Bridwell, however, ended the agony for Brooklyn by foul-flying to Lennox.

New York scored again in the fifth, when Devlin doubled to left, went to third on an infield out by Merkle, and scored when Meyers singled to left. The final tally came in the eighth. Becker singled and stole second. He went to third on an error by Smith, and scored on a wild throw by Wilhelm.

Brooklyn's first score came in the fourth when Smith received a base on balls, went to second on Erwin's force of Davidson at third, and scored when Wilhelm sent a Texas leaguer over second. Davidson made the final count in the ninth, when he singled to left and stole second. Smith's infield out landed him on third, and he scored on a single by Wilhelm.

PORT JEFFERSON CLIMB.

De Palma and Disbrow Will Pilot Autos in Hill Contest.

There will be keen competition on Port Jefferson Hill Saturday. The Automobile Club of Port Jefferson, N. Y., announced yesterday that Ralph De Palma and Louis Disbrow are to participate in the hill climb to be held under its auspices. De Palma will pilot the 200 horse power Fiat which he drove in the Wilkesbarre, Penn., hill climb, lowering all previous records for the hill, while Disbrow is to drive Mrs. Joan Cuneo's Knox Giantess, with which he won first honors in the recent Ossining hill climb. Both De Palma and Disbrow are entered in the free-for-all which is open to cars of all types and motive power.

Unusual interest is being shown in the event for amateurs and limited to cars owned by members of the Long Island Automobile Club and the Crescent Athletic Club. A. R. Pardington, manager of the Long Island Motor Parkway, has donated a cup for this event. Dean Alvord, President of the Belle Terre Club, has donated a trophy to be contested for in a free-for-all event.

The hill, which is 2,000 feet in length, has been oiled and rolled and everything is in readiness for the early morning practice.

GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP.

Riley Thompson Wins Shooting Classic at Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Riley Thompson of Cainsville, Mo., shooting from the nineteen-yard mark with an old-time gun, won the eleventh annual Grand American handicap with a perfect score of 100, at the grounds of the Chicago Gun Club today. The result marked a new record for the classic, the best previous score being the 99 of R. R. Barbour of Pauline, Iowa, at Indianapolis in 1905.

Thompson's record was not the only one of the day. Squadron 3 on Trap No. 6 broke one hundred straight targets, all six experts shooting from the twenty-yard mark. They were: Jay Graham of Ingleside, Ill., J. W. Garrett of Colorado Springs, H. D. Freeman of Atlanta, Ga., Harvey Dixon of Joplin, Mo., and Fred Ellett of Keithsburg, Ill.

Bedell Wins Mile Cycle Race.

NEW HAVEN, June 23.—At the bicycle races here to-night, Kramer, who was picked for the winner of the mile handicap, punctured a tire in the final heat and retired from the race. A five-mile motor race was won by Carl Ruden in 6:37 2-5. Summaries:

One-Mile Handicap.—Won by J. Bedell, (10 yards;) Fred G. West, (50 yards,) second; F. Hill, (35 yards,) third. Time—1:53 3-5.

Three-Mile Invitation.—Won by Hehir; P. Drobach, second; Floyd Krebs, third. Time—6:23.

Unknown Distance, Amateur.—Won by F. McCarthy; Chris. Scheller, second; E. J. Hollister, third. Distance, 2¼ miles. Time—4:44.

All-Star Bouts at Fairmont A. C.

Thirty rounds of boxing at popular prices will be served to the members of the Fairmont Athletic Club next Tuesday night. The reservation for members in good standing will be 50 cents and $1 and $2. The bill will include a four-rounder, a six-rounder between Young Ahearn and Mike Grady, and two ten-round bouts. In one of these star sessions Jack Dorman, who showed his calibre by staying ten rounds with Jack Goodman a few weeks ago, meets Danny Goodman. In the other ten-round bout Matt Wells, a lightweight from England, who has won three bouts since he arrived here, will clash with Charley Lawrence of the Bronx. This bout will be at catchweights.

HARVARD TURNS TABLES ON YALE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 23.—Harvard's strength and Yale's weakness in the pitcher's box gave the Crimson the second game of the series to-day, by a score of 3 to 2. The deciding contest will be played in New York next Tuesday. The big Blue batters who drove two Harvard pitchers from the box on Tuesday, made very little progress to-day in solving Hicks's curves, while Murfey, whose academic ban was taken off a few days ago, and who started after baseball honors, survived two innings, during which three Harvard men raced across the plate. Then Tommers went in and stopped further Crimson tallies.

This gave the field a particularly rosy hue until the seventh, when some one turned on the Blue light, and the Harvard players became so dazzled that a couple of errors mixed up with some schoolboy plays, and a short hit gave Yale two runs. There were still a couple of Elis on the bases and only one man out when Hicks switched on the Crimson glow again and there were no further tallies.

Several times the contest mounted to the thrilling stage. Three Yale men stood on bases in the fourth inning with two out, when a long fly to left which Minot gathered in after a hard run, brought sighs of relief from the Crimson benches. Again, little McIntyre, the Yale second baseman, leaped into the air and nailed a stinging liner from Marshall's bat in spectacular fashion.

Ten thousand enthusiasts enjoyed the sport, the weather, and the cheering. The score:

Pal Moore and Teddy Broad To-night.

Tom O'Rourke, the managing Director of the National Sporting Club of America, has provided another interesting programme for the club members at the arena, 340 West Forty-fourth Street, to-night. In all, there will be four bouts, but the principal attraction will be a ten-round "go" between Pal Moore, the skillful little Philadelphia lad, and Teddy (Snowball) Broad of England. Dan McKettrick, who manages Broad, contends that his protege is a wonder and seems to be pretty confident that he will prove the master of the energetic Philadelphian. The semi-final will bring together Jim Sanders of New Jersey and Matt Flynn of White Plains, N. Y., a rival of Jim Smith. Besides these two bouts, which make up a good card alone, there will be two preliminaries between well-matched local boys.

New York Cricketers Routed.

Philadelphia made the most of its opportunities on the cricket field yesterday at Livingston and gave New York such a severe drubbing that the loss of two "double-headers" in two days at baseball seems mild in comparison. Seldom has a match between teams representing the two cities been so one-sided, the Quakers putting the local players out for a total of 51 run and then rolling up the big score of 411 before the weary fielders had a respite from the heat.

The main cause of the rout of the local team was the bowling of J. B. King, who was so destructive that five wickets fell to his deliveries at a cost of 13 runs—not an average of 13 runs, but a total of 13 runs. Even this failure at the bat led few of the spectators to expect such a breakdown with the ball, but the visitors set such a rattling pace at the start that the New York total was passed before a wicket fell. ST. PAUL, Minn., June 23.—Barney Oldfield, in a 200-horse-power Benz to-day broke the world's circular track record for one mile by driving the distance in 0:49 2-5. Oldfield set a mark of 0:49 4-5 yesterday. The previous record was 0:50 4-5, held by Ralph De Palma.

I.-A. A. C.'s Housewarming.

The formal opening of the Irish-American Athletic Club's new house will be held tomorrow evening. The Entertainment Committee has arranged a very attractive programme, consisting of boxing, wrestling, and vaudeville for the benefit of its members and guests. The boxing and wrestling part of the entertainment will be under the supervision of Joe Humphreys, and he promises to produce a show that will satisfy those who were in the habit of visiting the boxing clubs of New York last Winter. Jess Dandy, the star of the "Prince of Pilsen" company, will attend to the vaudeville section of the programme. Owing to the length of the entertainment it will be necessary to start the festivities promptly at 8 o'clock.

WHEAT MARKETS UP AGAIN

Wednesday's Rains in Northwest Too Scattered and Light—Sentiment Once More Unsettled—Exchange Lower.

Movements of securities on the Stock Exchange yesterday were again controlled by reports from the Northwest regarding the fortunes of the Spring wheat crop. The scattering showers reported on Wednesday failed to develop into the steady rains which it seems are essential to the recovery of wheat from the injury inflicted upon it by the long-continued drought, and as a result grain markets were again excited and stronger, with September wheat both in this city and on the Chicago Board of Trade up 2 cents a bushel. The Price Current and The Modern Miller, journals of the highest standing in the grain trade, describe the situation in the Dakotas and Minnesota as critical, but at the same time asserted that the injury worked so far will be quickly made good by adequate rains. All this unsettled sentiment once more in the financial community, restricting trading and holding prices to narrow swings with the tendency lower. Late in the day, upon the announcement of the passing of the dividend upon the preferred shares of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad, one of the so-called "Hawley roads," together with the prompt declines in the stocks of the other properties in the same group, the market as a whole sold off, closing substantially under Wednesday night's levels.

It is quite probable that the professional traders whose operations made up the greater part of the day's trading went too far in their inferences that because one Hawley road had felt it necessary to suspend dividends all properties controlled by the same interests were likely to adopt a similar policy, but there has been room for criticism of the general dividend policy of this group of interests, and it is altogether probable that it will be justified by one or two repetitions of yesterday's Minneapolis incident. It should be noted, however, that the conditions surrounding these properties are by no means those prevailing with the greater number of the country's railroads, and to that extent yesterday's development is not of any general significance. Another dividend omission which attracted some attention was that of the Waltham Watch Company upon its common shares, but to partially offset these not altogether pleasing incidents there were contained in the day's news budget several items of a more satisfactory character, including a batch of good railroad earnings statements and excellent reports from the Winter wheat and corn territory.

Another sharp break occurred in the foreign exchange market yesterday where demand sterling fell 25 points in connection with further offerings of security bills, and, to a smaller extent, of finance bills. Money continues to ease in London, although no reduction in the Bank of England's rate was made at yesterday's meeting of the Directors of that institution, whose statement was again exceptionally strong for this season of the year. In Paris, on the other hand, the money market appears to be hardening, possibly in connection with the financial arrangements involved in the recent purchase of many millions of dollars' worth of our securities.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Thursday.

Business on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, while not up to a high total, was well distributed throughout the list. The volume of small lot orders handled by commission houses was a feature of the dealings. There was some active odd lot trading in such stocks as Consolidated Gas, American Ice, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Interborough preferred, and Chesapeake & Ohio. Sales aggregated 51,320 shares, distributed among fifty-two different stocks.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

COPPERS ARE IRREGULAR

After Day of Light Trading Price Changes at Close Are Few—Goldfield Consolidated Lacking in Interest.

Curb trading was in greatly reduced volume yesterday, and even in those issues which have been most prominent recently interest lagged. Goldfield Consolidated, which, although admitted to the Stock Exchange's list, cannot be traded in on the big board until interchangeable certificates have been prepared, sold only 3,500 shares yesterday, in contrast to its recent days of heavy trading. The close was even with the opening at 9½. The coppers were sluggish, and price movements narrow and without definite trend.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 23.—There was some profit taking noticeable in the local market to-day, and prices were fractionally lower as a result of the day's trading. Amalgamated and Lake were the most active issues, and each lost about a point. The close was irregular at the recession.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Best Railroad Law We Ever Had.

If anybody in Wall Street was nursing the belief that the provision in the new railroad law for a commission to investigate the matter of capital issues by the railroads meant that nothing would come of the more radical proposal to put the control of capital issues directly in the hands of the Inter-State Commerce Commission he was disillusioned yesterday by what President Taft had to say about the new Railroad law. After saying that the country now has the best railroad law it ever had, the President added that the provision for the supervision of capitalization was omitted, but that this did not mean that this idea had been abandoned. Another effort would be made to enact such a provision at the next session of Congress.

Mr. Hill's Views of Wheat Crop.

Chairman James J. Hill of the Great Northern, in summarizing yesterday the reports he is receiving regarding crop conditions, said something which made it clear why reports regarding the condition of the Northwestern wheat crop have been varying. He said that the condition of the crop was "spotty." In some sections it has been damaged, while in other sections there has been enough rain to assure a fairly good crop, in the estimation of local observers, even if no more rains are had. In this event it is probable, he said, that the increased acreage would about make up for the lack of better general condition, and that about the same number of bushels would probably be raised on the larger area as were raised on the smaller area last year. With plentiful rains the yield may be considerably increased.

Crops Focus Interest.

The news read with most interest yesterday was whatever concerned the situation in the grain fields, where Spring wheat is in a critical situation because of drought, and rain in other sections is dreaded for its effect on the harvesting of Winter wheat. The news agencies gave especial attention to the dry area, and central points supplied bulletins of weather conditions at the latest hour in surrounding territory. Fear of the consequences of a continuance of the drought in the Spring wheat territory as the time passes in which rain can save the situation was the central topic at the Minnesota Bankers' Convention in Minneapolis yesterday. It happens that the Millers' National Federation is holding its convention in the same city, and the composite opinions of bankers and millers which came from there yesterday showed that there is plenty of uneasiness, even if reports are admitted to be exaggerated. The majority of the Western authorities quoted inclined to the opinion that the scare is more than possibilities warrant. They point to 1900 as a year when conditions like the present left when the rain came much better crops than were expected. Damage, even with the best conditions from now on, is generally admitted.

Trade Opinions.

Two authorities widely recognized in the grain trade made reports on the crop situation yesterday. The Northwestern Miller, while conceding that Spring wheat is in a critical condition because of the drought which has brought out the damage latent because of early frosts and lack of moisture, notes that the plants are well rooted and that rain within a few days' time would greatly change the situation. The Price Current says that unless the Spring wheat territory has rain within a few days "discouraging reports are expected to continue." Winter wheat, the same authority says, is likely, on the other hand, to exceed the expectations of a month ago. It speaks encouragingly also of the promise of corn.

Deny Bank Note Monopoly.

The Stock Exchange is somewhat sensitive about the readiness with which charges that it fosters a monopoly of the industry of engraving and printing stock certificates are circulated. The Exchange is now defending a suit brought by one of the rivals of the American Bank Note Company. Yesterday it became known that the shares of the Goldfield Consolidated Mining Company, which passed the Governing Committee on Wednesday as a candidate for admission to the list, would not be admitted to trading until new certificates had been printed. The first construction put upon this news was that the shares would not be a good delivery until printed by the American Bank Note Company, the present issue being the work of a Chicago concern. This was denied with some asperity by those who know the reasons for the committee's action. It was explained that the present certificates are not interchangeable at the company's several transfer offices and must be made so. Further, the Chicago concern's work has been on the Exchange's eligible list since 1881.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—A further drop in Lehigh Valley stock, as well as the warrants, when issued, did not surprise the Street to-day. Lehigh Valley is merely acting as nearly all important issues have done of late after they were materially increased through the placing of additional shares on the market. For instance, shortly before the recent Pennsylvania issue of stock the quotation had sold above 150 in New York, and afterward, before the new shares had been thoroughly assimilated by the public, the price fell close to 126, a decline of 25 points, whereas the rights themselves were only equivalent to approximately 8 points. Outside of Lehigh Valley and the arbitrage group there was very little doing on the local Exchange.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Herbert K. Hallett, President of the Atlantic National Bank of Boston, has been added to the First Mortgage Bondholders' Committee of the Sedalia Light and Traction Company.

The Alliance Realty Company, which has been paying regular dividends at the rate of 8 per cent. for the last three years, declared an extra dividend of 6 per cent. yesterday, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. Both are payable July 15.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Spring wheat conditions again dominated the market situation in wheat. Notwithstanding the official predictions of showers and cooler the weather was hot and dry in the Northwest, and the market opened up 1@3c a bushel, lost some of the advance, but was exceedingly irregular in the afternoon, and closed with prices only a little under the extreme. Northwestern reports were extremely contradictory. They generally admitted damage, but the amount of the damage reported seemed to vary either according to the wishes of the sender or possibly the interests in the market. It has been extremely dry for weeks in the Northwest. The moisture supply is much below normal, and the conditions are undoubtedly critical. Whether damage of irreparable character has occurred is not yet certain. Other news was bearish. There were good rains in Canada, and the Winnipeg market was relatively weak, with prices from 10c to 12c below American Spring on new crop deliveries. Weather conditions were very fine in the Winter wheat States, and harvesting is progressing rapidly. Interior receipts are much larger than last year, while foreign markets were relatively weak, with good rains reported in the Argentine and Russia.

Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.05 bid, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, $1.06½, free on board afloat for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.21, nominal; No. 2 hard Winter, nominal, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.03¼.

Corn was active and higher at the opening, influenced by the strength in wheat and oats, but reacted and was relatively heavy during the session. The weather was very favorable for the growth and cultivation of the crop, and advices continue of very rapid improvement in the appearance. A good rain would be very desirable over the entire belt. Cash corn quoted: No. 2, 68¼c, nominal, elevator, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight, domestic basis, and steamer nominal, elevator, export basis.

Oats were excited and 1 to 1½c higher at the opening on the dry, hot weather northwest, but later reacted, moving very irregularly the balance of the day, closing rather unsettled. Cash oats quoted: Natural white, 44@46½c, and white clipped, 45½@48½c.

The provision market was quiet and firmer. Receipts of hogs were somewhat disappointing, and on efforts of previous sellers to replace holdings prices readily advanced. Packing operations for the first time in months showed a total slightly in excess of last year.

COTTON.

The cotton market showed a slow tendency downward with limited trade. There was a general disposition to sell the market on the crop and weather news and the growing belief that the weather conditions through the South have really been more favorable than the trade has given them credit for. There were private reports of showers in Texas, and there were quite optimistic advices from the eastern belt. The conditions this week have been excellent for cultivation and the crop is making excellent advancement. The arrival of two bales of new crop cotton at Houston within a day or two of the earliest receipts ever known called very sharp attention to the earliness of the South Texas crop. The southern portion of the belt was put in the ground unusually early and under unusually favorable circumstances, and it is possible that the movement of new cotton from the southern belt may be of quite large proportions before the end of the crop year. The old crop deliveries were nervous and unsettled. It was reported that in the next two weeks about 25,000 bales of cotton would be shipped from the local stock mainly to Liverpool and Havre.

COFFEE.

Coffee showed a better feeling at the close, with prices 5 points decline to 5 points advance. Shorts were fairly good buyers in the near positions, and for the first time in many months leading roasting interests came into the market on the buying side and took a moderate amount of July, and were bidding for more. Foreign interests sold the late positions, while traders who were selling July bought the late months, and in the intermediate positions local operators were trading on both sides. Havre was ¼f net lower, Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig decline, and in Brazil Rio was unchanged and Santos unchanged to 50 reis higher, with Brazilian exchange 1-16 lower, at 16 11-16. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States is 2,789,341 bags, compared with 3,324,399 last year and 3,397,070 bags two years ago. Total sales amounted to 29,000 bags, of which 11,000 bags were in the form of exchanges between the different positions. Spot coffee firm, 8 5-16 for Rio No. 7.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Trading on the local Exchange, while not active, resulted in a rather pronounced weakness in the elevated railroad shares. Metropolitan preferred and Northwestern preferred each fell a point, while Metropolitan common lost ½ point. The weakness was due to selling for profits on speculation purchases. Chicago Railways Series 2 certificates declined a point. Holders of these securities entertain little hope of participating in the earnings for many moons to come under the plan for the absorption, reorganization, and rehabilitation of the consolidated traction properties.

HAWLEY ROAD SKIPS DIVIDEND

Switchmen's Strike Offset Good Earnings of Minneapolis & St. Louis.

The Directors of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad passed the dividend yesterday on the road's preferred stock on which dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. have been paid since 1900. This is one of the Hawley roads and the announcement was followed by a decline in several of the Hawley stocks. Minneapolis & St. Louis preferred itself was not traded in at all, but the common stock dropped 2½ points to 29. Dividends on the latter issue were suspended in 1904.

In a statement the Directors pointed out that while the road's gross earnings during the past year were the largest in its history the net results have been disappointing. This was in part due to the strike of switchmen which occurred on Dec. 1. Up to that time the road had showed for five months the full interest on its bonds, and a surplus equal to 8 per cent. per annum on both the common and preferred stocks. The shut-down of coal mines in Illinois and Iowa also unfavorably affected the earnings of the road.

The outlook for the new fiscal year is said to be most encouraging, and the management of the road is hopeful that the suspension of divdends will be of short duration.

There is $4,000,000 of Minneapolis & St. Louis outstanding, the annual dividend requirement on which is $200,000 a year.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, June 23.—Money was plentiful and in moderate demand to-day. Discount rates were lower.

On the Stock Exchange disappointment over the unchanged bank rate caused a slight setback in gilt-edged securities, but they recovered later, and the whole market closed cheerful. Consols advanced half a point on investment buying, and home rails gained in sympathy. Paris support strengthened foreign securities, and mines and diamond shares were firm. The nearness of the settlement, however, checked speculative operations.

American securities opened quiet, and during the forenoon moved within narrow limits. Wall Street bought in the early afternoon, and prices hardened. Selling from the same quarter in the late trading caused a reaction, and the market closed quiet.

Bar silver, steady at 24¾d per ounce.

Money, 2@2½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2¼@5-16 per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 2⅛@3-16 per cent.

Bullion amounting to £123,000 was taken into the Bank of England to-day, and £6,000 was withdraw for shipment to Gibraltar.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: At Madrid, 7.80; at Lisbon, 8.00.

PARIS, June 23.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 98 francs 7½ centimes for the account.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 19½ centimes for checks.

BERLIN, June 23.—Trading was quiet on the Boerse to-day. Domestic shares opened firmer, but later declined. American securities were firm throughout.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 19½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3 per cent.

Private discount rate, 3¼ per cent.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following trade opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

NO. 5,102. STEAM ROAD ROLLER.—An American Consul in Canada states that the municipal authorities propose to purchase a steam road roller in the near future. One tender submitted by a local firm was considered at a recent meeting, but action was postponed in the matter in order to give other firms an opportunity to submit tenders bids will be received until July 4.

NO. 5,103. CANNED GOODS OF VARIOUS KINDS.—An American Consul in Germany reports that the publisher of a local independent newspaper devoted to the canned goods and conserving industry wants the names and addresses of American firms manufacturing or dealing in canned meats, vegetables, and fruits, or in conserves, particularly specialties in these lines, who desire representatives or agents in Germany.

NO. 5,104. SLAUGHTER HOUSE AND COLD-STORAGE PLANT.—An American Consul in Mexico states that a business man in his district is about to install a slaughter house and cold-storage plant, and has arranged to ship fresh and frozen meat to American markets when the plant is ready for business. The State Government has virtually given a concession for this purpose, and as there are many cattle in that region this new enterprise has excellent prospects for success.

NO. 5,106. ADVERTISING AMERICAN GOODS.—Consul Alexander V. Dye of Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, reports that the City of Cananea, Sonora, in order to raise money for the centennial celebration of Mexican independence, has adopted the plan of asking her merchants to donate articles representing the various lines they handle. These articles will be used as prizes in a grand raffle which will be held on the celebration day. It is possible that American exporters would be willing to donate representative articles they would like to introduce to the trade of this locality. The Hon. E. R. Arnold, the Mayor of Cananea, states that contributions of this nature would be welcome and that correspondence on this subject should be had with Dr. F. V. Barroso, Chairman of the committee. Communications may be in English.

NO. 5,108. TEXTILE SOAPS, OILS, AND LEATHER GOODS.—A business house in England desires to be placed in communication with American firms handling textile soaps and oils, lubricating oils, and certain leather goods used in textile trades, such as rawhide, (American tanned,) laces, rawhide heald straps, (lasso brand,) and buffalo hide chrome-tanned picking leather. The firm has just started in business and desires to pay cash for all goods purchased, furnishing bank references. The Consul reporting the matter believes this is a good opportunity to start a permanent business connection.

NO. 5,109.—RAILS FOR THE CONGO FREE STATE.—Consul Albert Halstead of Birmingham, England, reports that the London correspondent of The Birmingham Daily Post is responsible for the following notice: "I hear from an influential correspondent in Brussels that the Congo Free State authorities have determined to place further supplies of railway and similar material up to tender without restrictions. Preference will be given to Belgian manufacturers, but it has become evident that British, American, and Canadian rails, though the initial cost may be heavier, are more durable when laid in tropical countries than those turned out by Belgian firms. It is estimated that about 20,000 tons will be required during the year ending June 30, 1911."

NO. 5,110.—WATERWORKS CONSTRUCTION AND OTHER IMPROVEMENTS.—An American Consul in a Latin-American country reports that the construction of a new plant for supplying the city in which he is located with water, was begun recently. All the water is to be filtered and pumped to cooling towers. The reservoir will contain 3,000,000 gallons. Since all the materials may not yet have been purchased it might be well for American manufacturers to look into the matter. A sewage system is to be installed shortly, the contracts for which have not yet been awarded; and there are rumors that the municipal authorities are contemplating the paving of the streets.

NO. 5,112.—HORSESHOES.—An American Consul in a Latin-American country reports that horseshoes were formerly imported from the United States, but now are made by the local blacksmiths, who would be glad to import them if they could be made to suit the existing conditions. The shoes should be smaller and provided with more holes than is customary in the United States, as the horses are much smaller and with few exceptions are shod only when absolutely necessary. If American manufacturers are willing to meet these conditions the blacksmiths would gladly import their shoes from the United States.

NO. 5,113.—BAKERY.—An American consular officer in Latin America states there exists in his district a fine opening for the establishment of a good bakery. There are two or three bakers in the city at present, and they do a good business, but the product turned out could be much improved. Flour is not expensive. The officer writes that it has been demonstrated that the right man can make a success of a good bakery, as one man purchased a hotel and retired from active work after a few years in the business.

NO. 5,114.—AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS AND COTTONSEED OIL.—A resident of Servia, who was for many years a Government official, writes that he is about to engage in a general commission and agency business and desires American connections. He is willing to handle any lines for which there is a market, but is especially interested in agricultural implements and cottonseed oil. He writes that he is in a position to make effective sales, and furnishes bank references. Correspondence should be in German or French.

NO. 5,115.—FURNITURE FACTORY.—An American Consul in Mexico reports there is a good opening in his district for a furniture factory, as practically all high-class furniture is imported. That made locally is by general carpenters, who do not make a specialty of any one class of work. There are great quantities of native hardwoods, such as ebony and mahogany, to be had at prices far lower than those of the United States and other manufacturing countries. A good factory of this sort would require some capital, but should soon be on a paying basis, as there is a large territory to draw on.

NO. 5,116.—MEATS AND ALMONDS.—An American consular officer in a European country reports that a business man in his district is especially desirous of represeting some important American firm dealing in dried meats, mess beef, and corned beef. The dried meat is dried and packed in cases of linen or other material in parcels weighing from 75 to 100 pounds. This meat is for consumption in an African country, and the party in question says he can use 20,000 to 30,000 kilos monthly. He is also anxious to purchase on commission almonds, shelled or unshelled, sweet or bitter, for the American trade. References are furnished.

NO. 5,119. SUGAR.—On account of the present high prices of sugar in European markets, an old-established concern doing an import commission business in Africa would like to get into communication with American exporters of the cheapest grades of granulated sugar. The Consul making this announcement sends further particulars of the trade, together with suggestions to American exporters in this line, which can be obtained by interested firms upon application to the Bureau of Manufactures.

NO. 5,122. MACHINERY OF VARIOUS KINDS.—An old-established European firm advises that it imports from the United States sugar and coffee machinery, distilling plants, and agricultural machinery, and will be glad to represent American manufacturers in any line of exports, particularly of articles which may be used in Portuguese possessions in Africa. The firm furnishes the highest bank references. Correspondence should be in Portuguese or French.

NO. 5,123. LUMBER AND MANGLE ROLLER BLOCKS.—An American Consular officer in England reports that a business man desires to enter into negotiations with American exporters of yellow poplar lumber and another individual is anxious to correspond with manufacturers in the United States of mangle roller blocks. The sizes desired by him are rollers six and seven inches in diameter by eighteen and twenty inches in length.

NO. 5,124. MOTOR BOATS.—There is an exceptionally good opportunity for the extensive sale of motor boats in a Latin-American country, according to the report of an American Consular officer. Some of these boats are now in use, but many more could be utilized on various lakes and rivers in the Republic, where there are thousands of visitors annually.

NO. 5,126. RUBBER TIRES FOR CARRIAGES.—According to the report of an American Consular officer, there would seem to be an excellent chance for the manufacturers of rubber tires to create a demand for their products in a European country; also a possible opportunity for the builders of rubber-tired vehicles to introduce their carriages. Although the city streets and the country roads are of the best, rubber-tired carriages are seldom seen, and in two cities with a combined population of over 300,000 there is but one rubber-tired carriage for rent and that at exorbitant prices.

NO. 5,128. WATER-BOTTLING PLANT.—An American Consul in Africa reports that a mining company is in the market for a plant for bottling the water from a local mineral spring which has recently been discovered. One of the Directors, just returned from England, states that an English plant can be secured which will answer requirements for about $2,500, or the manufacturers will send out a man to erect and place in operating order for about $3,700. No action is to be taken in the matter for about two months, so it is possible that an American manufacturer could make the sale if prompt action is taken.

NO. 5,129. WELL-BORING MACHINERY AND SUPPLIES.—An American Consul in the West Indies reports that the prevalence of petroleum oil in his district will offer in the near future an opportunity for the sale of quantities of well-boring machinery and supplies and material for the construction of steel tanks for storage, &c. The names of several heavily capitalized companies which have already acquired valuable properties, as well as hardware and machinery dealers, are given by the Consul submitting the report.

NO. 5,131. RAILROAD SWITCH AND SIGNAL DEVICES.—A Russian business man advises that he desires to secure the names of manufacturers of railroad and signal devices (block systems) with a view of securing the agency of such firms for the Empire. Communications should be written in Russian or German and forwarded through the office submitting the report. Should manufacturers be unable to correspond in either language, they may write in English and the letters will be translated by the American Consul.

NO. 5,132. ICE-MAKING MACHINERY.—An American Consul in the Levant reports that the climatic conditions existing in his district render it a profitable field for exploitation by manufacturers of ice-making machinery. Many cities having large populations now have no ice factories, and all hold out promising results to manufacturers of this class of machinery.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday a firmer tendency was shown in the leading commodities, especially for late delivery copper, which was up ⅛c. Tin was a shade higher. Lead and spelter were unchanged.

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday spot copper at the close showed an advance of 5s. from the initial price of the day and of 8s 9d from the final figure of Wednesday; futures likewise noted a gain of 3s 9d from the opening quotation of the day, and of 8s 9d from the closing price of Wednesday. The market finished firm, closing quotations ruling at: Spot, £55 2s 6d; futures, £55 16s 3d.

Spanish pig lead was steady and unchanged at £12 15s. Spelter was firm and up 2s 6d to £22 55s. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 49s 1½d. Pig tin ended steady with spot and future deliveries showing a gain of 7s 6d to £148 7s 6d and £149 5s respectively.

ENDS BANKRUPTCY CHARGE.

Court Holds Petition Against Film Concern Was Not Warranted.

Judge Hough has dismissed, with costs, the petition in bankruptcy filed on April 26 against the Imperial Film Exchange of 44 West Twenty-eighth Street, vacated the appointment of Frank L. Crocker, and the fees and expenses are to be charged upon the petitioning creditors or such of them as moved for the appointment of a receiver.

The Judge said he was convinced that the principal business of the corporation was such as to exclude it from the class of either traders or merchants. Its principal occupation was to rent a patented article which it could not sell, and then hire that which it rented to other persons for limited periods. The articles sold, rented, hired, or leased were always to go back to the person or corporation from which they had been obtained; the sole business of the alleged bankrupt was to get profit out of the temporary use of the same. The Judge also decided that the petitioning creditors did not prove the corporation to be insolvent, and also did not prove a fraudulent transfer or concealment of assets.

July Disbursements More Than Ever.

Interest and dividends falling due in July will total $235,000,000 approximately, according to figures compiled by The Wall Street Journal. This is an increase of more than $15,000,000, as compared with the same month in 1909. The Wall Street Journal's actual figures are $231,785,000, as compared with $215,245,000 in 1909, $189,866,000 in 1908, and $198,279,000 in July, 1907. Of the total dividend payments account for about $87,114,000, against $82,308,000 in 1909, and $75,723,000 in 1908.

Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville Sold.

RICHMOND, Ind., June 23.—On a bid of $5,200,000 the Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville Railway was sold to-day to men representing the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway by James P. Goodrich, receiver. Only one bid was received. The Chesapeake & Ohio thus gains an entrance to Chicago over the Illinois Central Railroad and completes a line from Chicago to the seaboard.

Woman's Suit Against Justice Levison.

The suit of Rosa Levy of Spring Valley, N. Y., for $25,000 for breach of promise against Benjamin Levison, a Justice of the Peace and Fire Commissioner at Nyack, N. Y., began yesterday in the Supreme Court before Justice Ford and a jury. Miss Levy asserts Levison promised to marry her in June, 1907. Her counsel is ex-Police Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle. Max D. Steuer represents Levison.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

REUBEN FELD.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Reuben Feld, shoe dealer, 1,785 Amsterdam Avenue, filed by himself, show liabilities of $2,670 and assets of $1,575, consisting of stock, $1,500, and accounts, $75.

ADOLPH BALSCHUN.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Adolph Balschun, builder, of 2,028 Morris Avenue, show liabilities of $52,910 and no assets. Among the creditors are Lambert Suydam, $33,926, deficiency judgment; West Side Bank, $10,000; Gerard, Son & Co., $2,000, and August Jacob, $2,000.

UNITED TUNGSTEN LAMP COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the United Tungsten Lamp Company, 1,328 Broadway, show liabilities of $7,366 and nominal assets of $4,753, consisting of stock, $850; machinery and fixtures, $400; accounts, $3,500, but liability denied by nearly all the persons. The largest creditor is the Hudson Trust Company, $1,898, secured.

MAX PHILLIPS.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on April 26 against Max Phillips, trading as the National Import Company, dealer in veilings and ruchings at 395 Broadway, on a settlement with creditors at 35 cents on the dollar, payable 20 cents cash and 15 cents in notes at four, six, and nine months. Liabilities were $13,000.

S. FEINER & SON.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Sigmund and Samuel Feiner, who compose the firm of S. Feiner & Son, clothing manufacturers, 100 Prince Street, by these creditors: Rudolph Summer & Co., $200; Isidor Koplik, $560, and Morris Cohen, $294. Liabilities are reported to be $10,000 and assets $3,000. Judge Hough appointed John Gruenberg receiver.

L. SEIGEL & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Louis Seigel, doing business as L. Seigel & Co., clothing manufacturers of 47 Canal Street, by Marcus Helfand, attorney for these creditors: Max Applebaum, $750; Harry Wilkus, $517, and Cahn Brothers, $350. Judge Hough appointed Peter Alexander receiver on a bond of $5,000. It was stated that liabilities were $20,000 and assets $10,000. It is probable that a settlement will be offered. Mr. Seigel began business in 1890, had two different partners up to 1899, since which time he has carried on the business alone.

PARIS MODES COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Paris Modes Company of 36 West 24th Street, publisher of Paris Modes and Paris Fashion Plates and Patterns, show liabilities of $405,039 and assets of $23,417, consisting of cash in banks $3,664, cash on hand $571, notes $1,557, accounts $2,600, stock $2,525, and proceeds of sale, subscriptions, advertising contracts, &c., $12,500. Among the creditors are Thomas J. Gaines, Jr., $318,000; West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, $28,059; Wynkoop-Hallenbeck-Crawford Company, $24,120; Finch-Pruyn Company, Glens Falls, N. Y., $4,509; Charles Francis Press, $3,667; Elliott Company, Boston, $2,498, and Maurice O'Meara Company, $2,402.

EPHRAIM GRINSPAN.—Ephraim Grinspan, jeweler of 353 Grand Street, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on June 20, denies that he is insolvent or has committed the acts of bankruptcy alleged in the petition, and asserts he is able to pay dollar for dollar. His liabilities are stated to be $18,000 to nineteen creditors, and he has assets, consisting of merchandise, $14,000; equity in real estate 230 and 232 McKibben Street, Brooklyn, $14,000, and some outstanding accounts. Walter T. Kohn, his attorney, applied to Judge Hough yesterday to vacate the receivership, and the Judge decided to increase the bond of the petitioning creditors to $5,000, to be given Monday next, otherwise the receivership would be vacated.

Judgments.

These judgments for amounts more than $100 were filed yesterday, the first name being that of the debtor:

International Traction Company

BONDHOLDERS' COMMITTEE

REPRESENTING FIFTY-YEAR 4% COLLATERAL TRUST GOLD BONDS

To the Holders of Bonds of the Above Issue:

At the request of a large number of the holders of the Fifty-Year 4% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of the International Traction Company, secured by its indenture to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, bearing date July 1, 1899, the undersigned committee has been organized to represent the interests of such bondholders.

The Traction Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, owns all of the stock of the International Railway Company, which is deposited under the above-mentioned collateral trust indenture and constitutes the main security for the Fifty-Year 4% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds. The Railway Company owns and operates the railway properties known as the International Traction System, all of which are located in the City of Buffalo and its vicinity.

The Traction Company has issued all of the bonds under the collateral trust indenture reserved for extensions and betterments of the property. There remain unissued $11,665,000 of bonds reserved exclusively for the acquisition or retirement of underlying bonds secured by liens on the property of the Railway Company.

For the payment of such underlying Railway bonds, the collateral trust indenture contemplated the issue and sale of an equal amount of the Fifty-Year 4% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of the Traction Company reserved for such purpose. As the collateral trust bonds have a limited market and are selling much below par, they cannot provide sufficient funds to meet such underlying obligations, of which many will mature in the near future.

In view of this situation and of the fact that under the collateral trust indenture no more bonds can be issued for extensions or betterments demanded by the rapid and steady growth of the locality served by the International Traction System and required in the immediate future by the public authorities, there is urgent need for a prompt and complete reorganization of the finances and the legal status of the International Traction System. The urgency of this need is indicated by the foreshadowed inability of the Railway Company to pay the dividend on its stock necessary to enable the Traction Company to make its interest payments due next July on the Fifty-Year 4% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds.

This condition of the Railway Company has resulted, not from lack of earning power, but, on the contrary, from the rapid growth of its business, and the consequent necessity of devoting to improvements and extensions publicly demanded a large part of its earnings which have been the only resource of the Traction Company for such capital requirements since the exhaustion of collateral trust bonds reserved for such purposes. A statement received from the officers of the Company is appended hereto for the further information of bondholders upon this point. (See Appendix A.)

These facts will suggest the desirability of a prompt decision whether or not you should deposit your bonds under the agreement of which a copy is now sent to the several bondholders. The agreement recognizes the impendency of a default in the payment of the July interest on the collateral trust bonds, that foreclosure proceedings may ensue without delay, and that the interests of the bondholders will require protection through the Committee, empowered to acquire the pledged stocks of the Railway Company at the foreclosure sale, and to cause to be organized under the laws of the State of New York a new railroad company owning and operating some other railroad line which by merger, shall acquire first the stock and then the physical properties of the Railway Company, (subject to its prior mortgages.) Under this agreement such new company is to execute a refunding mortgage constituting a first lien upon portions of the property of the International Railway Company, and a lien upon the other properties owned or controlled by the Railway Company, as embraced in the reorganization, subject to bonds secured by direct liens thereon, which mortgage is to authorize the issue of bonds secured thereby to be used for the purposes of the plan, and also is to contain proper provisions for the refunding of such outstanding bonds and for the issue, under carefully drawn restrictions and with the consent of the Public Service Commission, of bonds for future extensions, betterments, and improvements. All of such new bonds are to bear interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum and to mature not earlier than the first day of July, 1949, that being the date of maturity of the present Fifty-Year 4% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of the Traction Company.

The agreement contemplates further that, upon consummation of the plan, or earlier at the option of the Committee, in exchange for their deposited bonds, the depositing collateral trust bondholders, at their option, shall receive either (a) five per cent. refunding bonds of the new company to the amount of eighty per cent. of the par value of such deposited bonds, and accrued interest in full in cash on the deposited bonds from the date of the last interest payment thereon to the date from which the new bonds shall draw interest, or (b) cash to the amount of seventy per cent. of the par value of such deposited bonds, and also accrued interest in full on the deposited bonds from the date of the last interest payment thereon to the date fixed by the Committee for such cash payment.

Thus, ultimately, in place of such bonds the depositing bondholders would received new bonds yielding as much interest on the investment and which should command a greater market value, the security being a direct lien on the physical property of the International Traction System instead of a collateral lien on stock, or else, should they prefer not to accept the new bonds, they could make sale of their present bonds at seventy cents on the dollar, a sum in excess of the present market price.

It will be observed that the agreement authorizes the Committee in its discretion to make provision for the stockholders of the Traction Company in the stock of the new railroad company.

If for any reason, whether because of a declination of the Public Service Commission to give the necessary prior consent to a satisfactory plan for the organization of the new company and the issue of its mortgage bonds or otherwise, the Committee shall deem it inexpedient to proceed with the plan, the bonds deposited with the Committee are to be returned to the depositors without expense.

Arrangements have been effected whereby J. P. MORGAN & CO. of New York City will act as depositary for the Committee, and on behalf of the Committee will issue transferable receipts for all deposited bonds.

Dated June 21, 1910.

APPENDIX A.

Capital Expenditures necessarily made from July 1, 1899, to December 31, 1909 .... $12,070,000.00
Chargeable as follows:
(a) To sales of bonds and securities ... $6,644,000.00
(b) To current assets 3,004,000.00
(c) To net earnings of the property .. 2,422,000.00
$12,070,000.00

All the Fifty-Year 4% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of the International Traction Company reserved for improvements have been sold, and the proceeds are included in subdivision (a) of the above statement.

Additional capital expenditures for the years 1910 and 1911, amounting to $2,750,000, will be necessary to meet Municipal contracts and Public requirements.

In view of past experience and the present condition of the property, the normal capital requirements of this growing system must now be estimated to be $1,000,000 per annum. The larger amount, $2,750,000, as indicated by the proposed capital expenditures for 1910 and 1911, is due to the fact that, because of the exhaustion of the 4% Collateral Trust Bonds provided for such purposes, the capital expenditures for the two preceding years, 1908 and 1909, were abnormally and harmfully low.

On the basis of the reorganization of the property, as now proposed, net earnings as at present would indicate a satisfactory margin over the amount necessary to pay the fixed charges of the reorganized company. The normal increase in net earnings should be more than sufficient to meet the additional fixed charges for future capital requirements.

NO. 21. 17TH DRAWING.

Consolidated External Loan of 1899.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Bonds of this Loan, the numbers and particulars of which are given below, were, in pursuance of the stipulations contained in Article 4 of the Agreement relating to the same, dated the 1st, 2nd and 3rd days of July, 1899, this day drawn at the offices of the Mexican Government Financial Agency, 85 to 98, Finsbury Pavement House, Finsbury Pavement, London, for redemption at par on the 1st day of July next, when interest thereon will cease, in the presence of Vivian Hugh Smith, Esq., a partner in the firm of Morgan, Grenfell & Co., Senor Don Manuel de Zamacona e Inclan, Financial Agent of the Mexican Government, and of Mr. John Dalton Venn, Notary Public of this City.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Bronx Realty Leads the Market—Another Row of Bronx Flats Sold—Investors Buying East Side Tenements—A Quarter Million Dollar Development at Bensonhurst.

The five five-story flats occupying the entire block front on the west side of Brook Avenue, between 135th and 136th Streets, 200 by 90, have been sold to an investor by Lowenfeld & Prager. The property was acquired by the sellers several months ago, together with the two frame dwellings 535 and 537 West 179th Street, in a trade with the Ansonia Realty Company, giving in exchange the six-story apartment house at the northwest corner of 178th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, 100 by 100.

Only the preceding day the purchase by an investor of eight five-story flats on Hewitt Place, between Longwood and Westchester Avenues, was recorded. These large operations in addition to the great building activity in apartments throughout the Bronx, all indicate the desirability of good Bronx property for permanent investment.

Investors Buy East Side Tenements.

The estate of Peter Vollmer has sold to a client of Isadore M. Levy the six-story eight-room tenement house situated at 191 Orchard Street, on a lot 25 by 87.6. The ground floor of said building is to be altered into stores and basement stores, and other improvements made.

Ogden & Clarkson sold for John Murray to P. Purcell 315 East Thirty-seventh Street, a five-story tenement, on lot 25 by 100. Mr. Purcell recently acquired the adjoining property through the same broker, and now has a plot 50 by 100.

Heights Apartment Sold.

The Brown Realty Company has bought 503 and 505 West 164th Street, a six-story apartment house, on plot 50 by 100.

Bronx Sales.

Arnold, Byrne & Baumann have sold for Joseph Morris to a client of Wesselman & Kraus the southeast corner of Grand Boulevard and Concourse and 162d Street, a plot 100 by 118.6.

Ernest & Cohen have sold for Jacob Lewis the plot 50 by 100, on the north side of 235th Street, about 335 feet west of Katonah Avenue.

Ernest & Cohen have sold for Charles W. Berndt 1,343 Clay Avenue, a two-story dwelling, on lot 16.8 by 80.

W. E. & W. I. Brown, Inc., have sold for Mrs. Augusta Morris de Peyster the vacant plot, 148 by 100, situated on the southwest corner of Webster Avenue and East 169th Street.

Brooklyn Sales.

Vennette F. Pelletreau & Co. have sold for the Feinball Realty Company to C. Watson Terhune of Manhattan, the two six-story apartment houses on the south side of Pacific Street, 200 feet west of Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn. The same brokers sold for the Lotus Realty Company to a builder the plot, 50 by 125, on the south side of Fenimore Street, 200 feet west of Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn. The buyer will improve the property with a four-story house.

Buys Ardsley Park Residence.

Kenneth Ives & Co. have sold for William B. Nisbet his residence on Hancock Place, Ardsley Park, Ardsley-on-Hudson, to Anson Flower Robinson. The property was held at $32,500.

Staten Island Sales.

Cornelius G. Kolff sold for John W. Greenwood to the Richmond Holding Company Lot 968, 40 by 90, on the northeast corner of Wooley and Waters Avenues, Prohibition Park, S. I.

Recent Buyers.

R. J. Bondy is the buyer of the five-story American basement dwelling, 20 West Eighty-sixth Street, sold recently by W. W. & T. M. Hall.

Big Building Operation in Bensonhurst.

A $225,000 operation in building is to be put through by the Bensonhurst Home Company on Seventy-seventh and Seventy-eighth Streets, west of Twenty-first Avenue. On the north side of Seventy-seventh Street, beginning 100 feet west of Twenty-first Avenue, twenty-three two-story brick and stone houses, for two families each, will be erected at a cost of $115,000, and on the south side of Seventy-eighth Street, beginning the same distance west of Twenty-first Avenue, twenty-two similar houses, at a cost of $110,000, will be put up. The architects are A. J. & A. T. McManus.

N. Y. Central Buys in Weehawken for Terminal.

By the recording of a deed in Jersey City yesterday it was ascertained that the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad has made another large purchase of riparian lands in Weehawken to be used for the erection of its proposed large freight terminal. The purchase was made from Allan McLane and David B. Ogden, Trustees of Fanny King McLane, a daughter of James G. King, who formerly owned a large portion of the property on the Weehawken side of the river, and is for a tract of land having a frontage of 359 feet along the shore and extending out into the river for a distance of 1,414 feet.

The consideration mentioned in the deed was only $10,000. This is not the true consideration, as the riparian grant for the lands under water, which was recorded at the same time, cost the McLane estate $176,905.

The property is held by the New York State Realty and Terminal Company, a holding company of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad. A previous purchase of riparian lands in the same locality by the same company was made on June 11.

Interest in Throg's Neck Sale.

The inquiries coming into the office of Joseph P. Day on the auction sale of 261 lots at Throg's Neck Gardens in the East Bronx indicate that there is still in the minds of investors the belief that among all the boroughs, the Bronx, and the eastern part of it especially, offers a field for investment. There is hardly any doubt that within the next three years with the coming of the Broadway-Lexington Avenue subway and the completion of other transit improvements to meet the needs of the residents, the East Bronx will be pretty close to a complete development with realty prices firmly set. The section in which Throg's Neck Gardens is located has always been looked on as exclusive because of the holdings there of large estates.

The exclusive Westchester Country Club was not overanxious to change the conditions surroundings its section, either. It is not possible, however, to prevent the increasing tide of population in New York from going where it wants to, and some of the wealthy owners of Throg's Neck have capitulated, giving investors and home-site seekers an opportunity to begin their operations in the Throg's Neck district with a consequent improvement in transit conditions to meet their coming. An interesting fact regarding the sale to be held by Mr. Day on Saturday on the premises at 2:30 P. M. is the giving of riparian rights to the buyers of the forty lots which front on Long Island Sound.

Hudson Realty Co.'s 5th Av. Corner.

Jacob Rothschild, whose name was associated with the Hudson Realty Company in the report of the sale of the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Sixteenth Street, has no connection with that company. Mr. Rothschild owns all of the block front from Fifteenth Street, except the Sixteenth Street corner plot, known as 108 Fifth Avenue, and the Hudson Realty Company, of which Maximilian Morgenthau is President, by acquiring this parcel adds to its former holding at 2 West Sixteenth Street, now controlling a corner parcel of over 7,000 square feet. The Charles F. Noyes Company was the broker in the sale.

Signal Towers Below Park Avenue.

Plans have been filed with Building Superintendent Miller for two two-story brick signal towers to be built underneath Park Avenue at Forty-ninth Street for the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company. The Grand Central Station architects estimate the cost at $55,000.

Big Apartment for Dyckman Tract.

Schwartz & Gross, architects, have filed plans for a six-story apartment house to be erected at the southwest corner of Emerson Street and Post Avenue for the Hensle Construction Company, of which Charles Hensle is President. The building will have a frontage of 155 feet and a depth of 90 feet and contain apartments for eighty families, and is estimated to cost $125,000.

New School Opposite Hudson Park.

C. B. J. Snyder, chief architect of the Board of Education, has filed plans for the erection of Public School 95, on the north side of West Houston Street, 126 feet west of Varick Street, running through the block to Clarkson Street. The new school will be opposite Hudson Park, and will contain, besides the classrooms, a gymnasium with rubber tile floor on the fourth floor. The building will be fireproof, with a frontage of 150 feet and a depth of 200 feet, and is estimated to cost $400,000.

Notes.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company has loaned on first mortgage to John J. O'Reilly $50,000 on the six-story store and apartment property located at the northeast corner of 141st Street and Eighth Avenue. The mortgage is for three years at 5 per cent.

THROG'S NECK GARDENS

Auction Sale

At 2:30 P. M. on the Premises

261-High Class Lots-261

Remember, 40 lots on Long Island Sound will be sold with riparian rights. The other lots are 500 feet from the Sound. Streets will be dedicated to the city—saving assessment. All city improvements are in and paid for. Lots are level—no marsh, no rock.

Buy just ahead of the growth of the East Bronx to Throg's Neck for big realty profits.

You need no timetables. Take any Subway train or 2d or 3d Ave. L and Westchester or Tremont Ave. Trolley.

In three years your money should earn 50% and should keep on increasing if you invest in Throg's Neck Gardens.

Get all the profit—not a part. Your money earns 3½% in bank—a very good and conservative investment—take some of it and invest it at Throg's Neck Gardens in water-front lots, which never depreciate.

Savings Bank Books will be held until time of interest, July 2d, so as to save it for you. I advise you not to miss this sale.

Pelhamwood

A year ago, when Pelhamwood was opened to purchasers, it gave promise of being an ideal suburb. To-day, with more than half the property sold, with some homes occupied and more in course of construction, that promise has been more than fulfilled.

Pelhamwood is the ideal suburb and in addition has proven an excellent investment.

Property values have steadily increased and with the new high-speed electric railroad in process of completion they promise a still further advance.

Choice lots and plots, for building or investment, may still be had at the original prices, payable $10 down and 1% per month. Lots cost from $540 up.

Pelhamwood is fully improved with all city conveniences and is in the center of the most aristocratic section of Westchester.

At Pelham Station 30 minutes out. Between Mt. Vernon and New Rochelle.

Send for our embossed relief map which shows the property almost as well as a visit. Free transportation, prices and terms on request to Dept. A.

LONG BEACH

The Finest Boardwalk in the World

IF YOU haven't been on the boardwalk at LONG BEACH, you have yet to see the finest boardwalk in the world.

Atlantic City's boardwalk can not be compared to it in character of construction.

Two and one-half miles of it have been completed and up to date it has cost $340,000.

There are two more miles to be built.

This is only one example of the remarkable enterprise and thoroughness with which LONG BEACH is being developed.

Progress is everywhere to be seen.

Good times are at hand, and LONG BEACH, the most magnificent beach on the Atlantic seaboard, climatically, geographically, architecturally, naturally and socially, is just bursting forth, a combine of American brains, capital and enterprise and destined to become the national seaside resort of America, bringing fortunes to early investors.

RECEIVERS' SALES.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED States, held in and for the Eastern District of New York.—WALTER S. ELY and another, complainants, against VAN KANNEL REVOLVING DOOR COMPANY, defendant.

In pursuance of an order of the Circuit Court of the United States held in and for the Eastern District of New York, duly made in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 23d day of May, 1910, and filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court on the same day, the undersigned, the Receivers of the said defendant heretofore duly appointed in said action, will sell at public auction to the highest qualified bidder, at the factory property of the defendant, No. 290 East 134th Street, in the City of New York, in the Borough of the Bronx, on the 27th day of June, 1910, at eleven (11) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, by Frank Van Name, Auctioneer, the property directed by said order to be sold, a brief general description of which is given below, in accordance with the terms and provisions of said order, viz.:

All and singular the property and estate of every kind, patent rights, franchises, contracts, and privileges, choses in action, engines, boilers, tools, machinery, patterns, lumber, stocks and bonds of subsidiary companies, equipment and effects of the defendant, the Van Kannel Revolving Door Company, which are in the hands of said Receivers, (excepting, however, all Receivers' bills and accounts receivable and contracts covering work in process of completion, which may be reserved from such sale by said Receivers), together with the following real estate:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the 23d Ward of the City of New York, and bounded and described as follows, to wit:

Beginning at a point in the southerly side of 134th Street, distant two hundred and fifty (250) feet westerly from the intersection of the said southerly side of 134th Street with the westerly side of Alexander Avenue, as shown on a map entitled "Map of 1,572 Building Lots situate in North New York, Westchester County, belonging to Clarence F. Brown, January, 1866," filed in the office of the Register of the County of Westchester at White Plains, on the 17th day of February, 1866, as Map 419; running thence southerly and parallel with the westerly side of Alexander Avenue one hundred (100) feet; thence westerly and parallel with 134th Street one hundred and fifty (150) feet; thence northerly and parallel with the westerly side of Alexander Avenue one hundred (100) feet to the southerly side of 134th Street; thence eastwardly and along said southerly side one hundred and fifty (150) feet to the point or place of beginning; which is subject to a past due mortgage for $24,000, bearing interest at five per cent. per annum.

The property above mentioned shall be sold subject to any state of facts which an accurate survey will show and to all liens upon it or any part thereof which existed thereon prior to the receivership. The purchaser or purchasers of the property above described shall take over as part of the property purchased all unfilled orders taken during the said receivership and not reserved from such sale, and shall give a good and sufficient bond to be approved by the Court to fulfill and carry out all and every the said unfilled orders or contracts.

Unless the Court shall otherwise direct, said property will be offered and sold in one parcel as an entirety, and all bids shall be provisionally accepted and shall be immediately reported to the Court for acceptance or rejection, and no bids need be considered from any person who shall not first deposit with the undersigned, Charles A. Decker, one of said Receivers, either in cash or in a cheque to his order, certified by a National or State bank or trust company situate in the City of New York, the sum of Two thousand and five hundred ($2,500) Dollars.

The cash or cheque deposited by any such bidder shall be held as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid if accepted by the Court. The cash or cheque so deposited except those deposited by bidders whose bids are provisionally accepted, shall be returned by the said Receiver at the close of the sale to the bidder or bidders from whom they were received. The cash or cheques deposited by a bidder or bidders whose bid or bids shall be provisionally accepted will be retained by the said Receiver if such provisional acceptance shall thereafter be not confirmed by the Court. The cash or cheques deposited by any bidder at the sale shall be forfeited and applied to the expenses of said sale and of the receivership of the property of said defendant above named in the event that the said bidder shall not make good his bid.

The balance of the purchase price shall be paid from time to time as the Court shall direct. The Court reserves the right to reject any bid, and to order a resale.

A condition of the sale is that any purchaser shall permit the said Receivers to use all and every part of the premises, engines, boilers, tools, machinery, and office force and workmen now used in or in any way connected with the said business for the purpose of finishing any and all work which the said Receivers have in process in the said factory of the defendant which they shall reserve from this sale without hindrance or molestation, until said work shall be wholly completed. The said Receivers shall pay for all materials, shop cost, and charges connected with the completion of such work, including as part of the cost a charge of 40% on the shop or mechanical cost of such work for all overhead, clerical, administrative, and other charges. Advisory lists of contracts to be assumed by the purchaser and filled by the Receivers will be on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court not later than June 20th, 1910.

For further statement of the terms and conditions of sale and for a more particular description of the property to be sold reference is made to said order and to the inventory and statements prepared or to be prepared thereunder. An inventory as of May 17, 1910, is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court, and a copy may be seen at the office of Charles A. Decker, 100 Broadway, N. Y. City, N. Y.

A BRIDE WITHOUT A HUSBAND

French Teacher at St. Mary's School Deserted—Kept Secret 18 Months.

Wedding announcement cards, belated eighteen months, have just been sent out by Mrs. Basil Selwin Tait, née Marie Tarquette, a French teacher in St. Mary's Cathedral School for Girls at Garden City, L. I. But, although she is a bride, the teacher doesn't know the whereabouts of her husband.

Tait, a young Englishman, is said to be the son of a Bishop. On Dec. 31, 1908, he and Mlle. Tarquette went to New Jersey and were married. Determined to keep their marriage a secret, they informed none of the friends. Several months after the wedding Tait started for California, saying he was in ill-health. His wife has neither seen him since nor heard from his for a long time. She kept her secret until she found it and her loneliness were preying upon her mind, and then she went to Bishop Frederick Burgess of the Episcopal Diocese of Long Island, and told him the whole story. Bishop Burgess assisted her in her efforts to find traces of her missing husband, but unsuccessfully. Then he counseled her to talk of the matter with some of her friends. She did so, and they advised her to announce her marriage. The cards of announcement resulted.

It is said that excellent letters of introduction were presented by Tait, when he came from England several years ago. He was received without question, and introduced into many exclusive homes. For a time he had some prominence as an exhibitor of bulldogs.

O'SULLIVAN GETS WHITE SLAVE REPORT

Gone Out of Town, Presumably with It, While Considering Its Proper Disposition.

NOT READ OUT IN COURT

And Not Filed Yet—But Assurance Is Given That It Will All Become Public Somehow.

The "White Slave" Grand Jury, of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is foreman, again handed up its presentment to Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions yesterday, and this time the Judge took it, forbidding the foreman to read it. When the court closed late in the afternoon, however, he had not filed it with the Clerk—as the law says he must, although the law does not say immediately—and last night it was said that he had gone out of town till Monday. Presumably the Judge carried the report with him.

The Rockefeller Grand Jury has not yet been discharged, and the presentment is not yet public property. It is pretty certain, however, that it will be.

"The papers submitted by you will be considered in connection with the testimony to enable the court to make a proper disposition of it," were Judge O'Sullivan's words in taking the presentment. Mr. Rockefeller looked disappointed. Afterward, from a person very close to the Grand Jury, came the promise that before long, "through one channel or another," each and every word of the presentment as handed up by Mr. Rockefeller would become known to the public.

The Grand Jurors met at noon in Mr. Whitman's office, and after half an hour's conference filed down to General Sessions, Part V., where Judge O'Sullivan was waiting to receive them.

"In the charge which your Honor delivered to the Grand Jury," began Mr. Rockefeller, when court opened, "your Honor directed that a certain investigation should be made. This has been done. No time or effort has been spared in the work. The Grand Jury has been in communication with your Honor through its foreman during the investigation, and at no time has any single phase of the investigation been undertaken without our having secured in advance your Honor's approval and indorsement of the specific line of investigation in each case. Your Honor, in your Honor's charge, further directs the Grand Jury to present to the court the facts found by it."

The Court—And you now declare—

Mr. Rockefeller—In line with that instruction the Grand Jury has the honor to present to the court this presentment with a renewal of the request that it be discharged. Is it your Honor's pleasure that the foreman read the presentment?

The Court—No, there is no procedure of that character in this court. You may hand up the paper.

Mr. Rockefeller relinquished it, and Judge O'Sullivan then set forth his position in a statement which scored heavily a man whom he did not name, but who was unmistakably identified with Assistant District Atorney James B. Reynolds, who has had charge of the investigation almost from its inception.

From his seat in the rear of the courtroom Mr. Reynolds smiled slightly, but vowed and declared afterward that he had nothing to say at present for publication.

"Two weeks ago," said the Judge, "it was deemed prudent to delay the acceptance of the document offered by your foreman. The reasons given by the court for its action and its suggestion were then considered adequate. Particular reference at that time to other reasons did not seem necessary or advisable. To-day it appears to be the duty of the court to make them known to you.

"As your Foreman has said, during the long investigation perfect accord prevailed between you and the court. You were animated by no other desire than to get at the truth of the question. Your Foreman frequently consulted the court upon various subjects under your consideration. He was advised to consider every matter that might be relevant to the main question; that unless other topics were probative of that they were not germane to the question, and findings upon them should not be permitted to befog your answer to the principal question.

"What matters are relevant is a question of law, to be determined by either of your legal advisers, the District Attorney or the Judge of the court. As you had occasion to learn during the investigation, it is not every report that may find a place upon the files of the court."

Judge O'Sullivan went on to remind the Grand Jury that its Foreman had at one time suggested filing a recital of its activities, giving the sources of information resorted to and similar matters, and that the court had advised making the report to the Mayor or the Controller, inasmuch as public funds had been appropriated to aid the investigation. He reminded the Grand Jurors, too, of the indictments against Belle Moore, Anderson, and Levinson, which were kept in suspension pending the arrests.

"The Judge," continued the court, "inquired of the Foreman if the members of the Grand Jury had been especially cautioned upon the urgent necessity for secrecy. He replied that they had been. Believing that beyond the arrest of the defendants far-reaching results would be served by discreet silence, the Judge advised your Foreman to keep the indictments in his own custody until the following Tuesday. The day after that consultation, and while the indictments were in the custory of your Foreman, the newspapers of this city published, under startling headlines, the substance of the indictments.

"The disclosures did not come from the Grand Jury, but from a source close to it. For several days thereafter reports in the public prints detailed conditions of the most brutal depravity. They purported to come from interviews with a gentleman who had come into the District Attorney's office for the purpose of assisting the Grand Jury in this investigation. Children held in the slavery of vice by human monsters, and perhaps murder committed to conceal other infamous offenses, and a multitude of criminals implicated, were matters which, according to those interviews, would be submitted to your consideration.

"It is hardly a fair or legal method of proof to assume that certain conditions exist, but which are now impossible to prove because of the imprudent conduct of the one who asserted their existence. Whatever may be the honorable repute of the officer appointed to serve the Grand Jury, his imprudent and exaggerated statements should not be reflected in the findings of that dignified body.

"Impressed with that belief, the Judge sent for your Foreman and stated to him that he did not consider it wise to permit the officer in question to write your final report; that, in fact, he would not be inclined to receive such a report. The Judge entertained the conviction that citizens of New York are entitled to a straightforward, unequivocable answer to the question before the Grand Jury, and that it was his right and duty to know whether there was such an answer in your final report. Whatever it might be, was it founded upon legal evidence, taken before you, because no other evidence was permissible, and you had already exhibited a woeful misconception of legal evidence with regard to this investigation?

"Your foreman stated that no matter who wrote the answer, it would not contain a jot more or less than the truth, and that before the report was submitted he would gladly advise with the Judge. The first intimation which the court had of the report was upon the proffer of it two weeks ago. Since then it has been learned from your foreman that the first question to which you have devoted your attention is the main question submitted to you. What the others are the court is not aware of. All the testimony taken before you has been examined. The papers submitted by you will be considered in connection with the testimony to enable the court to make a proper disposition of it."

Judge O'Sullivan then pointed out several places in the testimony which, though largely hearsay, deserved a careful scrutiny because of their grave and serious nature. He made the references by naming the pages of the minutes, and bade the Grand Jury continue its work another week to look into the matters.

"And will you do that?" Mr. Rockefeller was asked later.

"You are more familiar with the court than I," he said with what looked like a shrug "What else is there for us to do?"

All afternon there was no end of chatter in the Criminal Courts Building. The present status of the Grand Jury's presentment was a matter of much speculation. It has not yet been filed. It is a document under the consideration of the court. Judge O'Sullivan himself did not even once refer to it as a presentment, but that is what Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Whitman call it.

Since the Gardiner decision, a lawyer pointed out, presentments follow the same procedure as in indictments. This procedure is specifically described in the code as follows:

> An indictment, when found by the Grand Jury, as prescribed in Section 268, must be presented by their foreman in their presence to the court, and must be filed with the Clerk, and remain in his office as a public record.

The section does not say that it must be filed at once, so that Judge O'Sullivan is perfectly within his rights in providing the interval.

Mr. Whitman would not discuss the court's action "for the present," he said, with a significant nod.

People buzzed around Mr. Reynolds all day, most of them greeting him with no little raillery. It was pointed out that he had given forth no information without Mr. Whitman's knowledge, and that some of the interviews ascribed to him were either distortions or entirely fabricated. The original story of the "White Slave" cases came out of necessity in explanation of the arrests. Its kernel lay in the short affidavits on which the prisoners were held in the Magistrate's Court.

It was learned also yesterday that Mr. Reynolds did not write the presentment. With several other advisers of the Grand Jury he shared in its preparation, but if any one person contributed a larger part than any one else it was Mr. Rockefeller himself.

The main question presented to the Grand Jury was whether the charges that this city is the centre of clearing house for an organized traffic in women for immoral purposes were true or false. It is believed that the Grand Jury, while not finding anything that would sustain the George Kibbe Turner article in McClure's, found enough to make it difficult to give an unqualified answer.

"Your inquiry should not be satisfied with a half answer," Judge O'Sullivan told the Grand Jurors at the very first. "If such truth does not exist your investigation should put an end to sensational slanders against the City of New York."

It was Mr. Whitman's contention in court two weeks ago that any question or the expunging of any portions of the presentment can be made only after the presentment is filed.

Daniel F. Cohalan, Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall, was not among the callers in the Criminal Court Building yesterday.

CASSIDY'S CLAIMS STIR UP QUEENS

He Now Lists Four Aldermen as His and Says He Will Succeed Gresser.

CITIZENS FIGHTING HIM

In Case Gresser Quits, Mass Meetings Will Be Held to Prevent His Election.

With the case of Borough President Gresser scheduled for presentation to the Queens County Grand Jury this morning, interest among Queens citizens is rapidly focussing on the five Aldermen empowered to elect a successor in case the office of Borough President becomes vacant.

Gresser's friends and political adherents, admitting that they were facing a crisis, were busy yesterday trying to bloster up the administration's shattered fortunes. They urged Gresser not to resign, and advanced a theory on which they believe they can work their way out of their troubles without the necessity of a special Aldermanic election.

The reason for their refusal to submit their fortunes to the Aldermen in the hope of getting a new President of their own liking became clear as the day began to bring out definite data on the political outlook.

Joseph Cassidy increased his claim as to the control of Aldermen by doubling it. He raised the number to four, which is one more than enough to elect.

From the political camp of ex-Sheriff Herbert S. Harvey it was learned that the long silence from Commissioner Fosdick immediately preceding the report on Gresser had been construed as a favorable omen indicating that no more charges were likely to be filed. They were caught unawares by the sudden blast that struck them on Tuesday with the result that Cassidy has gained ground by it.

The four Aldermen listed for his organization are Frederick Snell of Bayside, Daniel Entholt of Long Island City, A. Dujat of Corona, and E. Brady of Far Rockaway. Brady and Entholt have been counted heretofore as anti-Cassidy men, while Cassidy has always claimed the votes of Snell and Dujat. The fifth Alderman is W.A. Shipley of Jamaica, a straight organization Republican. He is not figured on the slates that are being prepared.

Circumstantial evidence supporting the Cassidy claim of an increase in his strength was submitted by several citizens in their informal conferences yesterday. They said that Alderman Brady, near whose home Cassidy has extensive real estate holdings, had recently been much in the ex-boss's company. They had also noticed that Alderman Entholt had come forward as an officer in a new political club admittedly formed in Cassidy's interests.

While the Cassidy forces are preparing to demonstrate that they can deliver the votes of the Aldermen listed as their supporters, Gresser's friends are building a defense for him. They are telling it about that he considers so many vouchers daily that he cannot possibly give them all his personal attention, and that the forged vouchers complained of simply slipped through in the rush. They say that a jury will take this into consideration, and will therefore vote for his acquittal, even if indicted, in which case he will be in a position to retain his office.

Opponents of Gresser point out, however, that the vouchers included in Commissioner Fosdick's report were not signed in the normal course of business, but were taken out of their regular order for personal consideration by Gresser after another public official had refused to sign them and had called the Borough President's attention to their fraudulent nature. They are also telling that the money drawn upon them through the public funds went to Gresser's campaign manager, whose address the forged vouchers bore.

The report of the Grand Jury on the Gresser charges is expected early next week. In order to let the Aldermen know just how the people feel about the aggressions of Cassidy, and the likelihood of his appearing as a candidate before them, some of the citizens are discussing the advisability of holding mass meetings. It is probable that such meetings will be called in every section of the borough in the event that the Grand Jury's report carries out the promise of the sworn testimony taken by Commissioner Fosdick.

The hopes of the jurors that they would get a vacation on the completion of the Gresser investigation was shattered yesterday when Justice Stapleton sent to District Attorney De Witt a new matter for them to look into. It concerns the valuable maps which were recently found to be missing from the office of the Queens County clerk at Jamaica. All of the maps have been found. They were safely stored in the offices of the company which prepared them. It had not received its pay and so seized its goods.

The vouchers in payment were drawn a year ago by the city, and provided the money called for, but it apparently had never reached those entitled to receive it. To determine who is responsible for its having gone astray will be the Grand Jury's task.

BABY DESERTED ON A BOAT.

Three-Weeks-Old Boy Found in a Stateroom on the Richard Peck.

Shortly after the New Haven liner Richard Peck had docked at her Catharine Street slip yesterday morning a baby's wail was heard coming from Stateroom 31 on the upper deck. All the passengers had left the vessel, and one of the cleaners, rather startled, entered the stateroom with a passkey.

Lying in the upper berth was a three-weeks-old boy baby, dressed in a clean cambric cap and lace frock. Near the baby on the bed—as though left by accident—was the following letter written on the stationery of a business school at 52 Temple Street, New Haven:

> Miss Amy Blackwell, 179 Congress Avenue, city:
>
> Dear Madam: We inclose herewith your statement to date by which you will see that you owe us $10. The account has now run for a considerable length of time, and we would very much like to have an accounting. Yours very truly,
>
> THE BUTLER BUSINESS SCHOOL,
> E. M. BUTLER, President.

The purser's books show that the stateroom was engaged in the name of "Adams" before the boat left New Haven on Wednesday night, and Mrs. Bell, the stewardess, remembers seeing a tall blonde young woman nursing the baby in the stateroom during the night trip through the Sound from New Haven to New York.

The baby was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, June 23.—Amy Blackhall, whose name was found on the envelope in the stateroom on the Richard Peck, where the baby was abandoned, is the daughter of Robert Blackhall, yardmaster here for the New Haven Road. She is 16 years old, and attended for a time the Butler Business College. Her father said to-night that she was home, but he would let no one see her. He would not discuss the case. Blackhall is the man who was responsible for the strike of the yardmen here some years ago.

Incorporate "The Boy Scouts."

William R. Hearst, James Frederick McGrath, a Hearst newspaper reporter; ex-Congressman Jefferson M. Levy, James R. O'Beirne, G. A. R. lecturer, and Charles P. De Bard incorporated yesterday with the permission of Supreme Court Justice Giegerich an organization known as "The American Boy Scouts." Among the objects of the organization is to fit American boys for the obligations and duties of citizenship.

ANOTHER ORDER HITS PLAIN CLOTHES MEN

Commissioner Baker Finally Kills All Hope That They Are to Do Detective Work.

BRANCH BUREAUS INSTEAD

New One Created and Sleuths Assigned to the Branches Will Investigate All Crimes.

The last vestige of connection between the precinct police and the special investigation of crime was removed yesterday by a general order of Commissioner Baker, directing that all cases requiring such attention be reported to the nearest branch office of the Detective Bureau instead of being handled as heretofore by plain clothes men sent out from the stations. This puts all the work of investigation into the hands of the Central Office and its seven branches, the latest of which was established by the general order yesterday.

On and after next Monday, when the new order goes into effect, precinct Captains or Lieutenants will steer all persons applying to the station houses on business requiring detective work to the nearest detective branch. This is made clear in the first paragraph of the new order, which reads:

> On and after June 27, 1910, when a person calls at a precinct station house to report a crime within the precinct, which crime requires the attention of the Detective Bureau, the officer in charge will direct such person to the Branch Office of the Detective Bureau covering the precinct and not to the main office of the Detective Bureau at Police Headquarters, except the Second, Sixth, Eighth, Tenth, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth Precincts, and the Harbor Precincts A and B, which will be covered by the Main Office, 240 Centre Street.
> Those are the branches which will handle the detective work of the various precincts, the Third Branch being the new one created under yesterday's order to take charge of part of the territory hitherto covered by the Fourth Branch.
>
> The First Branch, 17 Allen Street, includes the First, Fifth, Seventh, Ninth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth, and Twenty-first Precincts, and goes to the centre line of Bridge Precincts A, B, and C.
>
> The Third Branch, 245 East Sixtieth Street, includes the Twenty-fifth, Twenty-ninth, Thirty-first, Thirty-third, and Thirty-fifth Precincts, and to the centre line of Bridge Precinct D.
>
> The Fourth Branch, 104 West Fifty-second Street, includes the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-eighth, and Thirty-second Precincts.
>
> The Sixth Branch, 127 West 125th Street, includes the Thirty-sixth, Thirty-ninth, Fortieth, and Forty-third Precincts.
>
> Brooklyn Branch, 269 State Street, takes in all precincts in the Boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens.
>
> Richmond Branch, 417 Richmond Terrace, New Brighton, S. I., takes in all precincts in the Borough of Richmond.
>
> Bronx Branch, 162d Street and Brook Avenue, takes in all precincts in the Borough of the Bronx.

So that mistakes might be guarded against, Inspector Russell had all of the prospective branch heads before him on Wednesday, explaining the new order and how it was expected to work.

Lieut. Thomas F. Foody, who was found in bed partially undressed in the Mulberry Street Station, where he was supposed to be on the desk duty during an inspection by Commissioner Bingham and his deputies about eighteen months ago and was later dismissed, was returned to active duty yesterday by Commissioner Baker and assigned to the High Bridge Station. His reinstatement was effective at 8 o'clock on Wednesday night. He was sustained by the Court of Appeals in a decision handed down on Wednesday.

WOMAN SLAIN IN BYPATH.

Police Search for Bruno Rokowsky, She Being Identified as His Wife.

The body of a woman, with stab wounds in both sides of the throat, severed windpipe, a gash across the face, and a stab wound in the abdomen, was found lying face downward in a torn patch of meadow grass off a footpath leading from North Beach to the Steinway section of Long Island City by John Seigel, an old caretaker for one of the country estates on the Shore Road, yesterday morning. All around there were evidences of a fierce struggle; the grass and earth was torn up for yards. In her clenched fist the dead woman still clasped a few blonde hairs. There was a wedding ring on the left hand and a plain gold band ring on the right. One of her combs lay some distance away, and to it clung parts of her hair that had been torn out. The woman seemed to be Polish or Hungarian and was of strong build.

Seigel notified Capt. Darcy of the Astoria Station, and soon the place was crowded with detectives and curious men, women, and children. On a bush near the body the police found a man's handkerchief bearing the initials "W. M." and near by a jackknife of foreign make.

When the body was removed to Quinn's undertaking shop, at 169 Fulton Avenue, Astoria, it was viewed, among others, by a frightened little boy of 8 years, who said he was Max Rokowsky of 704 Ninth Avenue, Astoria. At the sight of the dead woman the boy broke into sobs and declared that it was his stepmother, Mrs. Bruno Rokowsky. According to the police, he said that his father had gone out for a walk with her on Wednesday night and returned about midnight, saying that he had lost his wife somewhere on the way. Thereafter, the boy said, his father packed up a few of his belongings and left the house without telling where he was going. When he did not return and there came no further news of his stepmother the boy ran frightened to a neighbor's. Some of them had heard of the finding of the body and urged him to go to the undertaking shop and look at it.

The police last night were seeking Rokowsky, but had found no trace of him. They arrested as a material witness Antonia Dombrosky, a silk weaver of 361 Woolsey Street, Astoria, with whom, they say, Rokowsky had been most friendly. In his relations with her, they thought, there might be a motive for a quarrel with his wife.

BALL PLAYERS IN FREE FIGHT.

Devlin Starts It at Washington Park by Striking a Spectator.

The crowd which went to Washington Park, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon to witness the baseball game between the New York Nationals and the Brooklyn team saw a lot more than their tickets called for. At the close of the sixth inning they saw Arthur Devlin, one of the ball players, walk over to one of the boxes and strike a spectator in the face. A small-size riot followed, and before it ended half a dozen fist fights had begun in many parts of the grand stand.

All through the first six innings some one in a box just back of the catcher kept waving his arms and inviting Devlin over to fight. As the thing went on Devlin lost his temper. Scanning the box closely he singled out Bernard J. Roesler of 464 Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, as the centre of the disturbance. Every one near by had heard the baiting of Devlin and knew from whence it came, and when Devlin started for the box at the end of the sixth inning the news had gone through the benches and every one knew what was going to happen.

Devlin walked straight to Roesler and gave him a punch which sent him staggering. A mix-up followed. Josh Devore and Larry Doyle had followed closely at Devlin's heels, and they took an active part in it. Several blows were struck before the police pried the fighters apart.

Roesler wanted Devlin arrested, but the police declined to arrest him. Roesler left the ball grounds, saying that he would go to a Police Court the first thing this morning and get a warrant for Devlin.

While the crowd in the belachers and grand stand were yelling and hooting Devlin, Doyle, and Devore walked calmly back to the field as though nothing much had happened. But they had hardly jointed their fellows when Umpire-in-Chief Klem ordered all three to the clubhouse.

Instantly a report started that the ballplayers had been arrested. This report seemed to be warranted when the three players appeared a little later, and, accompanied by several policemen, left the grounds. But the truth of the matter was the policemen were only acting as an escort, so that further trouble might be avoided.
